Hearnes Offers Bold Legislative Plan

Council Agrees to Buy Police Cars

The city council Tuesday night approved the purchase of two police cars, adopted a fire code and passed a revised ordinance governing handling of milk and milk products and rezoned three areas.

Only two car dealers submitted bids for police cars. Mitchell Sharp Chevrolet was awarded the contract. The company asked a difference of $2,893 for two new Chevrolets. The price for the two new cars was $5,968 less the trade in on two 1965 Fords for which the company allowed the city $3,075.

Sikeston Motor Company asked $4,500 for two new cars allowing the city $1,212 trade in on the two 1965 Fords for a net price of $3,288.

All car dealers were invited to bid on the contract.

At the request of City Manager W. Raymert Miller the council adopted a fire prevention code which regulates storage and transportation of flamables. The city has never had a fire code.

The code applies to companies that transport gas, oil or other flamables. Most of the companies have governed themselves in these matters, Miller said.

Home owners will not be affected Miller said.

The fire code is another requirement for the city's recertification for a workable program to obtain federal aid. The fire chief will have the power to modify provisions of the code as long as the spirit of the code is upheld.

Violations of the code can bring a fine from $10 to $100 and a 30-day jail sentence.

At the urging of County Sanitarian W. C. Mulcahy the city adopted a 1965 ordinance governing regulations affecting the bacteria count, temperature and equipment used in the processing, transportation and storage of milk and milk products.

The ordinance is a standardized code approved by the U.S. public health service. The previous code was adopted in 1956, and did not make provision for the technological changes, which have taken place in the industry, Warren Manning, county sanitarian, said.

Mulcahy stressed the importance of passing the ordinance before July 1, 1967. The state will survey the milk and milk products in July and rate the county under the provisions of the 1965 ordinance.

The new ordinance will facilitate the transportation and sale of milk produced here and taken across state lines or to other sections of the state where the 1965 ordinance is in effect.

The meeting opened with a public hearing on the proposed re-zoning of three areas. No one voiced objection to any of the areas re-zoned. An ordinance encompassing the changes in zoning was passed unanimously in a roll call vote.

The re-zoning included changing from two family dwelling to multi-family sections of McCoy and Tanner's first, second sixth, eighth and ninth additions and a section on the south side of Tanner from Taylor to west of Prairie.

An area south of the Cream Castle was re-zoned from single or two family dwellings to commercial use. The changes in zoning were recommended by zoning commission.

'What's the Law' Begins Today

Jack Strauss, successful New York lawyer, was searching for precedents bearing on an important case he was handling.

The deeper he dug, the stranger were rulings on the matter.

"This would make a good newspaper story!" he exclaimed.

This was a natural remark because Strauss is a former newspaperman.

Thus his nationally syndicated column, "What's the Law," came into being.

Turn to page 14 for "What's the Law" a new daily feature which starts today in the Daily Standard.

Each day he writes about one or two cases that led to striking or amusing rulings. He tells the facts of these cases succinctly and with a dash of humor.

Gilmore Replaces Matthews

Tom R. Gilmore, 411 Shady Lane, was appointed assistant prosecuting attorney of Scott county effective Jan. 1, Scott county prosecutor Fielding Potashnick said today.

Gilmore replaces Charles D. Matthews who served in the position for more than two years. Matthews and Potashnick will continue their law partnership.

Gilmore was born and reared in Sikeston, till his family moved to Kansas City. He graduated high school in Kansas City in 1957. Then attended Yale till 1961. He entered law school in 1962 at Georgetown University in Washington, D.C. and graduated in June, 1965.

Gilmore served as a law clerk from July, 1965 till August, 1966 for U.S. Federal Judge James H. Meredith of St. Louis. Meredith is judge of the eastern district of Missouri.

He then entered practice here in the firm of Gilmore and Gilmore, where he has practiced since August, 1966.

Gilmore is married to the former Miss Carol Ann Hacker of Jackson. They have two daughters, Tammy, three and Tracey, one and a son, Tim, four years old.

The only President to become chief justice of the Supreme Court was William Howard Taft. He was appointed in 1921 by President Harding.

Second Theft Foiled

BENTON - A set of burglar tools found behing the Benton post office were those used to crack the safe at the Morley post office Sunday night, sheriff's officers reported today.

The burglars apparently were scared off when they attempted to break into the post office here.

Found were crowbars, punches and other accessories commonly associated with safecracking. The tools were found Tuesday.

No clues to the identity of the burglars have been obtained.

Taken in the Morley burglary were $175 cash, ten $25 and $100 Series E savings bonds valued at $825 and $1,100 in stamps.

Bragg City Girl Dies in Truck Crash

HAYTI, MO. (AP) - Mary Williams, 16, of Bragg City was killed Tuesday when she was pinned beneath a pickup truck which went out of control and overturned in a drainage ditch about eight miles west of Hayti. She was drowned.

Missouri Highway Patrolmen said the victim was one of four passengers in a 1961 International truck driven by Lloyd Mink, 19, of Kennett.

The truck skidded off a gravel road, one and one-half miles south of highway 84 in Pemiscot county. The ditch was full of water.

The accident occurred at 7:10 p.m.

There were five teenagers riding in the cab of the truck. One of them, David Cross, 16, route one, Bragg City, received a sprained limb. He was treated at the Pemiscot County hospital.

The body of the Williams girl was taken to the German Funeral Home in Caruthersville.

Three persons were injured in a two-vehicle collision Tuesday at 2:30 p.m. at the junction of highway 67 and highway V, 10 miles south of Poplar Bluff.

A 1965 Chevrolet pickup truck, driven by Virgil Brake, 52, Neelyville, was passing a 1962 Chevrolet sedan, driven by Mrs. Mildred Williamson, 36, route one, Harviell.

Mrs. Williamson attempted to make a left turn and ran into the rear of the truck.

Injured were Mrs. Williamson, a daughter, Debra, 6, and a son, Eugene, two, who were all cut and bruised. They were treated at the Lucy Lee hospital in Poplar Bluff.

The driver of the truck was arrested for defective brakes and improper passing.

Hearnes Asks Record Billion-Dollar Budget

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes recommended a record budget of $1,107,936,751 today.

He told the Missouri legislature no new taxes would be needed to finance it.

It leaves an estimated general revenue balance of $25,198,000 as legislative leeway and takes into account a $20 million safe operating reserve for emergencies.

The Governor's budget was put on legislators' desks and his message was read to them. The total compares with 1966-67 appropropations of $977,986,870. About $29 million of this will lapse as unspent.

Highlights of his recommendations included a 5 per cent salary increase for state employes all up and down the line, a $3,000 a year minimum for full time employes, and capital improvements totaling $85.5 million for state agencies and institutions.

Of this amount, $68,241,501 would come from general revenue (tax) money and the rest from federal and other funds.

About half $34,200,240--would go to the state's universities and colleges, and the rest to other state agencies.

The Governor told the Legislature the budget had been prepared only after careful review and hearings. He concluded he could recommend expenditures for nine new programs.

"The decade in which we are living," his message said, "might well be called the 'soaring sixties'. New ideas and new techniques are playing a part in the steadily expanding economy of Missouri and at the same time new aspirations are being experienced and higher goals are being demanded by the citizens of our state.

"Individuals, businesses and governments must anticipate and adapt to this headlong rush to what we hope will be more pleasant, more secure and more meaningful living."

"These are not times for timidity, but Missouri's solid fiscal future requires us to confine ourselves to cautious prophecy."

If all appeals for expanded programs were adopted, he said a sharp increase in taxes would be necessary.

But with $519 million from general revenue, $265, from high way, public funds and $331 million from federal money, he found room for nine new programs, most of them involving increased aid for education and welfare.

Here they are:

(1) A $20,760,000 increase in the state school aid foundation program. This includes a change in the basic formula of $2.7 million, an increase of 2.9 million based on current instead of last year's attendance, $5,162,000 for state aid to kindergarten pupils and $9,975,000, mostly for increases in teachers' salaries. This would bring the total increase in the last three years to more than $45 million.

(2) Allow old age assistance clients or other welfare recipients to live with their families and still get state aid — long a popular proposal in the legislature. Grants under this change would average about $40 a month of which $32.50 would come from federal funds. The state's share would be about $900,000 a year.

(3) Pay doctors for treating assistance patients at a state cost of about $1,577,000 a year. This is a limited approach to the problems raised by Title 19 of the Medicare law in its 1970 requirements.

(4) Out-patient hospital service to welfare recipients on a 50-50 federal matching basis. This program designed especi-

Schools, Roads Welfare Covered

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes recommended a broad program to the new 1967 Legislature today, ranging from toll roads and more state school aid to more liberal welfare laws.

He cautioned the lawmakers that everything could not be done at once and their enactments must be kept within the state's financial abilities. The Governor will present his budget Thursday and it is expected to be of record size, but he recommended no tax increases.

The Governor's program includes a recommendation that the constitution be changed to allow general obligation bond issues to be adopted by a simple majority instead of a two-thirds vote-something the Legislature has never agreed to in the past.

It was the one major objective the Governor failed to achieve in the 1965 session. Most legislators have been talking in terms of a 60 per cent majority but the Governor told them:

"It is not fair, consistent or desirable in a democracy that one person's vote be allowed to nullify two opposing ballots cast by other citizens."

The Governor's 12-page message was set for delivery at 2 p. m. soon after the Legislature convened at noon to get organized.

Most of what Hearnes recommended were things he has been talking about for months. There were few surprises but he hinted he might have more recommendations later.

"The legislation I recommended for your consideration today" he said "is in reality a response to the transition and development in our understanding and our knowledge during the last few years.

"Some of these recommendations reflect problems which should be attacked promptly. Others call attention to legislation overdue, and some anticipate needs which will be urgent all too soon."

Much of the message was devoted to improved school and welfare aid, but the Governor's first recommendations was "that legislation be enacted to authorize the establishment of turnpikes and to place the economic burden of construction and maintenance directly upon those who use them and benefit by them."

He said such a toll road system is necessary "because such an expanded system of primary roads cannot be met by current or predicted tax revenues."

Turning to schools, he recommended further increases in state aid "as rapidly as state funds will allow."

Specifically he urged:

(1) A revision of the foundation program formula to provide higher flat grand payments.

(2) Basing state aid on current enrollments for the fastest growing schools — those whose enrollment has increased by 400 or more or 10 per cent in the last year.

(3) State aid for kindergarten pupils-especially in view of the fact that the first kindergarten was established in Missouri.

(4) Improvement in the state teachers' retirement program.

(5) Formal ratification of the Interstation Compact.

(6) A "shared time" law that would permit handicapped or educationally deprived children to attend both private or parochial and public schools during the six-hour full attendance day that is now required. A similar bill stirred up a controversy in the last session and failed to pass.

Then the Governor turned to a proposal that has been popular in past Legislatures but never has passed—a plan to let welfare recipients live in the same home with their relatives. But he imposed a limit.

He suggested the present "total income in the household" provision be changed so that only actual support, maintenance and income available to the welfare recipient be counted in considering the contributions of relatives.

Other recommendations in the welfare included.

Payment to physicians for their treatment of patients getting assistance.

Out-patient hospital care for those on the assistance rolls—a program designed to help St. Louis and Kansas City especially.

Assistance payments to those over 65 in state mental institutions, with the aid of federal funds now available.

Medical care for the blind from the blind pension fund.

Aid to dependent children in homes with an unemployed father so fathers won't have to desert their families to make them eligible for aid.

A graduated scale of payments to nursing homes for their welfare patients, depending on the professional classification of the homes. Payments would range from $110 for domiciliary homes up to $175 a month for intensive treatment homes.

Returning to a favorite theme, the Governor recommended establishment of a new Department of Community Affairs to aid all local governments and to include present state and regional planning activities.

He said a series of other measures would be introduced later to strengthen local governments.

As in the last session, the Governor recommended a tax break for employers under the unemployment compensation program. He recommended use of the lower of two tax tables whenever the unemployment trust fund reaches 6 per cent of total taxable wages instead of the present 7½ per cent requirement.

He also suggested an increase in jobless payments based on a flexible maximum equal to 50 per cent of the average weekly wage paid in Missouri. The present law limits payments to $45 but the average weekly wage is $111.

In addition to the majority bond vote proposal, the Governor said Missouri should adopt a governorship succes-

Woman Flees House Flames

Smoke fumes in a burning house awakened its only occupant in time for her to save her life late Tuesday night in the Smith addition.

Mrs. Willie Burton, 518 Smith, ran from her bedroom through leaping flames in the living room to escape the blaze through the front door. She was awakened after 11 p.m. The fire singed some of her hair as she fled.

Heavy fire damage was caused to the furniture and house. Mrs. Burton had lived there for the past four months. The single story wood frame dwelling was in a run down condition prior to the fire. It is owned by L.I. Denton of East Prairie.

Sikeston volunteer firemen fought the blaze for more than an hour.

The fire is believed to have started from a wood stove.

Mrs. Burton said she did not know how it started.

Cape Man Killed In Illinois Crash

OLNEY, Ill. (AP) - A man was killed Tuesday in a head-on car-truck collision on Illinois 130, three miles south of Olney.

Richland County authorities said the victim was Dale D. Littleton, 43, of Cape Girardeau, Mo. He was apparently on his way to work at the International Shoe Company plant here.

The truck driver, Ernest J. Moreland of Springfield, Ill., was not injured.

3 Fined for Drunkenness

DEXTER -- Three persons have been fined for drunkenness, including a truck driver for Swift and Company.

Donald Shaw, 31, was charged with drunkenness Sunday following an accident on One Mile Road. Police found him in a Swift and Company egg truck, which was in a ditch. Shaw, who sustained a broken hand, was fined $25 for drunkenness.

James L. Gibson, 45, was picked up at his home yesterday and charged with being drunk and disorderly. Police answered a complaint call by Gibson's wife. He was fined $10.

Also fined $10 for being drunk and disorderly yesterday was Nelson McNeeley, 41, who was picked up by police at the corner of Stoddard and Poplar.

Sikeston Boy Be in Washington Parade

The city council last night agreed to allow a boy to appear in the National School Boy Safety Patrol parade and presented a certificate to Harold Vogel, civil defense director.

In other action, the council passed a resolution calling for the construction of curb and guttering on School street from Gladys to Ruth, turned down an application for a five per cent beer license, and passed an ordinance levying a special assessment on a sanitary sewer in Clayton Heights.

The council was notified by the National School Boy Safety Patrol in Washington, D.C., that Sikeston will be eligible to send one boy to the annual parade in May in Washington, D.C. Expenses will be paid by the Missouri chapter of the Automobile Association of America.

The council approved a motion to send him.

Patrol members from each elementary school will choose the representative.

A certificate of acknowledge from the Missouri Civil Defense department was presented by Mayor Kendall Sikes to Vogel as civil defense director. The appointment occurred Oct. 3, 1966.

An application for a five per cent beer license by Orval R. Shamblin, the new owner of Mr. C's IGA, 1043 South Main, was turned down.

The council discussed the application and agreed there was a weakness in the city's ordinance, which allows one license for each 1,250 persons according to the last census. The city has issued 11 such licenses, the legal limit.

Mayor Sikes said he felt the ordinance does an injustice to a person who purchases a business which previously sold beer. The license does not transfer with a change in ownership. Mr. C's IGA had a five-per cent license under the former ownership.

The council voted to let the ordinance stand and turned down the application. It granted Shamblin permission to sell his stock of beer.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
A MAN WHO'S HARD TO LIKE

The board of vice presidents of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters meets in Hollywood, Fla., today.

Unless you are one of the 1.7 million members of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Warehousemen, and Helpers, you will probably find James Riddle Hoffa a hard man to like. Yet in his current fight to postpone his date with the jailhouse he is receiving rather ironic support.

Representatives of thousands of employers who will negotiate with the Teamsters on a new contract beginning Jan. 17 met in Washington on Dec. 20. They said that the imminent jailing of Jimmy Hoffa is coming at a critical time. Bargaining without Hoffa, in the words of one employer, "could be along a course of treacherous pitfalls for everybody." The industry leaders did decline "unanimously to intervene in behalf of Hoffa" to get his incarceration pushed back beyond the time when present Teamsters labor agreements expire - March 31.

This idea that somebody may be a monster but at least he's our monster is not new in labor-management history, of course. But to the credit of Hoffa it must be said that he keeps his members in line, that he honors his contracts, and that in management's eyes he is as dependable as he is tough.

The U.S. Supreme Court on Dec. 12 upheld a 1964 jury tampering conviction against Hoffa. Then on Dec. 21, Justice Potter Stewart, who had written the 4-to-1 decision (Justices Fortas and White not participating, Chief Justice Warren dissenting), gave Hoffa a lift. The original deadline for filing a petition for a rehearing in the Marble Palace was pushed back to Feb. 4. The Court will not begin its February sessions until Feb. 13, so that means that Hoffa has received a reprieve of about a month.

Four trucking executives appeared on a National Broadcasting Company nationally televised program Dec. 15 to argue strongly that jailing Hoffa during the forthcoming negotiations would greatly reduce the chances of a mutually acceptable settlement. Industry sources have said that those most eager to keep Hoffa on the scene were smaller company executives who are close to him or who are most vulnerable than are big company generals.

Hoffa faces eight years on the jury conviction, five years if convicted on another federal charge, and a possible additional five years barring him - under the Landrum-Griffin Act - from any elective office in the union. What happens in the Teamsters if the Big H goes to the pokey?

Nobody in Washington really knows, but the bets are that Jimmy won't be able to run the union from prison. There is almost as much doubt that his handpicked successor, Frank E. Fitzsimmons, will be able to maintain the firm control that Hoffa established. Some see as inevitable that the chain of command will be shattered, and the real power will be returned to the regional Teamster barons who had it before Dave Beck and after him Jimmy Hoffa welded it to Washington.

In any event, Jimmy's passing will be lamented. Such conservative voices as Time (Dec. 23), U.S. News & World Report (Dec. 26), and Business Week (Dec. 17) already have expressed extreme dubiety about the upcoming labor contract negotiations if Jimmy's got to go.

THE NEW CAR STANDARDS

Automobile makers have until Tuesday (Jan. 3) to comment upon new federal safety standards and suggest modifications. The National Highway Safety Agency will make these standards final on Jan. 31, effective for 1968, model cars scheduled to start production in August.

Automobile safety would seem to require coldly logical treatment. Instead it has become a matter of high controversy, as evidenced even in advance of the imminent issuance of federal safety standards for the 1968 car models.

What is happening now is comparable to the squabble over the new safety laws adopted by the 89th Congress. At first spokesmen for the industry expressed firm opposition to any federally written standards. Later the softer self-policing approach was broached. Still later industry wanted to get right in there pitching - establishing and writing safety standards.

Indeed, in design of the 1967 models the industry put great emphasis on safety. Part of the innovations were already dictated by specifications of the General Services Administration for cars bought by the federal government. Standard features on all 1967 models are a dual system of brakes, a steering wheel and column that "give" in head-on collisions, and a system of warning lights that will flash all four turn signals simultaneously if the car stalls on the road. Other new features - some of which had been optional before - are stronger latches and hinges to hold doors shut in event of accident, recessed instrument and control knobs, bigger outside rear-view mirror, and multiple-speed windshield wiper and washer.

Detroit intelligence had indicated that the new federal standards would follow closely those of the GSA. Then on Dec. 3 the National Highway Safety Agency dropped a small bomb. Dr. William Haddon, Jr., agency director, in a speech before industry leaders in Detroit, proposed 23 safety standards for all cars that in general were much tougher than the GSA regulations.

Admitting it was an "emotional thing" with him, Henry Ford II on Dec. 14 attacked the Haddon standards as "unreasonable, arbitrary, and technically not feasible."

Ford complained that the industry was not given enough lead time to meet the new standards. "This industry is important to the economy of the United States," Ford said. "If production lines are closed down because we cannot meet the standards, it will have serious effect."

Auto industry critic Ralph Nader promptly branded the Ford statement "industrial extortion." Americans for Democratic Action called it "a heavy-handed attempt at blackmail reminiscent of the tactics employed by the robber barons."

Ford gave no specifics, but Will Scott, in charge of auto safety for Ford's car and truck group, spelled out some of the company's objections on Dec. 16. Others followed suit. One company complained that strict enforcement would drive it out of business.

The Haddon rules undoubtedly will be softened by Jan. 31. But the federal agency is expected to continue its general hard-nosed approach.

While the new standards were under consideration in Congress, Car Life editorialized: "The safety inquisitors are asking for a veritable Sherman tank of an automobile." Replied Dr. Haddon: "Without providing Sherman tank design, you can protect all riders from severe injuries."

Evidence That The U.S.A. Is "Constitutionally Christian."

RHODE ISLAND (Constitution, 1963 supp.)

We, the people of the state of Rhode Island. . .grateful to Almighty God for the civil and religious liberty which He hath so long permitted us to enjoy, and looking to Him for a blessing upon our endeavors to secure and transmit the same . . .(establish this Constitution.) Preamble to Constitution.

Whereas Almighty God hath created the mind free; and all attempts to influence it by temporal punishments or burdens, or by civil incapacitations, tend to beget habits of hypocrisy and meanness; and whereas a principal object of our venerable ancestors, in their migration to this country and their settlement of this state, was, as they expressed it, to hold forth a lively experiment, that a flourishing civil state may stand and be best maintained with full liberty in religious concernments; we, therefore, declare that no man shall be compelled to frequent or to support any religious worship, place, or ministry whatever, except in fulfillment of his own voluntary contract; nor enforced, restrained, molested, or burdened in his body or goods; nor disqualified from holding any office; nor otherwise suffer on account of his religious belief; and that every man shall be free to worship God according to the dictates of his own conscience, and to profess and by argument to maintain his opinion in matters of religion; and that the same shall in no wise diminish, enlarge, or effect his civil capacity. Art I, sec. 3.

ONE OF THE best-loved of the Christmas superstitions is the belief that on Christmas Eve the Christ child wanders over the earth, bearing a bundle of evergreens on his shoulder. He stops at every house which is willing to welcome him, and brings blessings to those who dwell therein. Those who wish to signify that he will be welcome in their home place lighted candles in the window to guide the Christ child on his way. Although the custom of placing candles in the windows originated many centuries ago, it is still extensively observed in all parts of the world, even where its first significance is no longer remembered.

A young San Francisco lady, wearing a topless dress, went for a walk. It was a pleasant day and she walked too far and become tired. So she decided to rest in a beautiful church on the avenue. As she entered the usher attempted to stop her but she walked right past and sat down in one of the front pews.

The usher followed her and said "You can't come in to the church like this." She replied: "I have a perfect right." Yes, I know, and your left is pretty good," he replied, "but you're not wearing a hat."

THE QUESTION OF USER CHARGES

Last May President Johnson, in a special transportation message to Congress, urged the imposition of new and increased user charges on carriers operating over publicly-provided road, air and water facilities. Congress did not act on this during the first session. But it will be up again during the second session and the reason for the Presidential request should be thoroughly understood by the public, which has the most at stake.

In the President's words, user charges ". . .assess the cost of special services and facilities against those who reap the benefits, instead of imposing unwarranted burdens on the general taxpayer. They restrain the demands of special groups for expanded services by establishing the principle that the beneficiaries pay at least part of the costs. In the case of transportation, they help to eliminate the economic distortions which result when competing modes of transportation rely in varying degrees on facilities or services providing by the Government."

There is still another important aspect to this matter. The President recognized it when he wrote: "The absence of a fair system of user charges strongly affects the ability of various segments of the transportation industry to compete and obscures the inherent advantages of some modes of transportation. As a result, it unnecessarily increases the cost of transportation to the economy."

A few figures demonstrate how important the problem is. In 1965 federal outlays for road, air and water facilities came to $5.6 billion. Outlays for these facilities by all government units, states and local communities included, reached $16.2 billion, with highways accounting for 87 per cent of the total. A substantial part of that huge sum goes for the benefit of commercial transportation agencies using the facilities. A system of fair and equitable user chages, such as the President has recommended, is needed in the public interest.

Definition -- BILL -- "I understand Henry is roughing it these days."

WILL -- "Roughing it' my eye. He means he is turning down his electric blanket one notch."

H. L. Hunt Says

DEFINING THE PUBLIC INTEREST

Some politicians would have us believe that they alone have a clear concept of what the "public interest" actually is and how it can best be served. Proceeding on this theory, they frequently demand that some U.S. industry "act in the public interest" by not raising prices.

In a free economy like ours prices go up and down. In a period of inflation like the present they are much more likely to go up than down. But in any period they are bound to fluctuate in accordance with changes in supply and demand.

Recently the Federal Government has been trying to hold prices level even as it is increasing the quantity of money. During the last six years the combined policies of the government and the Federal Reserve have resulted in an increase of 52 per cent in the supply of money. This increase naturally has cheapened the value of the dollar.

Government-dictated prices are not in the public interest, which would be served much better by a halt to heavy deficit spending by the government. That is a prime cause of hurtful inflation.

There are those in government who look constantly for excuses to impose more and more controls on the American people; for their own good, of course! But many are not ready to accept the definition of public interest that is put forward by advocates of rigid controls.

Only a free price system can provide assurance that the thousands of different commodities and services provided today can be produced in the proportions demanded by the buying public. HLH

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Inside Story of New Reuther Strategy.

Washington, D. C.: -- Insiders now are certain Walter Reuther, the oldest youth in the labor movement, now is in deep trouble on his home grounds. There is sharp disaffection inside his union. There have been serious financial difficulties, what with the liquidation of four banks in which the United Auto Workers (UAW) either owned thousands of shares or had millions of dollars on deposit.

Even worse for the copper-haired militant is a wave of mockery never before encountered by the commandant of the original auto plant sitins 30 years ago. Tens of thousands of reprints of a satiric piece -- titled "Reuther Backs Down: The Case of the Timid Cowboy" -- are being distributed across the land by skilled auto workers now opposed to the UAW president.

"This could be called the saga of Walter the Kid, whose lip is greater than his dexterity on the draw, vs. George Meany, alias Mean Meany . . still the fastest draw in the labor movement," says the needling piece.

"The Kid, being fast in the mouth and slow with the action, allowed as how the time had come for a showdown, letting his verbosity run away with his sense. He challenged Meany to a shootout at the corral."

It then describes Reuther's rout and advises finally, "Don't lip off unless you have something to lip off about," after using phrases like Reuther "chickened out" while "Meany stood in the center of the street at high noon and waited. . ."

This mockery, when added to the fact that some 750,000 UAW members were born about the time Reuther's reputation was burgeoning and hardly know the man who will be 60 years old when he leads them into battle against the auto companies, could well be damaging to his bargaining power next September.

Thus, there is little doubt among the handful of national labor leaders who have access to Reuther's own inner circle that the Detroiter's year - end "White Paper," the searing of the AFL-CIO, was not aimed at its president, George Meany, but at the automobile manufacturing industry.

Several sources close to Reuther, far closer to him than most would believe, confirmed this to this columnist.

As his own colleagues see his open letter, it is part of a new long series of public thrusts to stay on the front pages between now and next summer to remake his image.

It is one of a series of imagery moves to remake the Dorian Gray picture of "Walter" as the militant he "really is." It is an effort in a continuing process to have him appear to be the symbol of challenge to the status quo, the firebrand for America's youth, the tough bargainer, the crusader slashing at the elder statesmen now leading the AFL-CIO.

It is aimed at having platoons of newsmen from the printed media and the electronic field, trot behind him and crowd his press conference wherever he goes.

All this is apparent from his "White Paper." It was carefully planned as a "shocker". On the Thursday before the New Year's week-end, newsmen on all coasts and in several big cities were alerted. Special agencies in the Midwest and Washington were retained for the distribution of the letter.

Then the UAW headquarters, Solidarity House, was shut for four days. Silence.

An analysis of the "White Paper" reveals that Reuther truly was whirling up a confetti storm.

Officials in the AFL-CIO national headquarters anonymously made some fascinating points which will haunt Reuther.

The Detroiter has only himself to blame if there has been no drive to unionize the non-union working people. Reuther for 11 years now has been permanent chairman of the AFL-CIO national Organization Committee -- a standing committee he could call into action anytime he wanted.

He hasn't.

Reuther could easily have rectified any domestic policy of the merged Federation anytime he wanted. For 11 years he has been permanent chairman of the AFL-CIO national Economic Police Committee, also a standing committee.

As for the AFL-CIO Executive Committee, he has been on it for 11 years and has said nothing about its activity.

As for foreign affairs, except on one occasion, he has voted scores of times -- every time -- for the official AFL-CIO policy. This has been the case for 11 years.

Rarely, if ever, has he raised any of the issues in the Executive Council sessions which he has raised in his letter. In fact, he has been quite friendly to George Meany.

For example, as recently as December 15, he joined Meany in a private lunch to former Senator Paul Douglas in a local hotel. Reuther greeted Meany warmly and then both men sat at the sides of Mr. Douglas, as snug as bugs in a rug, as Benjamin Franklin would say.

Furthermore, says one of the top AFL-CIO men, there has been organization. The federation is the only labor movement in the free world to gain members (in industrial lands). The movements in England, France, Sweden, Italy, etc., lost ground.

So they view Reuther's blasts really as the opening of his campaign to gain strength amongst his own people in preparation for the bargaining with -- and strike against -- the auto industry.

For the moment he is in difficulty, and with paternal kindness the elder statesmen, like good football pros, don't plan to rough him up. They understand.

MANCHESTER, England (AP) — Geographically, the Southern Hotel is appropriately down south-way down yonder in South Manchester.

Why?

"I'm probably the only middle-aged, South-loving, frustrated English cowboy you've ever met," explained John Ridley 45, "and I'm the proprietor of the Southern hotel.

"I like the South. I like the Southwest. I've been fascinated by everything Southern and Southwestern since I was a child. But, it was just pure luck when I got the Southern Hotel. You see, it had been named that before I got it. I suppose it's because it's in South Manchester."

In addition to being the proprietor of the Southern Hotel, Ridley is also an official of the Quick-Draw Club in Blackpool.

"We started the club four years ago," he said. "I practice in my cellar, get through about 1,000 rounds of ammunition every week."

Then the members own guns?

"Loads of them. I've got a single-hand rig and a twin-rig. The twin-rig is for the two-gun man. I confess, I'm a two-gun English cowboy."

And horses?

"Oh, yes, we've got horses. Not only do most of us have horses, but we have rifles, real American Western rifles and for that matter, handmade leather holsters."

But isn't all this very costly?

"You're right it is. Just ask my wife. She's giving me hell about it, pardner."

Ridley said he wanted to get one thing definitely understood.

"I like all Americans," he insisted. "I just happen to favor the South.

"During the war in Italy, I was in a hospital in Caserta. It was my birthday and they let me out on crutches.

"I met up with some of your boys in a little cafe and got to talking and I said I'd met American men, but I'd never even seen an American girl.

"A big sergeant said, 'We'll fix that.' Do you know, those American soldiers picked up my crutches and they picked me up too and they took me to a place where your WACs were stationed.

"Well, sir, those soldiers knocked on a door and we all went in and sat around for a few minutes being entertained by two delightful American girls."

"The sergeant was a fellow named McDonnell from Texas. Well, he disappeared and after a while I began to get embarrassed at taking up so much of these girls' time.

"Just then some sliding doors opened and I saw about 20 or 30 of these American girls. They were standing around their dining table and on the table was a cake and on the cake there was some candles. They began singing 'Happy birthday.'"

"I cried like a child," said Ridley.

Have any Americans ever been in the Southern Hotel?

"Not that I know of," he replied, "but I'd be proud to welcome them."

And if they were Southerners?

"The first Southerner who comes in here, or for that matter, the second or the third one, well, if he wants to drink I'll promise he can drink all he wants to—and it won't cost him a penny. Why, I'd be honored, suh."

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON - The amazing manner in which Congressman Adam Clayton Powell, the Harlem globe-trotter, played fast and loose with the taxpayers' money on his junkets has been disclosed in vivid detail behind the closed doors of the House Administration Committee.

In some cases fistfuls of airline tickets were taken out in his subordinates' names but used by Powell.

Here is some of the cross-examination of Powell's employees:

"There's a record that one time I bought about 20 to 30 tickets and gave them all to him (Powell," testified Chuck Stone, Powell's administrative assistant.

"Whose names were on the tickets?" Stone was asked.

"Swann, Clark, Lewis, mine." He cited members of Powell's staff. "They were for people other than staff people?" Stone was asked. "No, they were all for him."

"It was necessary to put names in there as to who was going to be traveling?" Stone was asked.

"Yes."

"Whose names would you put in?"

"I put in the person's name who was going to travel, unless I put in whatever name the chairman ordered me to put in."

"What names would he order you to put in?"

"My name, Lewis, Clark, Swann, Warren," Stone replied.

"Did the persons whose names appeared on the ticket perform the travel?"

"Not very frequently; no, they didn't," replied Stone.

"Who would be frequently performing the travel on those tickets?"

"The chairman."

"Who else?"

"That is all."

BEAUTIFUL "MISS OHIO"

Miss Huff to whom Stone referred is Miss Corinne Huff, the first Negro to win the Miss Ohio Beauty Contest and who has been a frequent traveler with the Harlem congressman to Europe and the British Bahamas.

The testimony intrigued Rep. Paul Jones, D-Mo. He asked: "Those 20 tickets you bought at one time - were they all for the same destination?"

"I think they were a variety, sir," replied Stone. "I think it's like Washington to Miami, and New York to Miami. It was a combination - different combinations you might say."

The Subcommittee, under the chairmanship of Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, had done a thorough job of checking travel accounts. Committee counsel confronted Stone with the fact that nine flights appeared to have been made by Stone and Mrs. Emma T. Swann to the same destination.

"We have a substantial number of trips between here and New York allegedly performed by you and Mrs. Swann," Stone was told. "Did you ever travel with Mrs. Swann on any trip whatsoever?"

"A couple of trips I went with her, but not as a rule," Stone replied.

"What explanation do you have to offer for the name of Swann being on a ticket which is on the same flight with you in nine instances?"

"The explanation is that I don't think I took those trips," replied Rep. Powell's administrative assistant.

Mrs. Swann is the receptionist for the Committee on Education and Labor of which Powell is the chairman. She was recorded as having made 40 flights between April 30, 1965, through July 31, 1966 - 18 between Washington and Miami; 30 between New York and Washington; one from Buffalo to Washington, and one from Buffalo to New York city.

"Her duties as receptionist required her to perform no official travel," commented an administration committee member.

When put on the witness stand, Mrs. Swann was asked:

"Did you make these trips on committee business?"

"I have made none on committee business," was her frank reply.

"You have made none on committee business?"

"None whatsoever."

"Were you aware that your name might have been used in connection with travel by others in the office?"

"No, I was not."

OTHER ANONYMOUS JUNKETS

Russell Derrickson, staff director of Powell's Education and Labor Committee, as revealed by Congressman Hays's Investigating Committee, had taken 26 airplane trips between New York and Washington from June 25, 1965, through Sept. 20, 1966. Derrickson said he "performed none of the travel shown by this audit."

Michael Schwartz, counsel on labor management for Powell's committee, gave a deposition in which he said he had received payment of vouchers for subsistence and expenses for a 16-day trip to Miami in June, 1966, on committee business, but no record of his transportation turned up. What occupied him in the resort city of Miami in regard to labor management for 16 beautiful sunshine days remained a mystery.

Vidal Chacon was paid $530.01 in April, 1965, for doing nothing; or, as the investigating committee put it in more eloquent language, "He apparently rendered no service whatsoever." Powell had kept him hanging around Washington unoccupied.

Talking about doctors, do you know how difficult it is to get a specialist nowadays? You're even to get his nurse on the phone. I called a specialist's office a few weeks ago, and I asked the nurse for an appointment. "It's my heart," I said. "I'd like to see the doctor soon as possible." There was a pause, then she said, "How about two weeks from Thursday?" I said, "Swell, I'll have the hearse drop me off." The nurse said, "Is it an emergency?" I truthfully answered "No." Whereupon she asked, "Where are you now?" "Under a truck," I answered.

EDDIE DOUCETTE is giving tips to housewives on how to make a baked fruited meat loaf on a television program. The chef will star in IGA's "Cooking Can Be Fun" program at the armory Jan. 18.

'Cooking Can Be Fun' Program Set Jan. 18

Ladies who have any doubt whether kitchen chores can be fun, should see cooking expert Eddie Doucette in his 'Cooking Can Be Fun' show coming to the armory Jan. 18.

That's the advice of Orville Shamblin, owner-operator of Shamblin's IGA Foodliner and coordinator of IGA's "Cooking Can Be Fun" program.

The show is part of a series of consumer education programs for housewives called, "Ladies Fair". The program, which will run throughout 1967 will include informative sessions such as cooking, fashion, cosmetic, meat and produce -- subjects which have an appeal to women. IGA food stores in this area are sponsoring the "Ladies Fair" program in an effort to determine how IGA food stores can best serve the shopping needs of the consumer. Each program will have a period devoted to open discussions of what housewives want in supermarket products and services.

Doucette is a combination chef, showman, humorist and goodwill ambassador. He stars in his own television show on cooking and has appeared on such national network programs as "The Mike Douglas Show". His popularity with American homemakers prompted the department of agriculture to send him on a goodwill trip to England last year where he worked with British caterers, chefs, and housewives in the preparation of recipes using U.S. food exports to that country.

A consultant chef for the Independent Grocers' Alliance, Doucette has been a part of the culinary world since he was 16 years old, although at that time his experience was limited to washing pots and pans after school in a West Newton, Mass., restaurant.

Today, the 54-year old chef is a food preparation expert. He first gained culinary notice in New England, where he eventually became president of Boston's Epicurean club. He is vice president (and former president) of the Chefs' of Cuisine Association of Chicago and he is chairman of Les Amis d' Escoffier of Chicago.

In recent years, Doucette has made radio and television guest appearances locally and nationally in addition to cooking demonstrations before thousands of housewives across the nation.

Doucette will bring along his own special brand of humor when he entertains at the armory. "He had the women in stitches", wrote one newspaper reporter after a recent Doucette show in Pennsylvania. "He made everything from a pizza to a vegetable centerpiece right on the stage and the women loved him for it."

Women attending the cooking show probably will learn such secrets as turning a red beet into a decorative flower and a cabbage into a piece of sculpture. And besides having a good time, persons attending the "Cooking Can Be Fun" show will have an opportunity to win hundreds of dollars in valuable prizes, including a New Dawn fashion mink stole.

Tickets for the "Cooking Can Be Fun" show may be obtained at IGA stores in this area, according to Shamblin. Ladies groups in Sikeston are also cooperating in the program by sending tickets and reservation cards to members of their groups.

Shamblin says that women wishing to attend the program, should get their tickets immediately. Housewives may attend either a noon luncheon or dinner program at 6 p.m. at the armory, according to their convenience. There is no cost or obligation.

Doctor Believes Clothes Reveal Personalities

NEW YORK (AP) — A man who wants to be boss at home should choose a wife who wears hats. He should beware of those determinedly independent lasses with hair fluttering unfettered to their shoulders.

That is the advice of Dr. William Jennings Bryan Jr., a California doctor, lawyer, and hypnotist who makes instant personality appraisals by taking into account the clothes people wear.

This talent has been of particular value to F. Lee Bailey, the famous defense lawyer who has never lost a case. Although Bailey does not need any help in choosing a wife —he has a lovely one who wears hats —he has called upon Dr. Bryan on several occasions to help him select prospective jurors.

Dr. Bryan was with Bailey in Cleveland, Ohio, for the Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard trial and in Freehold, N.J., recently to assist in picking the jury which eventually acquitted Dr. Carl Coppolino of charges of having murdered a neighbor.

The portly 40-year-old doctor, who directs the American Institute of Hypnotism in Los Angeles, believes that although clothes do not make the man, they reveal almost unfailingly what the man is like.

"Suspect a person of having very little self-confidence if his dress is not characteristic of his profession," says the doctor.

"If a man is a banker and doesn't dress like the average one — expensive and conservative — then I conclude he doesn't really think of himself as a banker, or at least not a good one. He probably secretly believes he ought to be something else. He has problems".

As for women, he says, "The exhibitionist, the girl who flaunts her sex on the outside is covering up for a lack of fire on the inside."

The really sexy woman, he claims, is tastefully dressed, very well-groomed, a real Patrician. "She has confidence, self-knowledge, and with good reason."

That girl with free flowing hair and little use for hats is, in the doctor's opinion, young, independent and determined not to be dominated by men.

How does Dr. Bryan dress?

"I'm the Ivy League type dresser. I like university life. I am fascinated by minds, and how these can help people achieve their goals."

Jane Wyman, Philip Conner Pledge Vows in Kentucky

CADIZ, Ky. -- A large spray of yellow mums and gladioli flanked on either side by gold candelabra bearing yellow tapers and yellow satin bows, adorned the chancel of the Oak Grove Baptist church on Dec. 4, for the wedding of Miss Jane Wyman to Philip Conner.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Wyman of New Berlin, Ill., and the granddaughter of Mrs. J. T. Smith, route four, Sikeston, Mo. Miss Wyman is a 1964 graduate of Sikeston high school and is a junior at Murray State University in Murray, Ky.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Wilburn of East Prairie, Mo. He is a 1964 graduate of Trigg county high school and is also a junior at Murray State University.

The Rev. Earl Mitchell of Central City, Ky., officiated in the double ring ceremony. The Rev. Mr. Mitchell was formerly the minister of the Oak Grove church of which the groom is a member.

Miss Jane McDonald, organist, provided the pre-nuptial music. She rendered the selection, "O Perfect Love," following the closing prayer of the ceremony as well as the traditional wedding marches.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. The bride's dress was a basic street-length shirtwaist of white lace. Long sleeves with a narrow cuff, self-covered buttons, and a box-pleaded skirt enhanced its simplicity. The veil, fashioned after a chapel veil, was worn madonna fashion. The shoulder-length veil was made of tulle and was appliqued with matching lace from the dress. The dress, designed by Miss Wyman, was fashioned for her by her mother.

Miss Wyman carried a bouquet of yellow roses nestled in lily of the valley atop a matching lace covered Bible. The Bible was presented to Miss Wyman by the First Methodist church in Sikeston in 1964.

Miss Wyman chose Miss Patricia Watts as her only attendent. Miss Watts was attired in a long-sleeved, street-length ,skimmer of soft yellow chiffon over yellow satin, with satin accents at the neck and wrists. A yellow satin headband completed her attire. Miss Watts carried a single, long-stemmed yellow rosebud. She is a junior at Murray State University.

Conner chose his former roommate, D. Ellis Mueller, as his best man. Mueller is from Stanford, Conn., and is a junior at Murray State University. James Wyman, brother of the bride, and David Mitchell served as candlelighters and ushers.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Wyman chose a sheath dress of heather silk with a matching jacket. A matching hat, beige gloves, tapestry purse and shoes, and a shoulder corsage of soft yellow roses completed her attire.

Mrs. J. T. Smith, the bride's maternal grandmother, was attired in a plum shirtwaist dress with black accessories. A corsage of pink carnations completed her attire.

Mrs. Wilburn, the mother of the groom, wore a beige three-piece suit, with a brown velvet hat and matching lizard accessories. She wore a corsage of yellow feathered mums pinned at the shoulder.

Mrs. Floyd Sumner, grandmother of the groom, wore a black silk dress, with matching accessories. She wore a shoulder corsage of pink carnations.

A reception was held following the ceremony in the church education building. The table was overlaid in white. The tiered, all white wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom, was placed on a silver cake stand in the center of the table. On either side was placed a three-branched silver candelabra bearing yellow tapers and entwined with green fern. The punch bowl of yellow punch and ice ring of yellow roses was placed on one end of the table, and compotes containing nuts and mints were placed on the opposite end.

Mrs. Eugene Sumner, aunt of the groom, and Mrs. Buddy Smith, aunt of the bride, served tiny individual cakes topped with a yellow rosebud.

Miss Ava Eastin of Springfield, Ill., presided at the punch bowl. Miss Janie Sumner, cousin of the groom, presided at the guest book table overlaid in soft yellow linen and adorned with a silver candleholder bearing a single white taper. Scott Smith, cousin of the bride, and Christopher Sumner, cousin of the groom, passed rice bags among the guests.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. J. T. Smith and Harold Smith of Sikeston; Miss Rosalie Bollinger of Benton, Mo.; Mr. and Mrs. Buddy F. Smith and Scott of Tulsa, Okla.; Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Eastin and Miss Ava Eastin of Springfield, Ill.; Misses Pauline and Marguerite Wyman of Paris, Tenn.; the Rev. and Mrs. Earl Mitchell and David Mitchell of Central City, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Police, Miss Beth Cole, Thomas Tucker, Miss Patricia Watts, D. Limbaugh Stars In 80-77 Sikeston Win

By Dan Spears

MORLEY -- The Sikeston Bulldogs surprised the Scott Central Braves last night with an upset victory, 80-77. The Braves were rated number 10 in this week's Standard cage poll. Playing in overtime the B Dogs were defeated 63-61.

Harrington and Farris started the game off for the B Dogs each popping a bucket apiece. The Bulldogs held a three point lead with one minute 53 seconds remaining in the first quarter. McCord, getting the tip to begin the second period, started the Sikeston five rolling as it jumped to a 26-19 half time lead.

Adding eight points to its score, Sikeston led with 3:30 left to play in the third quarter 34-23. The period ended with Sikeston maintaining its lead 40-33.

Ed Cheek started the third quarter off in fine form, hitting a 30-foot jumper from the corner. Coming back strong, the Central quintet came within five points of the visitors 45-40 with 5 minutes 43 seconds remaining in the game.

Taking advantage of the breaks, the Braves closed the gap to tie the game with 47 seconds left 57-57.

Cheek broke the tie scoring on two free tosses. Lee from Scott Central came right back and tied it again on his two free throws 59-59 with 12 seconds left.

The final period ended in a tie 59-59.

The Braves' Lee was the first to score in the three-minute overtime. Stealing the ball and driving for an easy layup, Sikeston's Dennis Snelling evened the score at 61 all, with 40 left in the overtime. Putting the finishing touches on the game, was Central's Tom Boley as he netted a 10 foot jumper for a 63-61 final score.

Pete Harrington and Ed Cheek led the Bulldog scoring with 10 points apiece. Gilliland paced the Braves with 17.

Sikeston's Fred Townes got the opening tip and hit on a 10-foot jump shot and an easy layin to put the Bulldogs out front 4-0 in the opening minutes of the varsity game. C. H. Lambert pumped in a set shot for two more for the Dogs as the score went to 6-1 in favor of Sikeston. Hitting 6 quick buckets the Braves raced to a 17-13 score with 3 minutes left in the first quarter. Sikeston held a 10-point lead at the quarter 26-16.

The Sikeston five scored pretty freely in the second quarter. With four minutes remaining in the half, Josh Boyd swished a 20-foot jump shot from the corner to raise the score to a 38-28 Bulldog lead.

Having a minute and a half left in the quarter the Braves cut the lead down to 42-38. The first half ended with Sikeston possessing a one point lead 45-44.

Scott Central took its first lead as it came out at the half 46-45 with 7 minutes still on the clock. Wiss hit a jumper only to have the Brave's Owens come down and hit a layup to keep his team in the lead 50-48.

With 4 minutes, 50 seconds left in the third quarter Terry Bell from Scott Central sank a 20-foot set shot. Teaming up Bulldogs Lance Walters and Wayne Limbaugh, put a quick four points through the nets, to put Sikeston back into the lead 54-52. Sikeston still held on to their two point lead at the end of the third quarter 61-59.

The Braves tied the game once more early in the final period 63-63. Scott Central took the lead with 3 minutes remaining 70-69. Townes dunked a free throw for Sikeston to tie the game 70-70 with 2 minutes left.

Swapping free throws and hitting a greater percentage the Bulldogs pulled out to a three point lead with a minute and 15 seconds to go. Owens from Central rebounded a missed free throw and laid it back in to put the Braves within one 74-73.

Having a chance to tie the game with 45 seconds left to play in the game, Byrd missed the first of a one and one shot. Holding a one point lead Townes rebounded Lambert's shot a put it back up for a score and the Dogs led 78-75 with 20 seconds to play.

Limbaugh, trying to stall the ball in the final seconds was fouled. He hit both of his free throws with 10 seconds left. Scott Central's Byrd brought the ball down court and hit a 15-foot jump from the corner to round out the scoring and giving Sikeston a victory.

Paving the way for the victors with Limbaugh with 20 points and Townes with 17. Owens netted 25 for Central.

The Bulldogs next game is on the road. They will play the Kennett Indians Jan. 9 in a SEMO Conference game.

Whitton Predicts Shift In Highway Emphasis

WASHINGTON (AP) - Rex M. Whitton, whose retirement as federal highway administrator has been announced by President Johnson, predicts a shift in emphasis in the nation's road-building program.

"I don't see an end to highway building," Whitton said in an interview. "People like to drive their automobiles. They like the freedom and independence of movement."

But future emphasis will shift from construction of major new routes - the interstate system to improvement of feeder and primary roads, he said.

Whitton's career as a highway engineer parallels closely the era of modern road building.

He began work on a Missouri highway survey team in 1920 when the federal-aid highway program was only four years old. For the last six years, he has directed the largest road building program ever undertaken by any nation - one that has been costing $4 billion a year.

Whitton is 68. Last Friday, when his retirement became effective, he rounded out 46 years and 8 months - to the day - in his career of highway work.

In announcing the resignation Sunday, Johnson told Whitton "the American highway system is unequalled in the world and your share in the credit for it is large." He wished Whitton well and said he hopes to call on him from time to time for advice.

The President did not name a successor for Whitton's $26,000-a-year post.

In the AP interview, Whitton said the recently announced cutback in the federal highway program and the impending switch of the Bureau of Public Roads to the new Department of Transportation had nothing to do with his decision to retire.

He said he told Secretary of Commerce John T. Connor - the bureau is part of the Commerce Department - last January that he wanted to retire during 1966.

His letter of resignation was dated Oct. 30, more than three weeks before the highway cutback was ordered.

"I want to quit while I'm still ahead of the game," Whitton said.

He plans to live in a newly purchased house in Independence, Mo., and look after three pieces of farm land he owns in Jackson County. He also hopes to do some highway consulting work.

FRATERNIZING WITH THE TROOPS, North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh chats with an antiaircraft gun crew. According to the caption accompanying the radiophoto broadcast from Hanoi by official Communist sources, the soldiers were "boundlessly elated" by the visit on the 22nd anniversary of North Vietnam's People's Army.

Your Dental Health

26 - Dental Bootlegers - Health Hazard

PRECEDE: The following article is being presented by The Daily Standard in cooperation with the Scott County Dental Society.

Ill-fitting dentures can be dangerous.

They can irritate the soft tissues of your mouth, destroy the bone under your gums; they even contribute toward the development of oral cancer.

A recent 2-year study of a group of oral cancer patients bears this out. The scientists reported that they have found a "significant relationship" between mouth irritations and cancer. Among the causes cited by the researchers were sharp edges on teeth or bridges and ill-fitting dentures.

When fitted by a dentist, artificial dentures contribute to your good health and your appearance.

Beware, however, of the store-front sign, advertisement or of the newspaper ad of the dental laboratory which reads, "Dental plates -- buy direct and save. Quick service. Easy Terms."

Beware of the promises of the unlawful operator who guarantees a "perfect fit" and that there is no need to see a "middle man" -- the dentist.

Beware, because the men who make these promises are dental "bootleggers," operating outside the law, with an annual take from an unknowning and unwary public estimated in the millions.

The dentures constructed by a dentist are made by a professional man who has had six to eight years of college-level study and has passed a state licensing examination to prove his competence.

The licensed dentist has studied the anatomy of the mouth. He understands how to examine and analyze the soft tissues and the bone which must support the denture. He understands the structure of the muscles and the jaw joints and how to determine the various relationships between these joints and muscles which the denture should maintain.

Actually, the construction of the denture is only a small part of a delicate and skillful operation.

First comes diagnosis -- determining the condition of the mouth that is to support the denture. There is also the vital check for mouth disorders which need corrective action for cancer, diseases of the tongue and other conditions. Next is the making of the impression. Every small detail of the gums and ridges must be outlined and accounted for.

From the impression, the dentist makes a cast, selecting artificial teeth appropriate to your mouth and face in size, shape, color and arrangement. If you need a partial denture, the teeth must be in harmony with your natural ones. It is only at this point that a laboratory technician can begin his work -- following the meticulous prescription of the dentist in the construction of the denture.

When the dentures have been completed by the technician the dentists adjusts them carefully in your mouth. After this "try-in" additional corrections can be made if needed.

Finally, the dentist will ask you to come back a few times for minor adjustments as your mouth gets accustomed to the new teeth, to insure correct fit and physiological suitability to chewing and swallowing actions in your particular case.

In this way your denture becomes a help, and not a hazard, to your health.

ALCOHOLISM MAJOR HEALTH PROBLEM
By Louise Chase
Women's Medical News Service

More than 5,000,000 Americans are suffering from a "serious, insidious and progressive disease" -- alcoholism. The estimate and warning comes from the American Medical Association which urges that symptoms of the disease be recognized and treated early enough to avoid permanent damage.

According to the AMA, alcoholism is an emotional illness which can be treated successfully although its causes are not fully understood. Among the early symptoms of the disease are increasing consumption of alcohol; necessity for a drink, particularly at a certain time of day, using alcohol as a drug rather than as a beverage; drinking in the morning or on awakening; getting drunk alone.

When these signs appear, it's urgent that expert help be obtained at once. Neither scloding nor sermonizing will help. Since alcoholism is an illness, the doctor is one major source of help. Effective, too, is Alcoholics Anonymous, which has had an encouraging record of success in working with alcolics; family service agencies; and community mental health organizations.

DISEASE TREATABLE

While alcoholism is treatable it is not curable. The only successful treatment known so far is total abstinence. "Alcohol is a chemical, a drug," the AMA points out, "and as with any addiction, abstinence is the only possible successful solution."

Alcoholics should be helped to understand that many illnesses, not just theirs, "necessitate a limitation on some of the desirable aspects of living." Cardiacs must avoid some sports, diabetics must control their diets. Alcoholics must not drink alcohol.

THINK BEFORE YOU DRINK

How high is your alcohol quotient? To find out, answer the following questions with a yes or no:

1) Is alcohol a stimulant?
2) Will you get as drunk on beer as by drinking the same amount of alcohol in stronger drinks?
3) Will you get drunker by switching drinks than by taking the same amount of alcohol in one form such as bourbon?
3) Should you wait at least three hours after drinking two highballs to be sure you can drive safely?
5) Is alcohol taken as a medicine necessary in the treatment for any disease?
6) Is it a good policy to take a few "shots" of whiskey to warm one up just before being exposed to very low temperatures?

STIMULATING ANSWERS

The correct answers, says the AMA, are as follows:

1. No. The apparent stimulation is due to lessening of the inhibitions by the narcotic action of alcohol.
2. No. The large amount of water in beer is reponsible for slower absorption of alcohol.
3. No. The intoxicating action depends upon the amount of alcohol regardless of the type of drink, assuming that all the drinks contain about the same amount of water.
4. Yes. The two highballs contain a total of about one ounce of pure alcohol. It takes about three hours to oxidize one ounce of alcohol.
5. No. "Alcohol is not a specific or cure for any disease, unless one considers 'worry' a disease, and a drugged indifference a cure."
6. No. The feeling of warmth after drinking is caused by the dilation of the superficial capillaries. This condition is associated with rapid loss of bodily heat.

Razorback Boar Killed

CASSVILLE, Mo. AP -- A big razorback boar was tracked down and killed Sunday, and farmers of Southwestern Missouri's Ozarks are much relieved.

"That blamed hog has run me out of my barn for the last time," exclaimed Harold Ray when he heard the news.

Oldtimers said it was the first true razorback they ever had seen in Missouri. They figured it had wandered up out of Arkansas.

The wild boar was nearly six feet long and weighed about 500 pounds. The carcass dressed out at 400 pounds.

For several years the animal had ranged a 20-square-mile area. Its great size, strength and three-inch tusks enabled it to tear down fences and raid feed supplies. The broken fences allowed domestic hogs to disappear in the tmber.

The boar challenged all who crossed its path, residents said. Coon hunters had to make sure their hounds were safe from it.

Six men from Shell Knob formed a posse Sunday. Tramping through six inches of snow, they found where the boar had been foraging near Ray's place and tracked him down in White Oak Hollow west of Shell Knob.

Two shots from a 30-30 rifle ended the boar's depredations.

THE

AUSTIN T. CUSHMAN
Chairman of the Board
Sears, Roebuck and Co.

MERCHANDISING

First, let me note with regret that in light of my retirement next month this is the last time I shall have the pleasure of participating with this distinguished panel in their semi-annual review of the business outlook. Next year, I will be sitting out in front with all you wonderful people who have received my crystal ball gazing with such understanding. Reminiscing about my freshman appearance with this group four years ago, I recall that I commented on the prevalence of a pessimistic attitude about impending business developments. My own views were more optimistic. As it happened, I was actually overconservative.

Now with expressions of doubt and uncertainty about the business outlook again being voiced more frequently than usual, I have the feeling this is where I came in. Again, I am confident that the next six months will see business continuing to prosper.

The year 1966 for retailers as a whole will turn out as another very good year, with about as high a percentage gain in sales as in 1965. The fact that price increases accounted for a larger part of the gain and that the upward thrust had moderated in recent months takes some, but certainly not all, of the bloom off the 1966 picture.

The productive resources of this great economy were strained to capacity this year. The growing requirements of the Vietnam war for manpower and defense good were superimposed upon an unprecedented volume of demand by consumers and business. Consumer buying was stimulated by a strong growth in income. Business continued to expand and modernize its capacity at a very high rate. Except for the unfortunate squeeze on the home-building industry, the economy generally has met the challenge of providing both guns and butter.

Price inflation was inevitable under these conditions. Rising costs of labor, raw materials, and borrowed funds are now biting deeper into profits. Business has to run faster to maintain its level of profit. The squeeze may be even tighter in 1967 as pressures for wage increases mount.

The demand for labor should continue to be strong enough to keep the unemployment rate at about its present level. Wages are generally expected to rise somewhat faster in 1967 than in 1966. However, we will not be able to find as many new workers to add to payrolls; hence, on balance, we should expect a somewhat smaller rise in total consumer income.

Retail sales will continue to expand but at the lower rate which already has become evident in recent months. I anticipate a 5 to 6 per cent gain in total retail sales in the first half of 1967. General merchandise sales should increase at a similar pace on average, but nondurable sales are expected to outpace durables.

Apparel has been a star performer this year, and the response of teen-agers and young adults to the new fashion merchandise indicates continued bright prospects for apparel sales. However, I must note that the decline in home building has had some effect on the basic demand for major household appliances, such as ranges, refrigerators, and washers.

The prospect of more moderate growth in total retail sales hardly justifies the need for a tax increase to restrain consumer demand. The brunt of such a tax increase would probably fall most heavily on consumer durables, where the growth rate has already eased and is not likely to change appreciably in the months ahead.

In conclusion, let me say that this appraisal of somewhat more moderate retail sales gains during the next six months as compared with the first half of 1966 is favorable one, following as it does five consecutive years of substantial growth. The period ahead can serve to help business consolidate its gains, reduce pressure on prices, and place the nation's economy in an excellent position for more vigorous gains in the years ahead.

COFFEE CORNER

by Cherie

My oh my, but that smarts! My poor rib cage is still partially crushed from all the undergarments I wore to make me look lovely for good ole New Years Eve. Boy, what women have to go through to be alluring -- and then, if you have a husband like mine all he does after my elaborate dressing ritual is to turn and look at me longingly, sigh, and whisper in my ear, "And just how much did all this set me back?". It's not every one that has a true romantic like Charles. I tell you, that and one other remark these men are always making is enough to really rile a lady (and who's a lady?) This bit about how long it takes us to get ready to go someplace really sets my teeth on edge, they've got their nerve! I'd like to see them cram themselves into a too small girdle, a backless, sideless, strapless, and halfway topless bra, (and end up with the front facing that way), hose that have to be stretched so tight you constantly are bending over frontwards from the tension your garters are exerting. I'll sure be glad when the short skirts go out so if you have wrinkled knees, no one is the wiser, and that's another thing, I haven't been able to sit down all during the holidays cause the skirts are so short it's an impossibility, -- Grandma, I think I need your pantaloons. Then, stuff your feet into heels that hurt, and at least you're ready for the really big production -- the make up. That involves first, a moisturizer to make your skin look soft, shiny, and dewy; next, cream to cover all the blemishes and wrinkles; then, cream to cover the cream that covered the blemishes and wrinkles; next, a powder base so your powder will adhere and you won't look soft, shiny, and dewy; then rouge, eye-shadow (three shades for high-lighting different vital areas); then, powder to cling to the base coat; then, eyeliner to make your eyes look larger, and for some poor gals, it's then time for false lashes and those will really keep you busy; next, a soft brush with makeup to make you soft, shiny, and dewy again; and last, lipstick in another three shades so your lips will be soft and pouting and tres kissable, (and then they wonder what takes so long). I usually poop out about one fourth of the way through this procedure. I think that's why sometimes I look dewy, and other times I look dry, it just depends on where I got tired and left off. I don't think I could ever get the whole mess on, if I did I'd just crack the first time I smiled, but there are some girls, bless their pretty complexions, who do manage to do the whole routine. Well, on with the makeup and now for the other big undertaking, the hair. Believe me, if you've never had your hair ratted and back combed, you've missed out on not only quite an experience, but also quite a good deal of pain. Oh-oh-oh- but it do hurt!! Then, don the long gown, secure the earrings that pinch until your ears finally go numb, the bracelet that scratches, and at last you are ready to sally forth for the evening. Just remember to smile brightly (how else, your eyes are already glittering from the pain), try desperately for that deep breath, grit your teeth, and lady go and dazzle the world! Brother aren't we nuts!! Now husbands, do you see why it takes us more than fifteen minutes to accomplish this feat? I'd just like to see how long it would take some of them to get that girdle on, and heaven knows most of them could use it, and some, I won't mention names, could go one of those backless, strapless items also! Hmmm, guess I'd better quit knocking the men's waistlines or they'll just refuse to eat this calorie filled goody I'm going to give you the recipe for. This was eaten in New Madrid, at a picnic by my mother many years ago, and is still a top favorite of hers. I give you Miss Nancy and Mabel Meckdem's Chili Loaf.

CHILI LOAF

one-pound of beef
one pound of pork
1 can of tomatoes
2 chopped onions
1 cup chopped celery
1 tsp each of pepper, salt, red pepper, sugar, and chili pepper,
4 cups of water

Combine all this in a pan, and cook until done. Take meat out and grind it up. Strain the broth, and add the tomato mixture to your ground meat, and put the clear broth back into the pan and with 1 tsp. of salt, 2 TBS. of chili pepper, the juice off 1 can of chili beans (put the beans in with the meat mixture). Bring the liquid to a boil, and very slowly and while stirring, add white corn meal to liquid until you have formed a thick mush. Cook well. In a large casserole, line the sides and bottom with the mush mixture. Fill center with meat mixture, and cover top with mush. Serve cold, or bake at 350 degrees, for about 30 minutes or until bubbly.

$3,000 in Watches Taken by Burglars

FULTON, MO. (AP) - Burglars made only minimal hauls at three places in Fulton Sunday night but got watches and rings valued at $3,000 to $4,000 from a fourth - the West Jewelry Store.

The jewelry store was entered through a window. About 100 watches, 20 to 30 weddings rings and some cigarette lighters were taken.

An attempt was made to enter another jewelry store but it failed. Burglars also got $400 in cash at an oil company warehouse and entered a self-service laundry but got nothing there.

Earlier Sunday $13 was taken from a school bus garage.

Argentina's climate varies so widely that both penguins and parrots live there.

Most boys dream of growing up and becoming a success... newspaperboys are already doing something about it!

A newspaperboy is learning about the business world every day. He's an independent merchant who buys at wholesale—sells at retail—makes his own collections and builds up profits by salesmanship and good service.

Other boys lacking this experience will have much less to offer a future employer.

It's no accident that a newspaperboy is an above average student. His experience makes him realize more than other boys that he'll have to put his classroom lessons to work on his first full-time job.

Yes, a newspaper route starts a boy thinking . . . about his progress in school and what he'll have to learn to be a business success. He'll be able to offer his future employer a well-rounded background in free enterprise and the American Way of Life.

Busy Boys Are Better Boys

If you think your son or some other youngster might profit by similar Newspaperboy experience, why not suggest that he come in and talk to us.

THE DAILY STANDARD

Your Newspaperboy will appreciate it if you will have your money ready for him when he makes his regular collections. That will save him time and help him maintain his profits.

House May Discard 21-Day Limit Rule

WASHINGTON (AP) — A decision that could vitally affect the course of legislation in the 90th Congress will be made next Monday when House Democrats hold their presession caucus.

They will decide whether to try to retain the 21-day rule or discard it.

The rule puts a limit of 21 days on the time the Rules Committee may block House action on legislation approved by other committees. It was adopted originally at the insistence of Speaker Sam Rayburn to protect President John F. Kennedy's legislative program from strangulation by the Rules Committee then dominated by conservatives. It has been retained at the insistence of the Democratic leadership.

But last year's election results made the rule less appealing to its original sponsors. Among other things, the elections vacated the seats of Rules Chairman Howard W. Smith, a conservative Virginia Democrat, and James W. Trimble, an Arkansas moderate.

Democrats held 10 seats on the Rules Committee last year and Republicans 5. The ideological division was 8 to 7 in favor of the liberals, although there were times when the reverse was true, and the 21-day rule was used on several occasions.

The lineup in the new Congress will be 10 Democrats and 5 Republicans. Democrats plan to fill their two vacancies with liberals. Theoretically that would give the Democratic leadership a 9-6 voting edge on most legislation, or at worst 8 to 7. The new chairman, Rep. William M. Colmer, D-Miss., has voted in the past with the 5 Republicans and probably will continue to do so.

With that strong grip on the committee, the leadership sees no point in retaining the 21-day rule. It could be used to force House votes on legislation the leaders want bottled up by the Rules Committee.

Conservatives will be in numerical control of some committees this year and might kick over the traces and approve bills the administration doesn't want. In that event, an unfettered Rules Committee could serve as a graveyard.

Rep. Richard M. Bolling, D-Mo., one of the original champions of the 21-day rule and a leading spokesman for the liberals, sees no reason to retain the rule.

"We don't need it and we don't want it if we get a strong grip on the Rules Committee," Bolling said.

Speaker John W. McCormack and Democratic Leader Carl Albert reportedly agree with Bolling, although they have made no formal statements to that effect. Next Monday's caucus probably will bow to the wishes of McCormack and Albert.

Whether the rule is retained or junked is up to the House itself. It will make the final decision when the new rules are adopted at next Tuesday's opening session.

Conservatives who opposed the rule in the past now see some merit in it if it is changed. They would like to remove the speaker's arbitrary authority to call up or hold back legislation sidetracked by the Rules Committee for 21 days. The speaker now has sole power to decide when the rule shall be used.

Probe Expected To Lose Votes For Powell

WASHINGTON (AP) — An investigating subcommittee's criticism of Rep. Adam Clayton Powell can't help but produce more votes to prevent the Harlem Democrat from taking his seat in the new Congress next Tuesday, Rep. Lionel Van Deerlin said today.

Van Deerlin, a California Democrat, has announced that he will ask that Powell stand aside when the other members-elect are sworn in. He said he is sending every House member today an outline of a further proposal to keep Powell from taking his seat while a special committee looks into his qualifications.

The House Administration Committee published Tuesday its subcommittee's finding that Powell used official travel credit cards deceptively.

It said Powell used an assumed name for some of his own travel and that a staff employe, Corinne A. Huff, did likewise. Travel was provided at the expense of the Education and Labor Committee, which Powell heads, for persons unconnected with Congress, the report said.

However, neither the subcommittee nor the parent committee recommended action against Powell. The committee did order his wife dropped from his pay roll, where she held a $20,578-a-year post. This was done on the basis of testimony that she lives in Puerto Rico, whereas the law requires that a congressman's employe serve either in his Washington office or his home state.

Publication of the hearing record and report as a House document automatically sends it to the Justice Department, as well as other government agencies, Chairman Omar Burleson, D-Tex., said.

Not satisfied with this action, Rep. William L. Dickinson, R-Ala., sent a copy to acting Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark with a request for action.

Deliberate Bombing Disputed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon has officially denied that U.S. planes deliberately bombed civilian areas of Nam Dinh, North Vietnam's third largest city.

The statement was contained in a Defense Department letter to Rep. Ogden R. Reid, R-N.Y., that amounts to an official rebuttal of some portions of a New York Times dispatch about U.S. bombing of the city.

Dated Dec. 30 and made public Tuesday night, the letter was signed by Phil G. Goulding, deputy assistant secretary of defense for public affairs. It came in response to Reid's request for a restatement of U. S. policy on bombing and targeting in North Vietnam in light of recent Times' dispatches reporting widespread civilian deaths and damage.

Harrison E. Salisbury, a Times' assistant managing editor, said in one dispatch from Hanoi last week that U.S. planes have systematically attacked nonmilitary targets including a textile plant and dikes in Nam Dinh, killing 89 persons. He added: "No American communique has asserted that Nam Dinh contains some facility that the United States regards as a military objective."

Goulding said this statement "is without accuracy." He added: "The New York Times simply did not take the time to research the matter themselves--or, indeed, to ask our assistance."

The Times, however, said in today's editions that before Salisbury's dispatch was published Dec. 27 "it was read to Defense Department officials."

"In a statement printed in the same issue of the New York Times," the newspaper said, "administration officials conceded for the first time that American bombing raids against North Vietnam were accidentally causing damage to civilian areas.

"The officials also said that there were military targets in Nam Dinh and that American aircraft had repeatedly bombed them."

President Lyndon Johnson's great-grandfather, George Washington Baines, was once president of Baylor University.

Viet War Producing Brand New GI Lingo

SAIGON (AP) — The Green Beanies came out of the boonies last week for Bob Hope's show and the word for the Hollywood round eyes was "something else again."

Like all the rest of America's 20th-century wars, the Vietnam conflict is producing its own GI slang.

Foot soldiers who were doughboys in World War I and dogfaces in World War II are grunts or ground pounders in Vietnam.

The wild blue yonder types of 1941-45 and the jet jockeys of Korea are zoomies or Steve Canyons here.

Casualties are seldom killed; they are zapped, waxed, get their plows cleaned or get schnitzled. They may be dinged but rarely are wounded.

Atomic age troops in Vietnam prefer affirmatron or negatron to yes or no.

The American buildup in Vietnam began with retread argot from previous wars. Boondocks described the bush or any obscure location. It later became boonies and now shows signs of reverting to World War II's tulies.

Some twisting of the language grows out of boredom with repetition. A few GIs prefer balloon to platoon and corpuscle to corporal. Drinking water is referred to as potable, as in "give me a glass of potable."

Other slang is functional or, in the case of the F105 Thunderchief, malfunctional. A series of crashes by the jet fighter-bomber earned it the title thud. The two-seat model is known as double thud.

The most widely used single phrase is still "sorry 'bout that." Heard here for almost two years, it is stencilled on caps and shirts, used as explanation or apology and is the title of a book of war humor.

The difficult tonal language of Vietnam has been raided by American soldiers for suitable expressions.

"Troi oi" (pronounced "choi oi") is loosely translated as "Oh, My God" and has become a universal exclamation. "Di di" (pronounced "dee dee") means go. It sometimes is used as "di di it up" or "let's di di the hell out of here," "Dien Cai Dau" (pronounced "dinky dow") means crazy.

U. S. troops and some Vietnamese rate people or objects by the numbers. "No. 1" is the very best; "No. 10" designates a "cheap Charlie" or some other disliked item. Nobody seems to use any of the numbers in between.

Some troops express sarcasm with "real fine" or "outstanding." "Something else again" is high praise, used, for example, in referring to a particularly well endowed Hollywood starlet. Roundeye is the GI term for a western girl.

First Ace

The first American ace of World War II was Lt. "Buzz" Wagner, USAAF, who shot down his fifth Japanese plane over the Philippines on Dec. 18, 1941.

MRS. TOM HEFNER, 800 Poplar is about to choose a recipe card from her file box.

Mrs. Tom Hefner, 800 Poplar, Crochets, Cooks, Collects

Editor's Note: This is the 19th in a series of articles about the homelife of Sikeston area families.

By Ruth Dillender

Mrs. Tom Hefner, 800 Poplar, says that her past times are crocheting, cooking and collecting old lamps and vases. She and her husband also refinish old furniture.

Mrs. Hefner's mother, Mrs. Ella Ramer, 81, makes her home with the couple. The couple has lived in Sikeston 17 years. They enjoy visiting elderly people.

Hefner is a representative for National Texgas Co.

He collects shaving mugs and clocks as a hobby.

Although the couple has no children, two boys lived with them seven years. They are George and Bill Watkins. George is an army lieutenant serving in Japan and Bill is a dentist in Bel Air, Tex.

The family attends the First General Baptist church. Mrs. Hefner is assistant Sunday School teacher of the four-year-old class.

Treasures in the Hefner home are clocks restored by Hefner, a library table over 100 years old, and a dressing table and china closet, both refinished by Hefner.

Recipes suggested by Mrs. Hefner are:

PERFECT PIE SHELL

1-1/2 cups sifted all purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup shortening
1/4 cup water

Mix well, Roll out with little flour.

KARO PECAN PIE

1 cup Karo syrup
3 eggs, slightly beaten
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup sugar
2 tablespoons melted butter or oleo
1 cup pecans, chopped or in halves

Mix all ingredients and pour into unbaked 9-inch pie shell. Bake at 400 degrees for 15 minutes. Then reduce heat to 350 degrees and bake 30 to 35 minutes long.

Mrs. Hefner says that this pie recipe is easy for teenagers and it turns out delicious and appetizing.

OLD FASHION DEVIL'S FOOD CAKE

2 cups sugar
1/2 cup shortening
2 eggs
1/2 cup sour milk
2 cups bread flour
3 tablespoons cocoa, sifted in the flour
1 teaspoon baking soda, dissolved in 1 cup warm water

Mix all ingredients well. Bake 30 or 40 minutes at 375 degrees. Let cool.

Mrs. Hefner says that this cake is moist.

COCONUT FLUFF FROSTING

This frosting is satin smooth, never sugars and does not have to be cooked, comments Mrs. Hefner.

2 egg whites
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup sugar
3/4 cup light corn syrup
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Beat egg whites with salt until mixture forms soft peaks. Add sugar, a tablespoon at a time. Continue beating as you gradually add syrup. Add vanilla and beat till frosting stands in peaks. Spread on cake and sprinkle with coconut, grated fresh or flaked.

APPLE FLUFF

Beat 2 egg whites unitl stiff. Slowly beat in 1 cup very cold apple sauce using as much as needed to make mixture firm enough to pile into dishes. Serve with sweetened whipped cream and sprinkle with nutmeg and cinnamon.

Mrs. Hefner comments that her mother especially likes this dessert.

CORN DOGS

1 cup flour
1/2 cup corn flour
1 cup sweet milk
1 egg
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
2 teaspoons sugar

Mix well. Dip wieners in batter. Fry in deep fat or oil.

SPAGHETTI SAUCE

1 lb. hamburger meat
1 medium onion, chopped
1 can stewed tomatoes
1 large can tomato paste
3 bay leaves
Dash of oregano
1 teaspoon garlic powder or 2 buttons of garlic
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon sugar

Simmer meat and onions. Add tomatoes and tomato paste. Add spices. Simmer at least three hours, stirring occasionally. Prepare small package of spaghetti in 2 quarts of water. Add 2 tablespoons of cooking oil. Serves four.

Mrs. Hefner says cooking oil in the spaghetti prevents its sticking together.

QUICK FRENCH DRESSING

1 cup cooking oil
1/2 cup vinegar
1-1/2 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
1/2 cup tomato catsup
1 teaspoon garlic powder or 2 cloves garlic

Measure all ingredients into jar. Shake well. Chill. Shake before serving. Makes 1-1/2 cups.

VOTING RIGHTS and LEGAL WRONGS

Q. At the beginning of the discussion, you mentioned that you wanted to discuss the proposed title:

The Voting Rights Act of 1965?

A. Yes. Congress has passed since 1957 three so-called Civil Rights Acts, the Acts of 1957, 1960 and 1964. Four other laws already were in existence.

There are presently seven different laws which, if enforced, would guarantee the right to vote!

First. Any citizen may sue any election official for damages who denies him the right to vote -- 42 U. S. C. 1983.

Second. Any citizen who alleges he is wrongfully denied the right to vote may sue in Federal court without a jury to prevent the denial of that right -- 42 U.S.C. 1971.

Third. Any election official, anywhere in the United States, who denied any qualified voter his right to register and vote under color of law is punishable by fine and imprisonment -- 18 U.S.C. 242.

Fourth. Any election official who conspires with another to deny any citizen the right to vote is subject to a fine of $5,000, or imprisonment for 10 years, or both -- 18 U.S.C. 241.

Fifth. The Attorney General may sue in the Federal courts for an injunction at any time any person is engaged or there are reasonable grounds to believe he is about to engage in any act designed to deprive a person of his right to vote -- 42 U.S.C. 1993.

Sixth. If a Federal judge finds a pattern of discrimination pursuant to the 1960 Civil Rights Act, he may appoint Federal voting referees to replace local officials.

Seventh. The 1964 Civil Rights Act provides that all voting case be expedited; that if less than 15 per cent of a race is registered, Federal referees be appointed; and that everyone with a sixth grade education is presumed literate -- 42 U.S. C. 1971.

Note specifically those provisions of the 1960 and 1964 Civil Rights Acts which authorize a Federal judge to appoint Federal voting referees if, after a judicial determination, a pattern of discrimination is found to exist.

The proponents of the 1965 Act have protested that a judicial determination of discrimination takes too long to decide and that some Negroes might not be allowed to register for seven or eight years.

The purpose instead to allow an administration determination of whether discrimination exists in a given State, bypassing completely the judicial process.

The substitution, in addition to being repugnant to the doctrine of separation of power, is a direct and unconstitutional attack on the doctrine of federalism.

(THE END)

LABELING -- "While the Congress is considering 'mislabeling,' wouldn't the dollar be a good place to start?"

queries Sen. Norris Cotton (R.-N.H.).

"Did you do any work -- like dictation or anything like that?" asked Chairman Wayne Hays, D-Ohio.

"No, I didn't," replied Mrs. Swann. "I had no business. I was just going."

"Could you tell us how these trips came about, what discussions you had with Mr. Powell?"

"There was no discussion," replied Mrs. Swann. "Mr. Powell gave me the tickets."

"Well, there had to be some arrangement as to your being away from the office."

"Well, he did give me a vacation time."

"Did you ask him for the travel ticket or did he voluntarily give you a ticket?"

"No. I did not ask him for the tickets," said Mrs. Swann. "They were given to me."

"Did he tell you why he was giving them to you?"

"No, there was no discussion as to why. I was to use them."

"There had to be some reason for this gift of a ticket to Miami," said Rep. William Dickson, the Montgomery, Ala., Republican who accused Dr. Martin Luther King's Selma marchers of conducting a sex orgy. "What was the reason for this? I couldn't just walk up and give one of my employees a ticket and not say anything."

"He gave me the ticket to go to Miami with time off included and that is all," persisted Mrs. Swann.

"There was no purpose to it?"

"No purpose," replied Powell's receptionist.

TRAVEL GHOSTS?

There was a mass of the detailed testimony regarding the flight of Powell's staff which revealed that he not they actually took the trips.

Airline records showed that Mrs. Dorothy Himes, secretary to Powell's administrative assistant (Chuch Stone) made six flights between Washington and New York and three flights between Washington and Miami. She told the Hays committee that she had made none of these flights.

She said she did not know her name had been used on the tickets for the flights until so advised by the Hays committee.

Miss Aurora Harris, now a secretary at the HEW Department, formerly in Powell's office, made two round-trip flights between Washington and Miami and three flights between Washington and New York in early 1965.

She testified that she had not been a passenger on any of these flights.

"You were not aware of the fact that your name was shown as traveling between these places?" Miss Harris was asked.

"That is right, sir."

"I am going to show you a transportation request for a shuttle flight between Washington and New York on Eastern Airlines, March 28, 1965, which is in the record as Dargans' exhibit no. 3, is that your signature?"

"No, it is not."

Mrs. Louise Dargans, Powell's top secretary, was revealed as the holder of a "Q" type air travel credit card, which entitled her to buy airline tickets for others. The committee record showed that on March 28, 1965, at a "social gathering" in Washington Powell told her to use her credit card to purchase four one-way shuttle tickets from Washington to New York in her name and the names of other staff members, namely, Don Anderson, Aurora Harris, and Odell Clark.

ADAM JR.'s FREE RIDE

These tickets were to be used by Mrs. Lillian Upshur, a clerk in Powell's congressional office, and three others at the social gathering who were not employed by congress and were not authorized to travel at government expense. The others were Adam Powell Jr., the congressman's son, Miss Pearl Swangin, and Mr. Jack Duncan. The latter two are old friends of Powell's who live in New York.

Mrs. Dargans went to the Washington airport with Mrs. Upshur and there met Powell Jr., Miss Swangin and Duncan; then loaned her credit card to Miss Upshur when the ticket agent told her shuttle tickets could only be purchased in flight.

Mrs. Dargans: "This was the one rare instance in which I have let another staff member or anyone else have my card.

And I did this at the direct instruction of the chairman."

"Did you bring to the attention of congressman Powell that as far as you knew your credit card had been used to purchase tickets for three persons not employed by congress (referring to Powell Jr., Miss Swangin, and Mr. Duncan)?"

"I was given the order by the chairman to make those purchases," Mrs. Dargans replied.

"Did you question whether or not it was proper to use your travel card to purchase tickets for those persons?"

"No, sir, I did not. He asked me to purchase tickets in the names of those people with the understanding they would use them."

"You haven't been on an airplane at any time during the 89th congress?"

"No, sir."

"You don't fly any more?"

"That is correct," replied Powell's top secretary.

A recent survey shows that the average young bachelor is more interested in high frequency than in high fidelity.

Drew Pearson Special

DREW PEARSON SAYS: Powell's unique junketing generosity; he gave free travel to his son; receptionist got a free trip to Miami without request.

WASHINGTON -- Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, the Harlem Globe Trotter, was either amazingly generous in giving junkets to his staff, or else some of them covered up for his own junkets -- all at the taxpayers expense.

One of those who got a delightful junket -- or else was covering up -- was Emma T. Swann, who served as receptionist in the House Education and Labor Committee of which Powell is chairman. She was listed as taking thirty trips between New York, Miami, and Buffalo during 1965-66 which actually she did not take. But in addition, she testified that she took three trips with Powell. On this the House Subcommittee investigating Powell questioned her closely. Its members seemed skeptical that she actually took the trips.

Root Digging Days Will Greet Spring

SPRINGFIELD -- Wintertime in the Ozarks is annually planning time for the Spring-welcoming celebration, "Root Digging Days," at Silver Dollar City, Mo.

Veteran root - digger Chick Allen, 61, a leathery complexioned former logger, speaks with drawling good humor of how the event is deeply rooted in Ozarks history. "After bein' shut in for months, back when there weren't no heated cars or money to spend for gettin' away from the home place," Chick relates, "we felt like the comin' of Spring deserved some outlandish whoopin' and hollerin'."

Since the celebration time coincided with the traditional gathering of medicinal roots and herbs, it was called "Root Digging Days."

Chick is always on hand with his freshly dug collection of buckbrush, golden seal, black hall, wahoo and life everlasting (recommended, respectively, for pyorrhea, stomach disorders, ladies' complaint, chills and fever, and catarrh. In all, he exhibits 20 native plants in whose medicinal properties he staunchly believes.

Highlights of the celebration include accuracy firing competitions with two Civil War model cannons, steam engine-powered rock sled rides for the children, units of non-professional mountain musicians scattered about the streets of Silver Dollar City, and frantic, twice - daily red flannel underwear "getting - out - of" contests.

This year, the event is scheduled two weekends, April 29-30, and May 6-7. Admission is free.

Silver Dollar City is located 45 minutes south of Springfield and nine mountain miles west of Branson, on Table Rock lake.

Committee Orders Powell's Wife Off Payroll

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House Administration Committee today ordered Rep. Adam Clayton Powell's wife removed from her $20,500 job on his payroll.

The committee also issued findings of widespread irregularities in official travel.

The findings, made by a subcommittee which held hearings on practices of the House Education and Labor Committee, of which Powell is chairman, were made part of an official House document which goes to the Justice Department as well as other government agencies.

Chairman Omar Burleson, D-Tex., of the administration committee said there was no specific vote to send the subcommittee findings to the Justice Department. But he said that "when it is made a House document, it is automatically under the rules to all government departments including Justice.

"Anyone can take it from there if there should be matter for a civil suit for recovery of funds or even possible criminal action."

The committee action in ordering the firing of a person on a member's staff was described as unprecedented by Rep. Wayne L. Hays, D-Ohio, chairman of the subcommittee that conducted the hearings and made recommendations to the administration committee.

Check List for the Job Hunter

By JAMES M. MURPHY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

"Fifty per cent of the young men who begin their careers this fall will leave their first job within three to five years," says career counselor Joseph Venaglia, president of the College Marketing Institute.

"They are largely the college graduates who never got through to their interviewers. Why? Because the usual student applicant is completely unprepared to take charge of the interview situation," he adds.

Do your plans include three to five years of postgraduate searching for a suitable job? Of course not. What you need is a system, a way of taking the initiative in a job-hunting situation. Venaglia has just the one.

The system begins with understanding what the recruiter is really looking for. Remember that when he sends a man up to his boss he has to be reasonably sure the boss will approve.

The question the recruiter asks himself is, "Will this recruit be able to protect my image?" He will feel comfortable only if you reduce his uncertainty. The only way for you to do that is to provide him with the greatest amount of relevant information in the least amount of time. Simple? Yes, but bringing it off requires systematic thinking.

Your general approach is to put yourself in charge of the situation. Become a salesman selling yourself so that the recruiter can comfortably assume the position of buyer.

In most recruiting situations the recruiter is forced to be both buyer and seller, because the student being interviewed doesn't know anything about the company. When that happens, the student applicant has much less opportunity to sell himself. So, you have to know the interviewer's company.

Once you show the recruiter that you know his company, he is ready to pay attention to you. Here is where you must know yourself—and show it.

Only one out of a hundred applicants walks into an interview situation with a clear idea of who he is and what he wants. The man is such a rarity that the recruiter is usually amazed. The result is that the recruiter can't afford to let this one-in-a-hundred get away.

His thinking goes like this: "If this man is capable of doing this kind of analysis on himself, then he's obviously prepared to exhibit the same decision-making qualities within our company."

Now, how to do it. Knowing yourself takes systematic thought. A way to go about it is:

- List all the things that you have ever enjoyed doing. List one or a hundred; but don't consider those things you might enjoy.
- Make a tentative choice of the three you most enjoy doing. You are entitled to change your mind.
- Ask yourself why you enjoy doing these three things. List at least 10 reasons for each. Push yourself until you can't think of any more reasons. If you can't list at least five "good" reasons, you may have made a bad choice.
- Talk with people actively engaged with each of your major interests to find out more about them.
- Find the products and services associated with your three interests. List them.
- Analyze what type of involvement you would prefer to have with the products or services listed. Would you want to manufacture them? Advertise them? Finance them? List three activities for each product or service.
- Name 10 reasons for the choice you made of specific occupations related to major interests. Sources of information are easy to find (professional organizations, professors). Also, contact key men in companies. Although these executives are busy, nine out of 10 will see you if you use this method:

Contact the man's secretary and ask if you, as a student, could have 10 minutes of the man's time to ask three questions pertinent to your career choice. Then be sure to have three well-thought-out specific questions for him. (If you're impressive, you may end up spending the afternoon with the man. And may even land a job offer later—but don't angle for it.)

- Decide where you want to work. East or West? Big town, little town? List 10 reasons why.
- Pick a company. What companies relevant to your stated interests are located in the area that you have chosen? Gather all the possible information about them. Go beyond looking at records and stock prices. Learn the terminology of the field. Find out who are the key men in the company. Read their speeches and evaluate them. Evaluate the thinking they represent as well as what they said. Would you feel comfortable working with these men?

You are now prepared to see the recruiter, present your case and get the job. You know the company, the exact job, and why you want it.

British Peace Plan Rejected

TOKYO (AP) - North Vietnam today rejected the British proposal for peace talks with the United States and South Vietnam, declaring the British purpose was to force the Vietnamese people to "accept the insolent terms put by the U.S. imperialists."

Both the United States and South Vietnam gave a favorable response to British Foreign Secretary George Brown's proposal last week that they join North Vietnam in peace talks on British soil.

North Vietnam's official newspaper Nhan Dan reiterated Communist terms for peace today and rapped Britain for suggesting a conference.

ally to meet the needs in St. Louis and Kansas City, would cost the state about $700,000.

(5) Medical care for the blind at a cost of $724,000 from the blind pension fund.

(6) "The sixth new program seeks to prevent desertion of a family by an unemployed father of a family which would be eligible for aid to dependent children if he were not living in the household. To reduce this disastrous effect on solidarity of the family unit, I recommend that Missouri law be amended to conform to the federal act for the purpose of matching funds, at a cost to the state of $800,000 for 2,800 families."

(7) Improve payments to welfare patients in nursing homes, based on a classification system of professional care and costing the state an estimated $3,791,000.

Hearnes also suggested intensive study of roports expected soon on revision of Missouri's banking and insurance laws where there are many conflicts.

Other recommendations:

Putting both Guardsmen and civilian employes of the Adjutant General under workmen's compensation.

The Governor, who spent 10 years in the House, said he realized the lawmakers will have a mountainous mass of bills to consider. He gave this advice:

"Some of this legislation will fit into the logical economic and social progression which our state should follow; other proposals will be urged vigorously and with great fanfare by those interested in only a narrow spectrum of the very broad and diverse objectives important to a majority of Missourians.

"Other legislation will be of obvious merit, but also yoked to contemporary fiscal impracticality."

He said he was confident the new legislature would write a historic record that would "compare well with the enduring achievements" of the past.

FINDING THE WAY

Communicating the Word

By RALPH W. LOEW, D.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

One of the affluent industries of our generation is packaging. Developing bright containers with attractive colors and easily opened devices becomes the lifework of many talented people. There are laws governing the claims, the weight and the contents of the package. The shape and form of the containers is limited only by the imagination and the practical storage dimensions.

Packaging is important in other areas of life. The form of worship, a vehicle for worship, is in the process of change in all varieties of religious groups. The need to communicate has affected all of the older or historic translations of Scripture. In many instances, the change is more radical. It is the discovery of the truth which had been confused with the packaging, and which causes new insights to be brought to the meaning of the statement of faith.

In the new Scripture translation the change of form is dramatic. Once upon a time, the Bible was protected by heavily decorated covers, sometimes closed with a latch, and kept in a place of reverence. With the upheaval of the Reformation new translations into the vernacular were published. In the 20th century we've had a rash of these new versions. Among the earlier forms was the American Revised version, quickly followed by the Goodspeed and Moffatt translations and then by the Revised Standard version and the new English Bible. In addition, the J. B. Phillips paraphrase is a fascinating statement. The Anchor Bible, now in, production, promises to be an interesting meeting ground for both Roman Catholic and Protestant.

One of the most interesting of the new packages for the Word is the volume, "Good News for Modern Man."

Published by the American Bible Society, it is packaged as a paperback. The new translation uses words now common in the English language. The pages are broken by frequent paragraph headings so that one is not overwhelmed by the printed page. There are simple line drawings which illustrate various passages.

One immediately detects the emphasis upon communication rather than poetic beauty. The petition in the Lord's prayer concerning forgiveness is translated, "Forgive us what we owe you as we forgive what others owe us." The Beatitudes are stated as a series of injunctions beginning "Happy are those . . ." "Happy are those who know they are spiritually poor: the kingdom of heaven belongs to them." "Happy are those who work for peace among men: God will call them sons."

One immediately detects the dignity and the reverence which are kept in this translation. It is meaningful, not flippant, honest when not poetic. Its importance is that it brings the content of Scripture in an attractive package geared to modern man. It is doubtful that such a translation can ever influence culture as did the King James Bible.

It does encourage men and women to read the Scriptures, regularly, carefully, understandingly. It enables truth to escape the package.

Lightest Mexico

By John Abney

Tikul, Mexico -- This village in the wilderness of central Yucatan has a double distinction. It is (1) completely unknown and (2) is the home of a real, live prince with a name you can scarcely pronounce.

The kingdom of Prince Gerardo Xiu, 40th generation descendant of no less than the old Mayan lord Hun Uitzil Chac Tutul Xiu (go on; I dare you to try it), has been reduced to a corn patch that looks pretty much like everybody else's.

And fortunately, history trimmed the prince's name down to a more or less reasonable condition.

Several years ago -- 987 A.D. to be exact - Mr. Hun Uitzil Chac Tutul Xiu was lying around in the shade of a ceiba tree one day studying his real estate.

So he called his Minister of Public Works and said, "Marvin, this ain't a bad spot we been living in all our lives. How about let's build a town here?"

"Great idea," answered Marvin, as if his opinion counted a fig.

"What sign to we hang on the railroad station?"

Mr. Xiu thought it over and said, "Oh, we can name it something easy like Uxmal."

"I'll round up the volunteers," sighed Marvin. "Where does the palace go?"

"Over yonder in the pasture where lightning hit Dzuz Dzing's mule last year," said the Mayan lord, "And have the troops put up a few pyramids and temples for the tourists."

Anyhow, that's more or less the way Uxmal was built. And people still come from all over the world to see the unusual collection of stone masonry.

The Xiu rulers stuck to the family's rock palace until the Spanish conquest and then started a skirmish for recognition from the King of Spain.

The King said well, as long as they remembered who was the top man a title or two wouldn't hurt anybody. So the Xius got an official patent of nobility although they ended up being evicted to a smaller but no less imposing palace.

Somehow or other, the post-conquest Maya boss wound up with the remodeled name of Francisco de Montejo Xiu which indicates there was some fraternizing back down the line.

Maybe the king wrote the Mayas to get easier names if they expected to stay in the local saddle.

But the Xiu empire got nibbled up. A little here and he now lives in a thatched hut with his family and hoes corn just like people but he is still the Maya prince.

On market days he shoulders his bag of corn and wears it to the village to peddle with the other farmers. Even the less literate persons here (like me) know the Peabody Museum at Harvard University has a stack of papers tracing Gerardo back for 40 generations with notes on all his relatives.

It proves that even if he wears sandals and white cotton peasant clothes he has blue, blue blood.

So how do you like that? After nearly a thousand years, the only claim to the ancient empire this prince has left is a noble manner of hoeing corn and a pedigree locked up in somebody else's safe.

Oldest House

St. Augustine, Fla., claims to have the oldest house in North America. An ancient structure of undetermined origin, it displays the colors of the United States, Great Britain, Spain and the Confederacy—flags of four of the different governments under which the city grew.

Sepoy Rebellion

A religious belief caused India's Sepoy Rebellion in 1857. The religion of the Moslems forbade the use of pork and the rebellion against the British in India resulted because the English commanders foolishly gave their Moslem troops bullets which had to be greased with lard.

Copacabana Crowded, Dirty But Residents Like It

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Down here, with the seasons reversed, tropical summer with all its torments to settling onto the famous beach called Copacabana.

More than 350,000 persons packed into the strip of land behind a crescent of sand will swelter and curse the heat, the noise, the dirt and the lack of public services.

But most of them wouldn't move. If they did, thousands more are waiting to move into what may be the most crowded suburb in Latin America.

Cariocas — as Rio residents are known — don't seem to mind that the beach grows dirtier as the summer moves along, or the constant din of traffic choked into Copacabana's narrow streets.

Nonresidents flock to shop in its boutiques and its 53 art galleries, to play in its 52 major bars and night clubs, or just to toast in the sun on the beach.

They also scrimp and save so that some day they may move there.

Copacabana is built on a narrow strip between sea and mountains. It is 2½ miles long and seldom more than five blocks wide. Residents and visitors jam its 2.4 square miles.

Those who live there pay as much a $1,500 a month for a beachside apartment. This doesn't guarantee them either water or electricity. Both have been in chronic short supply in Copacabana.

More modest housing is available behind the beach. Families of five or six crowd into tiny two-bedroom apartments just for the status of a Copacabana address.

More than a quarter of Copacabana's residents live in the squalid shantytown "Favelas" precariously perched on hills overlooking the beach. They have neither water nor sewage facilities, but the view is great.

The eight per cent of Copacabana residents who earn more than $500 monthly give the area its glitter.

Copacabana boasts Rio's highest traffic accident rate, a rapidly growing crime rate, and one of the city's highest noise levels.

It is short on schools, and residents complain that the city is cutting into already inadequate parks and squares to build a tourist information center and other public buildings.

Recent surveys focus attention on the suburb's attractions and shortcomings.

"The entire area should be transformed," said architect Marcos Konder Netto, a Copacabana resident. "Obsolete buildings should be replaced with parks, and garage buildings should be put up."

Dramatist Carlos Heiter Cony, another resident, says Copacabana is simply "a large and comfortable slum."

Benjamin Morais, a Protestant minister who is state secretary for education, feels the spirit is neglected in Copacabana.

"Books are used to decorate shelves," he says.

For whatever it may take away from the spirit, Copacabana more than makes up to it for the flesh. Its beach is almost always covered with bronzed beauties in bikinis.

Its sidewalk cafes are a magnet, and its night clubs are the city's liveliest. Samba and ye-ye-ye mix freely in swinging discotheques. Prostitutes swing in other ways along its mosaic sidewalks and the bars of half a dozen joints.

Star Seeks Bit Part in Batman Cast

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — A busy, popular actor rarely admits he begged for a bit part in a television series. Cliff Robertson, who played young John F. Kennedy in the movie "PT-109", boasts about it.

A few months ago Robertson treated his daughter Stephanie, 7, to a visit to the "Batman" set. On the way home she looked her father over thoughtfully and remarked: "I never knew you knew such important people."

"I went to see Bill Dozier, the 'Batman' producer the next day," said Robertson. "I said I had a problem. 'Yes, I know,' Dozier answered. 'You want a cameo role in the show.'

"I looked surprised, and then he said that almost all actors with young children had the same problem. Anyway he worked out a little something — it took about a day — so I could impress my child. I don't quite know when I will be seen — briefly — in an episode."

Robertson recently married actress Dina Merrill. They will appear together tonight — 10-11 EST — in ABC's adaptation of John D. MacDonald's short story, "The Trap of Solid Gold."

Robertson, in his early 40s, is primarily interested in his booming film career, and works in television only as an occasional performer who can pick his spots and material.

Robertson has been doing well for about 10 years, but he says that "the Kennedy thing was just great for me because it focused national attention and generated a lot of publicity.

"Whether you like it or not, publicity certainly helps a performer get the kind of roles he wants."

CBS, in its second annual current events quiz for television viewers, Tuesday night propounded about 30 questions on last year's news that ranged broadly from Vietnam to the Warren report to the moon's surface.

As usual the test was given in advance to a typical national sample with the usual discouraging result — 79 per cent flunked.

NBC will invite some kudos for culture Feb. 5 with a live program showing Picasso paintings in museums in Paris — by satellite — New York, Dallas and Fort Worth. There will also be an on-camera auction of a painting donated by the artist at a New York gallery with the proceeds going toward the rescue of Florentine art damaged by recent floods.

In times of great crisis, Americans have always joined together in an unyielding force to protect the freedom we love. From the bloodstained snows of Valley Forge to the steaming jungles of Viet Nam, Americans have stood together valiantly. . . effectively. And they would do so again if would events should demand that price. But those are the big battles. . . the clearly defined dangers. . . the "violent and sudden usurpations." What of the day-in-day-out struggle where subtle, silent enroachments wrap themselves like spiderwebs around the principles which guarantee us continued liberty? Do we Americans stand unyielding against them. . . or is our action replaced by apathy. . . our valor by lassitude? If so, these words from "The Father of our Constitution" could be sound advice, for the abridgment of freedom is just as final, . . just as deadly. . . when accomplished gradually and silently as when it occurs violently and suddenly.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE

By Jack Strauss LL.B

THE CASE OF THE LONELY CONSPIRATOR

Carmine and his pal Hysterio were arrested by the police and charged with criminal conspiracy. While Carmine remained calm and pleaded innocent, Hysterio panicked. He pleaded guilty and was sent away to jail. Thereafter, Carmine stood trial and was acquitted of the charge by a jury, which left Hysterio hysterical.

"If Carmine was found innocent," he finally concluded, "who was I conspiring with?"

Hysterio nervously petitioned the court for his immediate release.

"If Carmine wasn't guilty of conspiracy," he told the judge, "then I wasn't guilty either. Conspiracy is like dancing. It takes two to tango and two to conspire."

"I'm not interested in dancing," responded the prosecuting attorney. "When a man pleads guilty, as Hysterio did, he's admitted that he has committed a crime. While a jury can make a mistake, he knew the truth. Therefore, Hysterio has to stay in jail."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you set Hysterio free?

This is how the judge ruled: Hysterio went free. The judge ruled that one person cannot be guilty of conspiracy. Since Carmine was adjudged innocent, then Hysterio had to be innocent also. (Based upon a 1962 Arizona Supreme Court Decision)

Don't wait until your lease is about to expire to start thinking about where you're going to live. In the absence of some statutory control, such as in New York City, your landlord is free to evict you at the end of your lease or demand a much higher rent. The Prayer

From The Upper Room

It is the God who said, "Let light shine out of darkness," who has shone in our hearts. (II Corinthians 4:6, RSV)

PRAYER: Eternal God, standing at the portals of this new year, we give Thee thanks that the future is in Thy hands; that at no time and in no place can we drift beyond Thy love and care. Grant us grace to walk with Thee. For Jesus' sake. Amen.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pettiford are the parents of a daughter born today.

An interesting experiment is being tried out in the Sikeston grade school. Twenty-five children have been chosen at random and each morning at 10 o'clock are being fed milk and graham crackers. The experiment will be carried on for possibly a month to note what changes, if any, the children make in weight. And in the meantime, the children like it.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: My boy friend is a graduate student at a well-known university here on the West Coast. He is very bright and has won many honors. I'm telling you this not to brag but to let you know that he's really not a moron - which is what you will probably think after I tell you my problem.

My little poodle, Nichole, is very dear to me. My boy friend has an airedale. The last three times my boy friend has come to see me he has yelled from the porch, "Put your dog in the basement. I brought Scotty along." I have done as he asked. It so happens that I don't like to put Nicole in the basement and I don't see why he should bring his mutt over and make demands on me.

Yesterday he pulled this stunt again and I told him to take Scotty home and come back alone. Would you believe that he and that dumb hound sat outside in the car for one solid hour. Finally he drove off in a huff and called me from his place to say I was a spoiled brat.

I say he is the spoiled brat and that he owes me an apology. What do you say? - STILL SIZZling.

Dear Sizz: No one should bring a dog when he goes visiting unless he has checked in advance and gotten an O.K.

A young man who is so attached to his bow wow that he can't leave him home when he goes to see his girl is too childish to go with girls.

Dear Ann Landers: Mom passed away several months ago and Dad and I miss her very much. Dad tries to cheer up both himself and me by taking me places Friday and Saturday evenings.

Last Friday we went to a cocktail lounge where there was dancing. Several fellows I knew from school (I'm a junior) were there stagging it. Not one fellow asked me to dance. This made me very depressed.

Do you think they were afraid of my father? Please answer as I am really in the dumps over this - A.P.

Dear A.P.: I'm sure your hunch is correct and I hope your dad will think of another way to cheer up both himself and you. Taking a teen-age daughter to a cocktail lounge is not my idea of a solution to any problem.

Dear Ann Landers: I fell in love with a married man. I didn't realize until later that I was not his first affair. His wife realized it, however, and decided she had had enough of his playing around. She divorced him.

Now his sons want nothing to do with him. He is not permitted to see his grandchildren. His business associates no longer include him in their social plans. At dinner tonight he looked at me through eyes of hate - as if it was all my fault.

Let this letter be a warning to all single girls who are cozying up to married men with hopes for the future. I wish to heaven I had never seen this character and I'm sure he wishes he had never seen me. - ASHES IN MY MOUTH

Dear Ashes: Your story is such a common one that I am printing it only because some people have to see or hear something four dozen times before they get the idea.

When necking becomes petting, watch out! To learn how the smart girl keeps both her dignity and her boyfriend, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Necking and Petting - And How Far to Go," enclosing with your request 25¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

I am getting stronger for Gov. Hearnes all the time. He demolished the Establishment. He is like the late Senator James A. Reed, Kansas City, who fought President Wilson on the League of Nations; or the late Senator Bennett Clark, Bowling Green, who fought President Roosevelt and opposed World War II. They fought for what they and their supporters thought was best for our country. Now Gov. Hearnes is doing the same thing.

I would like to see Gov. Hearnes go to Washington in '68 as United States Senator and replace Senator Long, who has done nothing but "yes" President Johnson whom we are all fed up with. Or to have Gov. Wallace, Alabama, and Gov. Hearnes on the Democratic ticket for President and Vice President.

Jack O'Bryan
Huntsville, Mo.

Support for Gov. Hearnes

I cannot help expressing my displeasure and disappointment over the letters critical of Gov. Hearnes's comments on President Johnson. Although not a Democrat, I must applaud and support Mr. Hearnes. He is one of the few governors who has consistently voiced his opposition to President Johnson's war policies. He takes the risk of saying what he believes rather than what is politically expedient.

There are many people who believe as he does, as stated in the Post-Dispatch that same day: "Nearly half of a group of key Democratic leaders either believe their party would be better off with a candidate other than President Lyndon B. Johnson in 1968 or are presently unwilling to indorse his renomination."

I will work for and support a man such as Gov. Hearnes, and will oppose men such as Senator Symington who continually urge greater escalation of the Vietnam conflict.

Gary B. Williams

SAN DIEGO, CALIF. (FHTNC) Dec. 9 - Marine Private Gary B. Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil D. Williams of 722 E. Kathleen St., Sikeston, Mo., was graduated from eight weeks of recruit training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot here.

He will now undergo about three weeks of individual combat training and then, after leave at home, will report to his first Marine Corps assignment.

The intensified Marine recruit training emphasizes rigid physical conditioning and survival techniques, both at sea and ashore, to develop self-confidence and endurance. Marksmanship with the M-14 rifle and 45-calibre pistol are equally stressed, and close order drill instills the traditions of Marine Corps teamwork.

A thorough study of basic military subjects; hygiene, first aid and sanitation; and the customs, courtesies, history and mission of the Marine Corps serve to polish the new Marine's recruit education and prepare him to join Marine combat forces.

William R. Shields

WITH U.S. COMBAT AIR FORCES, Vietnam - Airman First Class William R. Shields, son of Mrs. Nina M. Shields of 306 Maude St., Sikeston, Mo., on duty at Cam Ranh Bay AB, Vietnam. Airman Shields, a vehicle operator, has been in the fight against Communist aggression since November 1966. His wife, Jacque, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Hoffmann of Rt. 1, Brush, Colo.

Sammy G. Vines

SAN ANTONIO - Airman Sammy G. Vines, son of Mr. and Mrs. Burl O. Vines of Rt. 1, Lilbourn, Mo., has been selected for training at Chanute AFB, Ill., as an Air Force aircraft maintenance specialist.

The airman, a 1965 graduate of Lilbourn High School, recently completed basic training at Lackland AFB, Tex.

Missouri Press Report

Sen. Edward Long

Missouri is still the nation's fourth leading hog producer, according to the latest report to reach my desk.

During 1966, Missouri hog farmers increased their production by 10 percent -- 2 percentage points more than for the nation as a whole.

Our hog farmers produced 6,512,000 hogs during 1966 -- 3,188,000 of them were produced during the June-November, 1966, period.

During 1966, the nation produced 85,441,000 hogs -- up 8 percent over 1965.

There were 3,992,000 hogs on Missouri farms at the end of 1966 -- 10 percent more than at the end of 1965.

Missouri producers predict they will be farrowing 461,000 sows between now and May, 1967.

More than 300,000 student nurses attending nursing schools in Missouri will receive loans in 1967.

A total of 14 schools of nursing in Missouri will have available $268,141 in student loan funds under the U.S. Nursing Student Loan Program.

The new allocation of funds will increase the number of studen nurses receiving loans by around 33 percent during 1967.

Here are some items from the 1966 year-end report on the nation's economy:

--Total production of goods and services in 1966 is estimated to be at an all time high; over $650 billion. Back in 1962, the figure was $529 billion.

--Net farm income in 1966 was over $16 billion -- up $1.8 billion over 1965.

--Business expenditures for new plants and equipment in 1966 are expected to be 16 percent higher than in 1965. Predictions are that while these business expenditures will increase in 1967, the increase will be slower.

--The unemployment rate in 1966 was the lowest since 1953. The year-end rate for 1966 was around 3.8 percent, compared to 5.2 percent back in 1964.

We took my sister and brother-in-law Herb to a night club to celebrate their anniversary. Sis, however, was miserable because Herb was paying too much attention to the curvaceous cigarette girl.

Hearnes Offers Bold Legislative Plan

Council Agrees to Buy Police Cars

The city council Tuesday night approved the purchase of two police cars, adopted a fire code and passed a revised ordinance governing handling of milk and milk products and rezoned three areas.

Only two car dealers submitted bids for police cars. Mitchell Sharp Chevrolet was awarded the contract. The company asked a difference of $2,893 for two new Chevrolets. The price for the two new cars was $5,968 less the trade in on two 1965 Fords for which the company allowed the city $3,075.

Sikeston Motor Company asked $4,500 for two new cars allowing the city $1,212 trade in on the two 1965 Fords for a net price of $3,288.

All car dealers were invited to bid on the contract.

At the request of City Manager W. Raymert Miller the council adopted a fire prevention code which regulates storage and transportation of flamables. The city has never had a fire code.

The code applies to companies that transport gas, oil or other flamables. Most of the companies have governed themselves in these matters, Miller said.

Home owners will not be affected Miller said.

The fire code is another requirement for the city's recertification for a workable program to obtain federal aid. The fire chief will have the power to modify provisions of the code as long as the spirit of the code is upheld.

Violations of the code can bring a fine from $10 to $100 and a 30-day jail sentence.

At the urging of County Sanitarian W. C. Mulcahy the city adopted a 1965 ordinance governing regulations affecting the bacteria count, temperature and equipment used in the processing, transportation and storage of milk and milk products.

The ordinance is a standardized code approved by the U.S. public health service. The previous code was adopted in 1956, and did not make provision for the technological changes, which have taken place in the industry, Warren Manning, county sanitarian, said.

Mulcahy stressed the importance of passing the ordinance before July 1, 1967. The state will survey the milk and milk products in July and rate the county under the provisions of the 1965 ordinance.

The new ordinance will facilitate the transportation and sale of milk produced here and taken across state lines or to other sections of the state where the 1965 ordinance is in effect.

The meeting opened with a public hearing on the proposed re-zoning of three areas. No one voiced objection to any of the areas re-zoned. An ordinance encompassing the changes in zoning was passed unanimously in a roll call vote.

The re-zoning included changing from two family dwelling to multi-family sections of McCoy and Tanner's first, second sixth, eighth and ninth additions and a section on the south side of Tanner from Taylor to west of Prairie.

An area south of the Cream Castle was re-zoned from single or two family dwellings to commercial use. The changes in zoning were recommended by zoning commission.

Woman Flees House Flames

Smoke fumes in a burning house awakened its only occupant in time for her to save her life late Tuesday night in the Smith addition.

Mrs. Willie Burton, 518 Smith, ran from her bedroom through leaping flames in the living room to escape the blaze through the front door. She was awakened after 11 p.m. The fire singed some of her hair as she fled.

Heavy fire damage was caused to the furniture and house. Mrs. Burton had lived there for the past four months. The single story wood frame dwelling was in a run down condition prior to the fire. It is owned by L.I. Denton of East Prairie.

Sikeston volunteer firemen fought the blaze for more than an hour.

The fire is believed to have started from a wood stove.

Mrs. Burton said she did not know how it started.

'What's the Law' Begins Today

Jack Strauss, successful New York lawyer, was searching for precedents bearing on an important case he was handling.

The deeper he dug, the stranger were rulings on the matter.

"This would make a good newspaper story!" he exclaimed.

This was a natural remark because Strauss is a former newspaperman.

Thus his nationally syndicated column, "What's the Law," came into being.

Turn to page 14 for "What's the Law" a new daily feature which starts today in the Daily Standard.

Each day he writes about one or two cases that led to striking or amusing rulings. He tells the facts of these cases succinctly and with a dash of humor.

Gilmore Replaces Matthews

Tom R. Gilmore, 411 Shady Lane, was appointed assistant prosecuting attorney of Scott county effective Jan. 1, Scott county prosecutor Fielding Potashnick said today.

Gilmore replaces Charles D. Matthews who served in the position for more than two years. Matthews and Potashnick will continue their law partnership.

Gilmore was born and reared in Sikeston, till his family moved to Kansas City. He graduated high school in Kansas City in 1957. Then attended Yale till 1961. He entered law school in 1962 at Georgetown University in Washington, D.C. and graduated in June, 1965.

Gilmore served as a law clerk from July, 1965 till August, 1966 for U.S. Federal Judge James H. Meredith of St. Louis. Meredith is judge of the eastern district of Missouri.

He then entered practice here in the firm of Gilmore and Gilmore, where he has practiced since August, 1966.

Gilmore is married to the former Miss Carol Ann Hacker of Jackson. They have two daughters, Tammy, three and Tracey, one and a son, Tim, four years old.

The only President to become chief justice of the Supreme Court was William Howard Taft. He was appointed in 1921 by President Harding.

Second Theft Foiled

BENTON - A set of burglar tools found behing the Benton post office were those used to crack the safe at the Morley post office Sunday night, sheriff's officers reported today.

The burglars apparently were scared off when they attempted to break into the post office here.

Found were crowbars, punches and other accessories commonly associated with safecracking. The tools were found Tuesday.

No clues to the identity of the burglars have been obtained.

Taken in the Morley burglary were $175 cash, ten $25 and $100 Series E savings bonds valued at $825 and $1,100 in stamps.

Bragg City Girl Dies in Truck Crash

HAYTI, MO. (AP) - Mary Williams, 16, of Bragg City was killed Tuesday when she was pinned beneath a pickup truck which went out of control and overturned in a drainage ditch about eight miles west of Hayti. She was drowned.

Missouri Highway Patrolmen said the victim was one of four passengers in a 1961 International truck driven by Lloyd Mink, 19, of Kennett.

The truck skidded off a gravel road, one and one-half miles south of highway 84 in Pemiscot county. The ditch was full of water.

The accident occurred at 7:10 p.m.

There were five teenagers riding in the cab of the truck. One of them, David Cross, 16, route one, Bragg City, received a sprained limb. He was treated at the Pemiscot County hospital.

The body of the Williams girl was taken to the German Funeral Home in Caruthersville.

Three persons were injured in a two-vehicle collision Tuesday at 2:30 p.m. at the junction of highway 67 and highway V, 10 miles south of Poplar Bluff.

A 1965 Chevrolet pickup truck, driven by Virgil Brake, 52, Neelyville, was passing a 1962 Chevrolet sedan, driven by Mrs. Mildred Williamson, 36, route one, Harviell.

Mrs. Williamson attempted to make a left turn and ran into the rear of the truck.

Injured were Mrs. Williamson, a daughter, Debra, 6, and a son, Eugene, two, who were all cut and bruised. They were treated at the Lucy Lee hospital in Poplar Bluff.

The driver of the truck was arrested for defective brakes and improper passing.

Hearnes Asks Record Billion-Dollar Budget

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes recommended a record budget of $1,107,936,751 today.

He told the Missouri legislature no new taxes would be needed to finance it.

It leaves an estimated general revenue balance of $25,198,000 as legislative leeway and takes into account a $20 million safe operating reserve for emergencies.

The Governor's budget was put on legislators' desks and his message was read to them. The total compares with 1966-67 appropropations of $977,986,870. About $29 million of this will lapse as unspent.

Highlights of his recommendations included a 5 per cent salary increase for state employes all up and down the line, a $3,000 a year minimum for full time employes, and capital improvements totaling $85.5 million for state agencies and institutions.

Of this amount, $68,241,501 would come from general revenue (tax) money and the rest from federal and other funds.

About half $34,200,240--would go to the state's universities and colleges, and the rest to other state agencies.

The Governor told the Legislature the budget had been prepared only after careful review and hearings. He concluded he could recommend expenditures for nine new programs.

"The decade in which we are living," his message said, "might well be called the 'soaring sixties'. New ideas and new techniques are playing a part in the steadily expanding economy of Missouri and at the same time new aspirations are being experienced and higher goals are being demanded by the citizens of our state.

"Individuals, businesses and governments must anticipate and adapt to this headlong rush to what we hope will be more pleasant, more secure and more meaningful living."

"These are not times for timidity, but Missouri's solid fiscal future requires us to confine ourselves to cautious prophecy."

If all appeals for expanded programs were adopted, he said a sharp increase in taxes would be necessary.

But with $519 million from general revenue, $265, from high way, public funds and $331 million from federal money, he found room for nine new programs, most of them involving increased aid for education and welfare.

Here they are:

(1) A $20,760,000 increase in the state school aid foundation program. This includes a change in the basic formula of $2.7 million, an increase of 2.9 million based on current instead of last year's attendance, $5,162,000 for state aid to kindergarten pupils and $9,975,000, mostly for increases in teachers' salaries. This would bring the total increase in the last three years to more than $45 million.

(2) Allow old age assistance clients or other welfare recipients to live with their families and still get state aid — long a popular proposal in the legislature. Grants under this change would average about $40 a month of which $32.50 would come from federal funds. The state's share would be about $900,000 a year.

(3) Pay doctors for treating assistance patients at a state cost of about $1,577,000 a year. This is a limited approach to the problems raised by Title 19 of the Medicare law in its 1970 requirements.

(4) Out-patient hospital service to welfare recipients on a 50-50 federal matching basis. This program designed especi-

Schools, Roads Welfare Covered

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes recommended a broad program to the new 1967 Legislature today, ranging from toll roads and more state school aid to more liberal welfare laws.

He cautioned the lawmakers that everything could not be done at once and their enactments must be kept within the state's financial abilities. The Governor will present his budget Thursday and it is expected to be of record size, but he recommended no tax increases.

The Governor's program includes a recommendation that the constitution be changed to allow general obligation bond issues to be adopted by a simple majority instead of a two-thirds vote-something the Legislature has never agreed to in the past.

It was the one major objective the Governor failed to achieve in the 1965 session. Most legislators have been talking in terms of a 60 per cent majority but the Governor told them:

"It is not fair, consistent or desirable in a democracy that one person's vote be allowed to nullify two opposing ballots cast by other citizens."

The Governor's 12-page message was set for delivery at 2 p. m. soon after the Legislature convened at noon to get organized.

Most of what Hearnes recommended were things he has been talking about for months. There were few surprises but he hinted he might have more recommendations later.

"The legislation I recommended for your consideration today" he said "is in reality a response to the transition and development in our understanding and our knowledge during the last few years.

"Some of these recommendations reflect problems which should be attacked promptly. Others call attention to legislation overdue, and some anticipate needs which will be urgent all too soon."

Much of the message was devoted to improved school and welfare aid, but the Governor's first recommendations was "that legislation be enacted to authorize the establishment of turnpikes and to place the economic burden of construction and maintenance directly upon those who use them and benefit by them."

He said such a toll road system is necessary "because such an expanded system of primary roads cannot be met by current or predicted tax revenues."

Turning to schools, he recommended further increases in state aid "as rapidly as state funds will allow."

Specifically he urged:

(1) A revision of the foundation program formula to provide higher flat grand payments.

(2) Basing state aid on current enrollments for the fastest growing schools — those whose enrollment has increased by 400 or more or 10 per cent in the last year.

(3) State aid for kindergarten pupils-especially in view of the fact that the first kindergarten was established in Missouri.

(4) Improvement in the state teachers' retirement program.

(5) Formal ratification of the Interstation Compact.

(6) A "shared time" law that would permit handicapped or educationally deprived children to attend both private or parochial and public schools during the six-hour full attendance day that is now required. A similar bill stirred up a controversy in the last session and failed to pass.

Then the Governor turned to a proposal that has been popular in past Legislatures but never has passed—a plan to let welfare recipients live in the same home with their relatives. But he imposed a limit.

He suggested the present "total income in the household" provision be changed so that only actual support, maintenance and income available to the welfare recipient be counted in considering the contributions of relatives.

Other recommendations in the welfare included.

Payment to physicians for their treatment of patients getting assistance.

Out-patient hospital care for those on the assistance rolls—a program designed to help St. Louis and Kansas City especially.

Assistance payments to those over 65 in state mental institutions, with the aid of federal funds now available.

Medical care for the blind from the blind pension fund.

Aid to dependent children in homes with an unemployed father so fathers won't have to desert their families to make them eligible for aid.

A graduated scale of payments to nursing homes for their welfare patients, depending on the professional classification of the homes. Payments would range from $110 for domiciliary homes up to $175 a month for intensive treatment homes.

Returning to a favorite theme, the Governor recommended establishment of a new Department of Community Affairs to aid all local governments and to include present state and regional planning activities.

He said a series of other measures would be introduced later to strengthen local governments.

As in the last session, the Governor recommended a tax break for employers under the unemployment compensation program. He recommended use of the lower of two tax tables whenever the unemployment trust fund reaches 6 per cent of total taxable wages instead of the present 7½ per cent requirement.

He also suggested an increase in jobless payments based on a flexible maximum equal to 50 per cent of the average weekly wage paid in Missouri. The present law limits payments to $45 but the average weekly wage is $111.

In addition to the majority bond vote proposal, the Governor said Missouri should adopt a governorship succes-

3 Fined for Drunkenness

DEXTER -- Three persons have been fined for drunkenness, including a truck driver for Swift and Company.

Donald Shaw, 31, was charged with drunkenness Sunday following an accident on One Mile Road. Police found him in a Swift and Company egg truck, which was in a ditch. Shaw, who sustained a broken hand, was fined $25 for drunkenness.

James L. Gibson, 45, was picked up at his home yesterday and charged with being drunk and disorderly. Police answered a complaint call by Gibson's wife. He was fined $10.

Also fined $10 for being drunk and disorderly yesterday was Nelson McNeeley, 41, who was picked up by police at the corner of Stoddard and Poplar.

Sikeston Boy Be in Washington Parade

The city council last night agreed to allow a boy to appear in the National School Boy Safety Patrol parade and presented a certificate to Harold Vogel, civil defense director.

In other action, the council passed a resolution calling for the construction of curb and guttering on School street from Gladys to Ruth, turned down an application for a five per cent beer license, and passed an ordinance levying a special assessment on a sanitary sewer in Clayton Heights.

The council was notified by the National School Boy Safety Patrol in Washington, D.C., that Sikeston will be eligible to send one boy to the annual parade in May in Washington, D.C. Expenses will be paid by the Missouri chapter of the Automobile Association of America.

The council approved a motion to send him.

Patrol members from each elementary school will choose the representative.

A certificate of acknowledge from the Missouri Civil Defense department was presented by Mayor Kendall Sikes to Vogel as civil defense director. The appointment occurred Oct. 3, 1966.

An application for a five per cent beer license by Orval R. Shamblin, the new owner of Mr. C's IGA, 1043 South Main, was turned down.

The council discussed the application and agreed there was a weakness in the city's ordinance, which allows one license for each 1,250 persons according to the last census. The city has issued 11 such licenses, the legal limit.

Mayor Sikes said he felt the ordinance does an injustice to a person who purchases a business which previously sold beer. The license does not transfer with a change in ownership. Mr. C's IGA had a five-per cent license under the former ownership.

The council voted to let the ordinance stand and turned down the application. It granted Shamblin permission to sell his stock of beer.

Hearnes Offers Bold Legislative Plan

Council Agrees to Buy Police Cars

The city council Tuesday night approved the purchase of two police cars, adopted a fire code and passed a revised ordinance governing handling of milk and milk products and rezoned three areas.

Only two car dealers submitted bids for police cars. Mitchell Sharp Chevrolet was awarded the contract. The company asked a difference of $2,893 for two new Chevrolets. The price for the two new cars was $5,968 less the trade in on two 1965 Fords for which the company allowed the city $3,075.

Sikeston Motor Company asked $4,500 for two new cars allowing the city $1,212 trade in on the two 1965 Fords for a net price of $3,288.

All car dealers were invited to bid on the contract.

At the request of City Manager W. Raymert Miller the council adopted a fire prevention code which regulates storage and transportation of flamables. The city has never had a fire code.

The code applies to companies that transport gas, oil or other flamables. Most of the companies have governed themselves in these matters, Miller said.

Home owners will not be affected Miller said.

The fire code is another requirement for the city's recertification for a workable program to obtain federal aid. The fire chief will have the power to modify provisions of the code as long as the spirit of the code is upheld.

Violations of the code can bring a fine from $10 to $100 and a 30-day jail sentence.

At the urging of County Sanitarian W. C. Mulcahy the city adopted a 1965 ordinance governing regulations affecting the bacteria count, temperature and equipment used in the processing, transportation and storage of milk and milk products.

The ordinance is a standardized code approved by the U.S. public health service. The previous code was adopted in 1956, and did not make provision for the technological changes, which have taken place in the industry, Warren Manning, county sanitarian, said.

Mulcahy stressed the importance of passing the ordinance before July 1, 1967. The state will survey the milk and milk products in July and rate the county under the provisions of the 1965 ordinance.

The new ordinance will facilitate the transportation and sale of milk produced here and taken across state lines or to other sections of the state where the 1965 ordinance is in effect.

The meeting opened with a public hearing on the proposed re-zoning of three areas. No one voiced objection to any of the areas re-zoned. An ordinance encompassing the changes in zoning was passed unanimously in a roll call vote.

The re-zoning included changing from two family dwelling to multi-family sections of McCoy and Tanner's first, second sixth, eighth and ninth additions and a section on the south side of Tanner from Taylor to west of Prairie.

An area south of the Cream Castle was re-zoned from single or two family dwellings to commercial use. The changes in zoning were recommended by zoning commission.

Woman Flees House Flames

Smoke fumes in a burning house awakened its only occupant in time for her to save her life late Tuesday night in the Smith addition.

Mrs. Willie Burton, 518 Smith, ran from her bedroom through leaping flames in the living room to escape the blaze through the front door. She was awakened after 11 p.m. The fire singed some of her hair as she fled.

Heavy fire damage was caused to the furniture and house. Mrs. Burton had lived there for the past four months. The single story wood frame dwelling was in a run down condition prior to the fire. It is owned by L.I. Denton of East Prairie.

Sikeston volunteer firemen fought the blaze for more than an hour.

The fire is believed to have started from a wood stove.

Mrs. Burton said she did not know how it started.

'What's the Law' Begins Today

Jack Strauss, successful New York lawyer, was searching for precedents bearing on an important case he was handling.

The deeper he dug, the stranger were rulings on the matter.

"This would make a good newspaper story!" he exclaimed.

This was a natural remark because Strauss is a former newspaperman.

Thus his nationally syndicated column, "What's the Law," came into being.

Turn to page 14 for "What's the Law" a new daily feature which starts today in the Daily Standard.

Each day he writes about one or two cases that led to striking or amusing rulings. He tells the facts of these cases succinctly and with a dash of humor.

Gilmore Replaces Matthews

Tom R. Gilmore, 411 Shady Lane, was appointed assistant prosecuting attorney of Scott county effective Jan. 1, Scott county prosecutor Fielding Potashnick said today.

Gilmore replaces Charles D. Matthews who served in the position for more than two years. Matthews and Potashnick will continue their law partnership.

Gilmore was born and reared in Sikeston, till his family moved to Kansas City. He graduated high school in Kansas City in 1957. Then attended Yale till 1961. He entered law school in 1962 at Georgetown University in Washington, D.C. and graduated in June, 1965.

Gilmore served as a law clerk from July, 1965 till August, 1966 for U.S. Federal Judge James H. Meredith of St. Louis. Meredith is judge of the eastern district of Missouri.

He then entered practice here in the firm of Gilmore and Gilmore, where he has practiced since August, 1966.

Gilmore is married to the former Miss Carol Ann Hacker of Jackson. They have two daughters, Tammy, three and Tracey, one and a son, Tim, four years old.

The only President to become chief justice of the Supreme Court was William Howard Taft. He was appointed in 1921 by President Harding.

Second Theft Foiled

BENTON - A set of burglar tools found behing the Benton post office were those used to crack the safe at the Morley post office Sunday night, sheriff's officers reported today.

The burglars apparently were scared off when they attempted to break into the post office here.

Found were crowbars, punches and other accessories commonly associated with safecracking. The tools were found Tuesday.

No clues to the identity of the burglars have been obtained.

Taken in the Morley burglary were $175 cash, ten $25 and $100 Series E savings bonds valued at $825 and $1,100 in stamps.

Bragg City Girl Dies in Truck Crash

HAYTI, MO. (AP) - Mary Williams, 16, of Bragg City was killed Tuesday when she was pinned beneath a pickup truck which went out of control and overturned in a drainage ditch about eight miles west of Hayti. She was drowned.

Missouri Highway Patrolmen said the victim was one of four passengers in a 1961 International truck driven by Lloyd Mink, 19, of Kennett.

The truck skidded off a gravel road, one and one-half miles south of highway 84 in Pemiscot county. The ditch was full of water.

The accident occurred at 7:10 p.m.

There were five teenagers riding in the cab of the truck. One of them, David Cross, 16, route one, Bragg City, received a sprained limb. He was treated at the Pemiscot County hospital.

The body of the Williams girl was taken to the German Funeral Home in Caruthersville.

Three persons were injured in a two-vehicle collision Tuesday at 2:30 p.m. at the junction of highway 67 and highway V, 10 miles south of Poplar Bluff.

A 1965 Chevrolet pickup truck, driven by Virgil Brake, 52, Neelyville, was passing a 1962 Chevrolet sedan, driven by Mrs. Mildred Williamson, 36, route one, Harviell.

Mrs. Williamson attempted to make a left turn and ran into the rear of the truck.

Injured were Mrs. Williamson, a daughter, Debra, 6, and a son, Eugene, two, who were all cut and bruised. They were treated at the Lucy Lee hospital in Poplar Bluff.

The driver of the truck was arrested for defective brakes and improper passing.

Hearnes Asks Record Billion-Dollar Budget

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes recommended a record budget of $1,107,936,751 today.

He told the Missouri legislature no new taxes would be needed to finance it.

It leaves an estimated general revenue balance of $25,198,000 as legislative leeway and takes into account a $20 million safe operating reserve for emergencies.

The Governor's budget was put on legislators' desks and his message was read to them. The total compares with 1966-67 appropropations of $977,986,870. About $29 million of this will lapse as unspent.

Highlights of his recommendations included a 5 per cent salary increase for state employes all up and down the line, a $3,000 a year minimum for full time employes, and capital improvements totaling $85.5 million for state agencies and institutions.

Of this amount, $68,241,501 would come from general revenue (tax) money and the rest from federal and other funds.

About half $34,200,240--would go to the state's universities and colleges, and the rest to other state agencies.

The Governor told the Legislature the budget had been prepared only after careful review and hearings. He concluded he could recommend expenditures for nine new programs.

"The decade in which we are living," his message said, "might well be called the 'soaring sixties'. New ideas and new techniques are playing a part in the steadily expanding economy of Missouri and at the same time new aspirations are being experienced and higher goals are being demanded by the citizens of our state.

"Individuals, businesses and governments must anticipate and adapt to this headlong rush to what we hope will be more pleasant, more secure and more meaningful living."

"These are not times for timidity, but Missouri's solid fiscal future requires us to confine ourselves to cautious prophecy."

If all appeals for expanded programs were adopted, he said a sharp increase in taxes would be necessary.

But with $519 million from general revenue, $265, from high way, public funds and $331 million from federal money, he found room for nine new programs, most of them involving increased aid for education and welfare.

Here they are:

(1) A $20,760,000 increase in the state school aid foundation program. This includes a change in the basic formula of $2.7 million, an increase of 2.9 million based on current instead of last year's attendance, $5,162,000 for state aid to kindergarten pupils and $9,975,000, mostly for increases in teachers' salaries. This would bring the total increase in the last three years to more than $45 million.

(2) Allow old age assistance clients or other welfare recipients to live with their families and still get state aid — long a popular proposal in the legislature. Grants under this change would average about $40 a month of which $32.50 would come from federal funds. The state's share would be about $900,000 a year.

(3) Pay doctors for treating assistance patients at a state cost of about $1,577,000 a year. This is a limited approach to the problems raised by Title 19 of the Medicare law in its 1970 requirements.

(4) Out-patient hospital service to welfare recipients on a 50-50 federal matching basis. This program designed especi-

Schools, Roads Welfare Covered

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes recommended a broad program to the new 1967 Legislature today, ranging from toll roads and more state school aid to more liberal welfare laws.

He cautioned the lawmakers that everything could not be done at once and their enactments must be kept within the state's financial abilities. The Governor will present his budget Thursday and it is expected to be of record size, but he recommended no tax increases.

The Governor's program includes a recommendation that the constitution be changed to allow general obligation bond issues to be adopted by a simple majority instead of a two-thirds vote-something the Legislature has never agreed to in the past.

It was the one major objective the Governor failed to achieve in the 1965 session. Most legislators have been talking in terms of a 60 per cent majority but the Governor told them:

"It is not fair, consistent or desirable in a democracy that one person's vote be allowed to nullify two opposing ballots cast by other citizens."

The Governor's 12-page message was set for delivery at 2 p. m. soon after the Legislature convened at noon to get organized.

Most of what Hearnes recommended were things he has been talking about for months. There were few surprises but he hinted he might have more recommendations later.

"The legislation I recommended for your consideration today" he said "is in reality a response to the transition and development in our understanding and our knowledge during the last few years.

"Some of these recommendations reflect problems which should be attacked promptly. Others call attention to legislation overdue, and some anticipate needs which will be urgent all too soon."

Much of the message was devoted to improved school and welfare aid, but the Governor's first recommendations was "that legislation be enacted to authorize the establishment of turnpikes and to place the economic burden of construction and maintenance directly upon those who use them and benefit by them."

He said such a toll road system is necessary "because such an expanded system of primary roads cannot be met by current or predicted tax revenues."

Turning to schools, he recommended further increases in state aid "as rapidly as state funds will allow."

Specifically he urged:

(1) A revision of the foundation program formula to provide higher flat grand payments.

(2) Basing state aid on current enrollments for the fastest growing schools — those whose enrollment has increased by 400 or more or 10 per cent in the last year.

(3) State aid for kindergarten pupils-especially in view of the fact that the first kindergarten was established in Missouri.

(4) Improvement in the state teachers' retirement program.

(5) Formal ratification of the Interstation Compact.

(6) A "shared time" law that would permit handicapped or educationally deprived children to attend both private or parochial and public schools during the six-hour full attendance day that is now required. A similar bill stirred up a controversy in the last session and failed to pass.

Then the Governor turned to a proposal that has been popular in past Legislatures but never has passed—a plan to let welfare recipients live in the same home with their relatives. But he imposed a limit.

He suggested the present "total income in the household" provision be changed so that only actual support, maintenance and income available to the welfare recipient be counted in considering the contributions of relatives.

Other recommendations in the welfare included.

Payment to physicians for their treatment of patients getting assistance.

Out-patient hospital care for those on the assistance rolls—a program designed to help St. Louis and Kansas City especially.

Assistance payments to those over 65 in state mental institutions, with the aid of federal funds now available.

Medical care for the blind from the blind pension fund.

Aid to dependent children in homes with an unemployed father so fathers won't have to desert their families to make them eligible for aid.

A graduated scale of payments to nursing homes for their welfare patients, depending on the professional classification of the homes. Payments would range from $110 for domiciliagy homes up to $175 a month for intensive treatment homes.

Returning to a favorite theme, the Governor recommended establishment of a new Department of Community Affairs to aid all local governments and to include present state and regional planning activities.

He said a series of other measures would be introduced later to strengthen local governments.

As in the last session, the Governor recommended a tax break for employers under the unemployment compensation program. He recommended use of the lower of two tax tables whenever the unemployment trust fund reaches 6 per cent of total taxable wages instead of the present 7½ per cent requirement.

He also suggested an increase in jobless payments based on a flexible maximum equal to 50 per cent of the average weekly wage paid in Missouri. The present law limits payments to $45 but the average weekly wage is $111.

In addition to the majority bond vote proposal, the Governor said Missouri should adopt a governorship succes-

Sikeston Boy Be in Washington Parade

The city council last night agreed to allow a boy to appear in the National School Boy Safety Patrol parade and presented a certificate to Harold Vogel, civil defense director.

In other action, the council passed a resolution calling for the construction of curb and guttering on School street from Gladys to Ruth, turned down an application for a five per cent beer license, and passed an ordinance levying a special assessment on a sanitary sewer in Clayton Heights.

The council was notified by the National School Boy Safety Patrol in Washington, D.C., that Sikeston will be eligible to send one boy to the annual parade in May in Washington, D.C. Expenses will be paid by the Missouri chapter of the Automobile Association of America.

The council approved a motion to send him.

Patrol members from each elementary school will choose the representative.

A certificate of acknowledge from the Missouri Civil Defense department was presented by Mayor Kendall Sikes to Vogel as civil defense director. The appointment occurred Oct. 3, 1966.

An application for a five per cent beer license by Orval R. Shamblin, the new owner of Mr. C's IGA, 1043 South Main, was turned down.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
A MAN WHO'S HARD TO LIKE

The board of vice presidents of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters meets in Hollywood, Fla., today.

Unless you are one of the 1.7 million members of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Warehousemen, and Helpers, you will probably find James Riddle Hoffa a hard man to like. Yet in his current fight to postpone his date with the jailhouse he is receiving rather ironic support.

Representatives of thousands of employers who will negotiate with the Teamsters on a new contract beginning Jan. 17 met in Washington on Dec. 20. They said that the imminent jailing of Jimmy Hoffa is coming at a critical time. Bargaining without Hoffa, in the words of one employer, "could be along a course of treacherous pitfalls for everybody." The industry leaders did decline "unanimously to intervene in behalf of Hoffa" to get his incarceration pushed back beyond the time when present Teamsters labor agreements expire - March 31.

This idea that somebody may be a monster but at least he's our monster is not new in labor-management history, of course. But to the credit of Hoffa it must be said that he keeps his members in line, that he honors his contracts, and that in management's eyes he is as dependable as he is tough.

The U.S. Supreme Court on Dec. 12 upheld a 1964 jury tampering conviction against Hoffa. Then on Dec. 21, Justice Potter Stewart, who had written the 4-to-1 decision (Justices Fortas and White not participating, Chief Justice Warren dissenting), gave Hoffa a lift. The original deadline for filing a petition for a rehearing in the Marble Palace was pushed back to Feb. 4. The Court will not begin its February sessions until Feb. 13, so that means that Hoffa has received a reprieve of about a month.

Four trucking executives appeared on a National Broadcasting Company nationally televised program Dec. 15 to argue strongly that jailing Hoffa during the forthcoming negotiations would greatly reduce the chances of a mutually acceptable settlement. Industry sources have said that those most eager to keep Hoffa on the scene were smaller company executives who are close to him or who are most vulnerable than are big company generals.

Hoffa faces eight years on the jury conviction, five years if convicted on another federal charge, and a possible additional five years barring him - under the Landrum-Griffin Act - from any elective office in the union. What happens in the Teamsters if the Big H goes to the pokey?

Nobody in Washington really knows, but the bets are that Jimmy won't be able to run the union from prison. There is almost as much doubt that his handpicked successor, Frank E. Fitzsimmons, will be able to maintain the firm control that Hoffa established. Some see as inevitable that the chain of command will be shattered, and the real power will be returned to the regional Teamster barons who had it before Dave Beck and after him Jimmy Hoffa welded it to Washington.

In any event, Jimmy's passing will be lamented. Such conservative voices as Time (Dec. 23), U.S. News & World Report (Dec. 26), and Business Week (Dec. 17) already have expressed extreme dubiety about the upcoming labor contract negotiations if Jimmy's got to go.

THE NEW CAR STANDARDS

Automobile makers have until Tuesday (Jan. 3) to comment upon new federal safety standards and suggest modifications. The National Highway Safety Agency will make these standards final on Jan. 31, effective for 1968, model cars scheduled to start production in August.

Automobile safety would seem to require coldly logical treatment. Instead it has become a matter of high controversy, as evidenced even in advance of the imminent issuance of federal safety standards for the 1968 car models.

What is happening now is comparable to the squabble over the new safety laws adopted by the 89th Congress. At first spokesmen for the industry expressed firm opposition to any federally written standards. Later the softer self-policing approach was broached. Still later industry wanted to get right in there pitching - establishing and writing safety standards.

Indeed, in design of the 1967 models the industry put great emphasis on safety. Part of the innovations were already dictated by specifications of the General Services Administration for cars bought by the federal government. Standard features on all 1967 models are a dual system of brakes, a steering wheel and column that "give" in head-on collisions, and a system of warning lights that will flash all four turn signals simultaneously if the car stalls on the road. Other new features - some of which had been optional before - are stronger latches and hinges to hold doors shut in event of accident, recessed instrument and control knobs, bigger outside rear-view mirror, and multiple-speed windshield wiper and washer.

Detroit intelligence had indicated that the new federal standards would follow closely those of the GSA. Then on Dec. 3 the National Highway Safety Agency dropped a small bomb. Dr. William Haddon, Jr., agency director, in a speech before industry leaders in Detroit, proposed 23 safety standards for all cars that in general were much tougher than the GSA regulations.

Admitting it was an "emotional thing" with him, Henry Ford II on Dec. 14 attacked the Haddon standards as "unreasonable, arbitrary, and technically not feasible."

Ford complained that the industry was not given enough lead time to meet the new standards. "This industry is important to the economy of the United States," Ford said. "If production lines are closed down because we cannot meet the standards, it will have serious effect."

Auto industry critic Ralph Nader promptly branded the Ford statement "industrial extortion." Americans for Democratic Action called it "a heavy-handed attempt at blackmail reminiscent of the tactics employed by the robber barons."

Ford gave no specifics, but Will Scott, in charge of auto safety for Ford's car and truck group, spelled out some of the company's objections on Dec. 16. Others followed suit. One company complained that strict enforcement would drive it out of business.

The Haddon rules undoubtedly will be softened by Jan. 31. But the federal agency is expected to continue its general hard-nosed approach.

While the new standards were under consideration in Congress, Car Life editorialized: "The safety inquisitors are asking for a veritable Sherman tank of an automobile." Replied Dr. Haddon: "Without providing Sherman tank design, you can protect all riders from severe injuries."

RHODE ISLAND (Constitution, 1963 supp.)

We, the people of the state of Rhode Island. . .grateful to Almighty God for the civil and religious liberty which He hath so long permitted us to enjoy, and looking to Him for a blessing upon our endeavors to secure and transmit the same . . .(establish this Constitution.) ONE OF THE best-loved of the Christmas superstitions is the belief that on Christmas Eve the Christ child wanders over the earth, bearing a bundle of evergreens on his shoulder. He stops at every house which is willing to welcome him, and brings blessings to those who dwell therein. Those who wish to signify that he will be welcome in their home place lighted candles in the window to guide the Christ child on his way. Although the custom of placing candles in the windows originated many centuries ago, it is still extensively observed in all parts of the world, even where its first significance is no longer remembered.

THE QUESTION OF USER CHARGES

Last May President Johnson, in a special transportation message to Congress, urged the imposition of new and increased user charges on carriers operating over publicly-provided road, air and water facilities. Congress did not act on this during the first session. But it will be up again during the second session and the reason for the Presidential request should be thoroughly understood by the public, which has the most at stake.

In the President's words, user charges ". . .assess the cost of special services and facilities against those who reap the benefits, instead of imposing unwarranted burdens on the general taxpayer. They restrain the demands of special groups for expanded services by establishing the principle that the beneficiaries pay at least part of the costs. In the case of transportation, they help to eliminate the economic distortions which result when competing modes of transportation rely in varying degrees on facilities or services providing by the Government."

There is still another important aspect to this matter. The President recognized it when he wrote: "The absence of a fair system of user charges strongly affects the ability of various segments of the transportation industry to compete and obscures the inherent advantages of some modes of transportation. As a result, it unnecessarily increases the cost of transportation to the economy."

A few figures demonstrate how important the problem is. In 1965 federal outlays for road, air and water facilities came to $5.6 billion. Outlays for these facilities by all government units, states and local communities included, reached $16.2 billion, with highways accounting for 87 per cent of the total. A substantial part of that huge sum goes for the benefit of commercial transportation agencies using the facilities. A system of fair and equitable user chages, such as the President has recommended, is needed in the public interest.

Definition -- BILL -- "I understand Henry is roughing it these days."

WILL -- "Roughing it' my eye. He means he is turning down his electric blanket one notch."

H. L. Hunt Says

DEFINING THE PUBLIC INTEREST

Some politicians would have us believe that they alone have a clear concept of what the "public interest" actually is and how it can best be served. Proceeding on this theory, they frequently demand that some U.S. industry "act in the public interest" by not raising prices.

In a free economy like ours prices go up and down. In a period of inflation like the present they are much more likely to go up than down. But in any period they are bound to fluctuate in accordance with changes in supply and demand.

Recently the Federal Government has been trying to hold prices level even as it is increasing the quantity of money. During the last six years the combined policies of the government and the Federal Reserve have resulted in an increase of 52 per cent in the supply of money. This increase naturally has cheapened the value of the dollar.

Government-dictated prices are not in the public interest, which would be served much better by a halt to heavy deficit spending by the government. That is a prime cause of hurtful inflation.

There are those in government who look constantly for excuses to impose more and more controls on the American people; for their own good, of course! But many are not ready to accept the definition of public interest that is put forward by advocates of rigid controls.

Only a free price system can provide assurance that the thousands of different commodities and services provided today can be produced in the proportions demanded by the buying public. HLH

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Inside Story of New Reuther Strategy.

Washington, D. C.: -- Insiders now are certain Walter Reuther, the oldest youth in the labor movement, now is in deep trouble on his home grounds. There is sharp disaffection inside his union. There have been serious financial difficulties, what with the liquidation of four banks in which the United Auto Workers (UAW) either owned thousands of shares or had millions of dollars on deposit.

Even worse for the copper-haired militant is a wave of mockery never before encountered by the commandant of the original auto plant sitins 30 years ago. Tens of thousands of reprints of a satiric piece -- titled "Reuther Backs Down: The Case of the Timid Cowboy" -- are being distributed across the land by skilled auto workers now opposed to the UAW president.

"This could be called the saga of Walter the Kid, whose lip is greater than his dexterity on the draw, vs. George Meany, alias Mean Meany . . still the fastest draw in the labor movement," says the needling piece.

"The Kid, being fast in the mouth and slow with the action, allowed as how the time had come for a showdown, letting his verbosity run away with his sense. He challenged Meany to a shootout at the corral."

It then describes Reuther's rout and advises finally, "Don't lip off unless you have something to lip off about," after using phrases like Reuther "chickened out" while "Meany stood in the center of the street at high noon and waited. . ."

This mockery, when added to the fact that some 750,000 UAW members were born about the time Reuther's reputation was burgeoning and hardly know the man who will be 60 years old when he leads them into battle against the auto companies, could well be damaging to his bargaining power next September.

Thus, there is little doubt among the handful of national labor leaders who have access to Reuther's own inner circle that the Detroiter's year - end "White Paper," the searing of the AFL-CIO, was not aimed at its president, George Meany, but at the automobile manufacturing industry.

Several sources close to Reuther, far closer to him than most would believe, confirmed this to this columnist.

As his own colleagues see his open letter, it is part of a new long series of public thrusts to stay on the front pages between now and next summer to remake his image.

It is one of a series of imagery moves to remake the Dorian Gray picture of "Walter" as the militant he "really is." It is an effort in a continuing process to have him appear to be the symbol of challenge to the status quo, the firebrand for America's youth, the tough bargainer, the crusader slashing at the elder statesmen now leading the AFL-CIO.

It is aimed at having platoons of newsmen from the printed media and the electronic field, trot behind him and crowd his press conference wherever he goes.

All this is apparent from his "White Paper." It was carefully planned as a "shocker". On the Thursday before the New Year's week-end, newsmen on all coasts and in several big cities were alerted. Special agencies in the Midwest and Washington were retained for the distribution of the letter.

Then the UAW headquarters, Solidarity House, was shut for four days. Silence.

An analysis of the "White Paper" reveals that Reuther truly was whirling up a confetti storm.

Officials in the AFL-CIO national headquarters anonymously made some fascinating points which will haunt Reuther.

The Detroiter has only himself to blame if there has been no drive to unionize the non-union working people. Reuther for 11 years now has been permanent chairman of the AFL-CIO national Organization Committee -- a standing committee he could call into action anytime he wanted.

He hasn't.

Reuther could easily have rectified any domestic policy of the merged Federation anytime he wanted. For 11 years he has been permanent chairman of the AFL-CIO national Economic Police Committee, also a standing committee.

As for the AFL-CIO Executive Committee, he has been on it for 11 years and has said nothing about its activity.

As for foreign affairs, except on one occasion, he has voted scores of times -- every time -- for the official AFL-CIO policy. This has been the case for 11 years.

Rarely, if ever, has he raised any of the issues in the Executive Council sessions which he has raised in his letter. In fact, he has been quite friendly to George Meany.

For example, as recently as December 15, he joined Meany in a private lunch to former Senator Paul Douglas in a local hotel. Reuther greeted Meany warmly and then both men sat at the sides of Mr. Douglas, as snug as bugs in a rug, as Benjamin Franklin would say.

Furthermore, says one of the top AFL-CIO men, there has been organization. The federation is the only labor movement in the free world to gain members (in industrial lands). The movements in England, France, Sweden, Italy, etc., lost ground.

So they view Reuther's blasts really as the opening of his campaign to gain strength amongst his own people in preparation for the bargaining with -- and strike against -- the auto industry.

For the moment he is in difficulty, and with paternal kindness the elder statesmen, like good football pros, don't plan to rough him up. They understand.

MANCHESTER, England (AP) — Geographically, the Southern Hotel is appropriately down south-way down yonder in South Manchester.

Why?

"I'm probably the only middle-aged, South-loving, frustrated English cowboy you've ever met," explained John Ridley 45, "and I'm the proprietor of the Southern hotel.

"I like the South. I like the Southwest. I've been fascinated by everything Southern and Southwestern since I was a child. But, it was just pure luck when I got the Southern Hotel. You see, it had been named that before I got it. I suppose it's because it's in South Manchester."

In addition to being the proprietor of the Southern Hotel, Ridley is also an official of the Quick-Draw Club in Blackpool.

"We started the club four years ago," he said. "I practice in my cellar, get through about 1,000 rounds of ammunition every week."

Then the members own guns?

"Loads of them. I've got a single-hand rig and a twin-rig. The twin-rig is for the two-gun man. I confess, I'm a two-gun English cowboy."

And horses?

"Oh, yes, we've got horses. Not only do most of us have horses, but we have rifles, real American Western rifles and for that matter, handmade leather holsters."

But isn't all this very costly?

"You're right it is. Just ask my wife. She's giving me hell about it, pardner."

Ridley said he wanted to get one thing definitely understood.

"I like all Americans," he insisted. "I just happen to favor the South.

"During the war in Italy, I was in a hospital in Caserta. It was my birthday and they let me out on crutches.

"I met up with some of your boys in a little cafe and got to talking and I said I'd met American men, but I'd never even seen an American girl.

"A big sergeant said, 'We'll fix that.' Do you know, those American soldiers picked up my crutches and they picked me up too and they took me to a place where your WACs were stationed.

"Well, sir, those soldiers knocked on a door and we all went in and sat around for a few minutes being entertained by two delightful American girls."

"The sergeant was a fellow named McDonnell from Texas. Well, he disappeared and after a while I began to get embarrassed at taking up so much of these girls' time.

"Just then some sliding doors opened and I saw about 20 or 30 of these American girls. They were standing around their dining table and on the table was a cake and on the cake there was some candles. They began singing 'Happy birthday.'"

"I cried like a child," said Ridley.

Have any Americans ever been in the Southern Hotel?

"Not that I know of," he replied, "but I'd be proud to welcome them."

And if they were Southerners?

"The first Southerner who comes in here, or for that matter, the second or the third one, well, if he wants to drink I'll promise he can drink all he wants to—and it won't cost him a penny. Why, I'd be honored, suh."

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON - The amazing manner in which Congressman Adam Clayton Powell, the Harlem globe-trotter, played fast and loose with the taxpayers' money on his junkets has been disclosed in vivid detail behind the closed doors of the House Administration Committee.

In some cases fistfuls of airline tickets were taken out in his subordinates' names but used by Powell.

Here is some of the cross-examination of Powell's employees:

"There's a record that one time I bought about 20 to 30 tickets and gave them all to him (Powell," testified Chuck Stone, Powell's administrative assistant.

"Whose names were on the tickets?" Stone was asked.

"Swann, Clark, Lewis, mine." He cited members of Powell's staff. "They were for people other than staff people?" Stone was asked. "No, they were all for him."

"It was necessary to put names in there as to who was going to be traveling?" Stone was asked.

"Yes."

"Whose names would you put in?"

"I put in the person's name who was going to travel, unless I put in whatever name the chairman ordered me to put in."

"What names would he order you to put in?"

"My name, Lewis, Clark, Swann, Warren," Stone replied.

"Did the persons whose names appeared on the ticket perform the travel?"

"Not very frequently; no, they didn't," replied Stone.

"Who would be frequently performing the travel on those tickets?"

"The chairman."

"Who else?"

"Miss Huff."

"Who else?"

"That is all."

BEAUTIFUL "MISS OHIO"

Miss Huff to whom Stone referred is Miss Corinne Huff, the first Negro to win the Miss Ohio Beauty Contest and who has been a frequent traveler with the Harlem congressman to Europe and the British Bahamas.

The testimony intrigued Rep. Paul Jones, D-Mo. He asked: "Those 20 tickets you bought at one time - were they all for the same destination?"

"I think they were a variety, sir," replied Stone. "I think it's like Washington to Miami, and New York to Miami. It was a combination - different combinations you might say."

The Subcommittee, under the chairmanship of Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, had done a thorough job of checking travel accounts. Committee counsel confronted Stone with the fact that nine flights appeared to have been made by Stone and Mrs. Emma T. Swann to the same destination.

"We have a substantial number of trips between here and New York allegedly performed by you and Mrs. Swann," Stone was told. "Did you ever travel with Mrs. Swann on any trip whatsoever?"

"A couple of trips I went with her, but not as a rule," Stone replied.

"What explanation do you have to offer for the name of Swann being on a ticket which is on the same flight with you in nine instances?"

"The explanation is that I don't think I took those trips," replied Rep. Powell's administrative assistant.

Mrs. Swann is the receptionist for the Committee on Education and Labor of which Powell is the chairman. She was recorded as having made 40 flights between April 30, 1965, through July 31, 1966 - 18 between Washington and Miami; 30 between New York and Washington; one from Buffalo to Washington, and one from Buffalo to New York city.

"Her duties as receptionist required her to perform no official travel," commented an administration committee member.

When put on the witness stand, Mrs. Swann was asked:

"Did you make these trips on committee business?"

"I have made none on committee business," was her frank reply.

"You have made none on committee business?"

"None whatsoever."

"Were you aware that your name might have been used in connection with travel by others in the office?"

"No, I was not."

OTHER ANONYMOUS JUNKETS

Russell Derrickson, staff director of Powell's Education and Labor Committee, as revealed by Congressman Hays's Investigating Committee, had taken 26 airplane trips between New York and Washington from June 25, 1965, through Sept. 20, 1966. Derrickson said he "performed none of the travel shown by this audit."

Michael Schwartz, counsel on labor management for Powell's committee, gave a deposition in which he said he had received payment of vouchers for subsistence and expenses for a 16-day trip to Miami in June, 1966, on committee business, but no record of his transportation turned up. What occupied him in the resort city of Miami in regard to labor management for 16 beautiful sunshine days remained a mystery.

Vidal Chacon was paid $530.01 in April, 1965, for doing nothing; or, as the investigating committee put it in more eloquent language, "He apparently rendered no service whatsoever." Powell had kept him hanging around Washington unoccupied.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
A MAN WHO'S HARD TO LIKE

The board of vice presidents of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters meets in Hollywood, Fla., today.

Unless you are one of the 1.7 million members of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Warehousemen, and Helpers, you will probably find James Riddle Hoffa a hard man to like. Yet in his current fight to postpone his date with the jailhouse he is receiving rather ironic support.

Representatives of thousands of employers who will negotiate with the Teamsters on a new contract beginning Jan. 17 met in Washington on Dec. 20. They said that the imminent jailing of Jimmy Hoffa is coming at a critical time. Bargaining without Hoffa, in the words of one employer, "could be along a course of treacherous pitfalls for everybody." The industry leaders did decline "unanimously to intervene in behalf of Hoffa" to get his incarceration pushed back beyond the time when present Teamsters labor agreements expire - March 31.

This idea that somebody may be a monster but at least he's our monster is not new in labor-management history, of course. But to the credit of Hoffa it must be said that he keeps his members in line, that he honors his contracts, and that in management's eyes he is as dependable as he is tough.

The U.S. Supreme Court on Dec. 12 upheld a 1964 jury tampering conviction against Hoffa. Then on Dec. 21, Justice Potter Stewart, who had written the 4-to-1 decision (Justices Fortas and White not participating, Chief Justice Warren dissenting), gave Hoffa a lift. The original deadline for filing a petition for a rehearing in the Marble Palace was pushed back to Feb. 4. The Court will not begin its February sessions until Feb. 13, so that means that Hoffa has received a reprieve of about a month.

Four trucking executives appeared on a National Broadcasting Company nationally televised program Dec. 15 to argue strongly that jailing Hoffa during the forthcoming negotiations would greatly reduce the chances of a mutually acceptable settlement. Industry sources have said that those most eager to keep Hoffa on the scene were smaller company executives who are close to him or who are most vulnerable than are big company generals.

Hoffa faces eight years on the jury conviction, five years if convicted on another federal charge, and a possible additional five years barring him - under the Landrum-Griffin Act - from any elective office in the union. What happens in the Teamsters if the Big H goes to the pokey?

Nobody in Washington really knows, but the bets are that Jimmy won't be able to run the union from prison. There is almost as much doubt that his handpicked successor, Frank E. Fitzsimmons, will be able to maintain the firm control that Hoffa established. Some see as inevitable that the chain of command will be shattered, and the real power will be returned to the regional Teamster barons who had it before Dave Beck and after him Jimmy Hoffa welded it to Washington.

In any event, Jimmy's passing will be lamented. Such conservative voices as Time (Dec. 23), U.S. News & World Report (Dec. 26), and Business Week (Dec. 17) already have expressed extreme dubiety about the upcoming labor contract negotiations if Jimmy's got to go.

THE NEW CAR STANDARDS

Automobile makers have until Tuesday (Jan. 3) to comment upon new federal safety standards and suggest modifications. The National Highway Safety Agency will make these standards final on Jan. 31, effective for 1968, model cars scheduled to start production in August.

Automobile safety would seem to require coldly logical treatment. Instead it has become a matter of high controversy, as evidenced even in advance of the imminent issuance of federal safety standards for the 1968 car models.

Evidence That The U.S.A. Is "Constitutionally Christian."

RHODE ISLAND (Constitution, 1963 supp.)

We, the people of the state of Rhode Island. . .grateful to Almighty God for the civil and religious liberty which He hath so long permitted us to enjoy, and looking to Him for a blessing upon our endeavors to secure and transmit the same . . .(establish this Constitution.) Preamble to Constitution.

Whereas Almighty God hath created the mind free; and all attempts to influence it by temporal punishments or burdens, or by civil incapacitations, tend to beget habits of hypocrisy and meanness; and whereas a principal object of our venerable ancestors, in their migration to this country and their settlement of this state, was, as they expressed it, to hold forth a lively experiment, that a flourishing civil state may stand and be best maintained with full liberty in religious concernments; we, therefore, declare that no man shall be compelled to frequent or to support any religious worship, place, or ministry whatever, except in fulfillment of his own voluntary contract; nor enforced, restrained, molested, or burdened in his body or goods; nor disqualified from holding any office; nor otherwise suffer on account of his religious belief; and that every man shall be free to worship God according to the dictates of his own conscience, and to profess and by argument to maintain his opinion in matters of religion; and that the same shall in no wise diminish, enlarge, or effect his civil capacity. Art I, sec. 3.

ONE OF THE best-loved of the Christmas superstitions is the belief that on Christmas Eve the Christ child wanders over the earth, bearing a bundle of evergreens on his shoulder. He stops at every house which is willing to welcome him, and brings blessings to those who dwell therein. Those who wish to signify that he will be welcome in their home place lighted candles in the window to guide the Christ child on his way. Although the custom of placing candles in the windows originated many centuries ago, it is still extensively observed in all parts of the world, even where its first significance is no longer remembered.

A young San Francisco lady, wearing a topless dress, went for a walk. It was a pleasant day and she walked too far and become tired. So she decided to rest in a beautiful church on the avenue. As she entered the usher attempted to stop her but she walked right past and sat down in one of the front pews.

The usher followed her and said "You can't come in to the church like this." She replied: "I have a perfect right."

Yes, I know, and your left is pretty good," he replied, "but you're not wearing a hat."

"I suppose you carry a memento of some sort in that locket of yours?"

"Yes, it is a lock of my husband's hair."

"But your husband is still alive!"

"Yes, but his hair is gone."

THE QUESTION OF USER CHARGES

Last May President Johnson, in a special transportation message to Congress, urged the imposition of new and increased user charges on carriers operating over publicly-provided road, air and water facilities. Congress did not act on this during the first session. But it will be up again during the second session and the reason for the Presidential request should be thoroughly understood by the public, which has the most at stake.

In the President's words, user charges ". . .assess the cost of special services and facilities against those who reap the benefits, instead of imposing unwarranted burdens on the general taxpayer. They restrain the demands of special groups for expanded services by establishing the principle that the beneficiaries pay at least part of the costs. In the case of transportation, they help to eliminate the economic distortions which result when competing modes of transportation rely in varying degrees on facilities or services providing by the Government."

There is still another important aspect to this matter. The President recognized it when he wrote: "The absence of a fair system of user charges strongly affects the ability of various segments of the transportation industry to compete and obscures the inherent advantages of some modes of transportation. As a result, it unnecessarily increases the cost of transportation to the economy."

A few figures demonstrate how important the problem is. In 1965 federal outlays for road, air and water facilities came to $5.6 billion. Outlays for these facilities by all government units, states and local communities included, reached $16.2 billion, with highways accounting for 87 per cent of the total. A substantial part of that huge sum goes for the benefit of commercial transportation agencies using the facilities. A system of fair and equitable user chages, such as the President has recommended, is needed in the public interest.

Some men are like the stump the old farmer had in the field -- too hard to uproot, too knotty to split, and too wet and soggy to burn. The neighbors asked him what he did about it. "Well, now, boys," he answered, "if you won't tell the secret, I'll tell you. I jes' plowed aroun it."

Definition -- BILL -- "I understand Henry is roughing it these days."

WILL -- "Roughing it' my eye. He means he is turning down his electric blanket one notch."

H. L. Hunt Says

DEFINING THE PUBLIC INTEREST

Some politicians would have us believe that they alone have a clear concept of what the "public interest" actually is and how it can best be served. Proceeding on this theory, they frequently demand that some U.S. industry "act in the public interest" by not raising prices.

In a free economy like ours prices go up and down. In a period of inflation like the present they are much more likely to go up than down. But in any period they are bound to fluctuate in accordance with changes in supply and demand.

Recently the Federal Government has been trying to hold prices level even as it is increasing the quantity of money. During the last six years the combined policies of the government and the Federal Reserve have resulted in an increase of 52 per cent in the supply of money. This increase naturally has cheapened the value of the dollar.

Government-dictated prices are not in the public interest, which would be served much better by a halt to heavy deficit spending by the government. That is a prime cause of hurtful inflation.

There are those in government who look constantly for excuses to impose more and more controls on the American people; for their own good, of course! But many are not ready to accept the definition of public interest that is put forward by advocates of rigid controls.

Only a free price system can provide assurance that the thousands of different commodities and services provided today can be produced in the proportions demanded by the buying public. HLH

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Inside Story of New Reuther Strategy.

Washington, D. C.: -- Insiders now are certain Walter Reuther, the oldest youth in the labor movement, now is in deep trouble on his home grounds. There is sharp disaffection inside his union. There have been serious financial difficulties, what with the liquidation of four banks in which the United Auto Workers (UAW) either owned thousands of shares or had millions of dollars on deposit.

Even worse for the copper-haired militant is a wave of mockery never before encountered by the commandant of the original auto plant sitins 30 years ago. Tens of thousands of reprints of a satiric piece -- titled "Reuther Backs Down: The Case of the Timid Cowboy" -- are being distributed across the land by skilled auto workers now opposed to the UAW president.

"This could be called the saga of Walter the Kid, whose lip is greater than his dexterity on the draw, vs. George Meany, alias Mean Meany . . still the fastest draw in the labor movement," says the needling piece.

"The Kid, being fast in the mouth and slow with the action, allowed as how the time had come for a showdown, letting his verbosity run away with his sense. He challenged Meany to a shootout at the corral."

It then describes Reuther's rout and advises finally, "Don't lip off unless you have something to lip off about," after using phrases like Reuther "chickened out" while "Meany stood in the center of the street at high noon and waited. . ."

This mockery, when added to the fact that some 750,000 UAW members were born about the time Reuther's reputation was burgeoning and hardly know the man who will be 60 years old when he leads them into battle against the auto companies, could well be damaging to his bargaining power next September.

Thus, there is little doubt among the handful of national labor leaders who have access to Reuther's own inner circle that the Detroiter's year - end "White Paper," the searing of the AFL-CIO, was not aimed at its president, George Meany, but at the automobile manufacturing industry.

Several sources close to Reuther, far closer to him than most would believe, confirmed this to this columnist.

As his own colleagues see his open letter, it is part of a new long series of public thrusts to stay on the front pages between now and next summer to remake his image.

It is one of a series of imagery moves to remake the Dorian Gray picture of "Walter" as the militant he "really is." It is an effort in a continuing process to have him appear to be the symbol of challenge to the status quo, the firebrand for America's youth, the tough bargainer, the crusader slashing at the elder statesmen now leading the AFL-CIO.

It is aimed at having platoons of newsmen from the printed media and the electronic field, trot behind him and crowd his press conference wherever he goes.

All this is apparent from his "White Paper." It was carefully planned as a "shocker". On the Thursday before the New Year's week-end, newsmen on all coasts and in several big cities were alerted. Special agencies in the Midwest and Washington were retained for the distribution of the letter.

Then the UAW headquarters, Solidarity House, was shut for four days. Silence.

An analysis of the "White Paper" reveals that Reuther truly was whirling up a confetti storm.

Officials in the AFL-CIO national headquarters anonymously made some fascinating points which will haunt Reuther.

The Detroiter has only himself to blame if there has been no drive to unionize the non-union working people. Reuther for 11 years now has been permanent chairman of the AFL-CIO national Organization Committee -- a standing committee he could call into action anytime he wanted.

He hasn't.

Reuther could easily have rectified any domestic policy of the merged Federation anytime he wanted. For 11 years he has been permanent chairman of the AFL-CIO national Economic Police Committee, also a standing committee.

As for the AFL-CIO Executive Committee, he has been on it for 11 years and has said nothing about its activity.

As for foreign affairs, except on one occasion, he has voted scores of times -- every time -- for the official AFL-CIO policy. This has been the case for 11 years.

Rarely, if ever, has he raised any of the issues in the Executive Council sessions which he has raised in his letter. In fact, he has been quite friendly to George Meany.

For example, as recently as December 15, he joined Meany in a private lunch to former Senator Paul Douglas in a local hotel. Reuther greeted Meany warmly and then both men sat at the sides of Mr. Douglas, as snug as bugs in a rug, as Benjamin Franklin would say.

Furthermore, says one of the top AFL-CIO men, there has been organization. The federation is the only labor movement in the free world to gain members (in industrial lands). The movements in England, France, Sweden, Italy, etc., lost ground.

So they view Reuther's blasts really as the opening of his campaign to gain strength amongst his own people in preparation for the bargaining with -- and strike against -- the auto industry.

For the moment he is in difficulty, and with paternal kindness the elder statesmen, like good football pros, don't plan to rough him up. They understand.

MANCHESTER, England (AP) — Geographically, the Southern Hotel is appropriately down south-way down yonder in South Manchester.

Why?

"I'm probably the only middle-aged, South-loving, frustrated English cowboy you've ever met," explained John Ridley 45, "and I'm the proprietor of the Southern hotel.

"I like the South. I like the Southwest. I've been fascinated by everything Southern and Southwestern since I was a child. But, it was just pure luck when I got the Southern Hotel. You see, it had been named that before I got it. I suppose it's because it's in South Manchester."

In addition to being the proprietor of the Southern Hotel, Ridley is also an official of the Quick-Draw Club in Blackpool.

"We started the club four years ago," he said. "I practice in my cellar, get through about 1,000 rounds of ammunition every week."

Then the members own guns?

"Loads of them. I've got a single-hand rig and a twin-rig. The twin-rig is for the two-gun man. I confess, I'm a two-gun English cowboy."

And horses?

"Oh, yes, we've got horses. Not only do most of us have horses, but we have rifles, real American Western rifles and for that matter, handmade leather holsters."

But isn't all this very costly?

"You're right it is. Just ask my wife. She's giving me hell about it, pardner."

Ridley said he wanted to get one thing definitely understood.

"I like all Americans," he insisted. "I just happen to favor the South.

"During the war in Italy, I was in a hospital in Caserta. It was my birthday and they let me out on crutches.

"I met up with some of your boys in a little cafe and got to talking and I said I'd met American men, but I'd never even seen an American girl.

"A big sergeant said, 'We'll fix that.' Do you know, those American soldiers picked up my crutches and they picked me up too and they took me to a place where your WACs were stationed.

"Well, sir, those soldiers knocked on a door and we all went in and sat around for a few minutes being entertained by two delightful American girls."

"The sergeant was a fellow named McDonnell from Texas. Well, he disappeared and after a while I began to get embarrassed at taking up so much of these girls' time.

"Just then some sliding doors opened and I saw about 20 or 30 of these American girls. They were standing around their dining table and on the table was a cake and on the cake there was some candles. They began singing 'Happy birthday.'"

"I cried like a child," said Ridley.

Have any Americans ever been in the Southern Hotel?

"Not that I know of," he replied, "but I'd be proud to welcome them."

And if they were Southerners?

"The first Southerner who comes in here, or for that matter, the second or the third one, well, if he wants to drink I'll promise he can drink all he wants to—and it won't cost him a penny. Why, I'd be honored, suh."

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON - The amazing manner in which Congressman Adam Clayton Powell, the Harlem globe-trotter, played fast and loose with the taxpayers' money on his junkets has been disclosed in vivid detail behind the closed doors of the House Administration Committee.

In some cases fistfuls of airline tickets were taken out in his subordinates' names but used by Powell.

Here is some of the cross-examination of Powell's employees:

"There's a record that one time I bought about 20 to 30 tickets and gave them all to him (Powell," testified Chuck Stone, Powell's administrative assistant.

"Whose names were on the tickets?" Stone was asked.

"Swann, Clark, Lewis, mine." He cited members of Powell's staff. "They were for people other than staff people?" Stone was asked. "No, they were all for him."

"It was necessary to put names in there as to who was going to be traveling?" Stone was asked.

"Yes."

"Whose names would you put in?"

"I put in the person's name who was going to travel, unless I put in whatever name the chairman ordered me to put in."

"What names would he order you to put in?"

"My name, Lewis, Clark, Swann, Warren," Stone replied.

"Did the persons whose names appeared on the ticket perform the travel?"

"Not very frequently; no, they didn't," replied Stone.

"Who would be frequently performing the travel on those tickets?"

"The chairman."

"Who else?"

"Miss Huff."

"Who else?"

"That is all."

BEAUTIFUL "MISS OHIO"

Miss Huff to whom Stone referred is Miss Corinne Huff, the first Negro to win the Miss Ohio Beauty Contest and who has been a frequent traveler with the Harlem congressman to Europe and the British Bahamas.

The testimony intrigued Rep. Paul Jones, D-Mo. He asked: "Those 20 tickets you bought at one time - were they all for the same destination?"

"I think they were a variety, sir," replied Stone. "I think it's like Washington to Miami, and New York to Miami. It was a combination - different combinations you might say."

The Subcommittee, under the chairmanship of Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, had done a thorough job of checking travel accounts. Committee counsel confronted Stone with the fact that nine flights appeared to have been made by Stone and Mrs. Emma T. Swann to the same destination.

"We have a substantial number of trips between here and New York allegedly performed by you and Mrs. Swann," Stone was told. "Did you ever travel with Mrs. Swann on any trip whatsoever?"

"A couple of trips I went with her, but not as a rule," Stone replied.

"What explanation do you have to offer for the name of Swann being on a ticket which is on the same flight with you in nine instances?"

"The explanation is that I don't think I took those trips," replied Rep. Powell's administrative assistant.

Mrs. Swann is the receptionist for the Committee on Education and Labor of which Powell is the chairman. She was recorded as having made 40 flights between April 30, 1965, through July 31, 1966 - 18 between Washington and and Miami; 30 between New York and Washington; one from Buffalo to Washington, and one from Buffalo to New York city.

"Her duties as receptionist required her to perform no official travel," commented an administration committee member.

When put on the witness stand, Mrs. Swann was asked:

"Did you make these trips on committee business?"

"I have made none on committee business," was her frank reply.

"You have made none on committee business?"

"None whatsoever."

"Were you aware that your name might have been used in connection with travel by others in the office?"

"No, I was not."

OTHER ANONYMOUS JUNKETS

Russell Derrickson, staff director of Powell's Education and Labor Committee, as revealed by Congressman Hays's Investigating Committee, had taken 26 airplane trips between New York and Washington from June 25, 1965, through Sept. 20, 1966. Derrickson said he "performed none of the travel shown by this audit."

Michael Schwartz, counsel on labor management for Powell's committee, gave a deposition in which he said he had received payment of vouchers for subsistence and expenses for a 16-day trip to Miami in June, 1966, on committee business, but no record of his transportation turned up. What occupied him in the resort city of Miami in regard to labor management for 16 beautiful sunshine days remained a mystery.

Vidal Chacon was paid $530.01 in April, 1965, for doing nothing; or, as the investigating committee put it in more eloquent language, "He apparently rendered no service whatsoever." Powell had kept him hanging around Washington unoccupied.

Talking about doctors, do you know how difficult it is to get a specialist nowadays? You're even to get his nurse on the phone. I called a specialist's office a few weeks ago, and I asked the nurse for an appointment. "It's my heart," I said. "I'd like to see the doctor soon as possible." There was a pause, then she said, "How about two weeks from Thursday?" I said, "Swell, I'll have the hearse drop me off." The nurse said, "Is it an emergency?" I truthfully answered "No." Whereupon she asked, "Where are you now?" "Under a truck," I answered.

EDDIE DOUCETTE is giving tips to housewives on how to make a baked fruited meat loaf on a television program. The chef will star in IGA's "Cooking Can Be Fun" program at the armory Jan. 18.

'Cooking Can Be Fun' Program Set Jan. 18

Ladies who have any doubt whether kitchen chores can be fun, should see cooking expert Eddie Doucette in his 'Cooking Can Be Fun' show coming to the armory Jan. 18.

That's the advice of Orville Shamblin, owner-operator of Shamblin's IGA Foodliner and coordinator of IGA's "Cooking Can Be Fun" program.

The show is part of a series of consumer education programs for housewives called, "Ladies Fair". The program, which will run throughout 1967 will include informative sessions such as cooking, fashion, cosmetic, meat and produce -- subjects which have an appeal to women. IGA food stores in this area are sponsoring the "Ladies Fair" program in an effort to determine how IGA food stores can best serve the shopping needs of the consumer. Each program will have a period devoted to open discussions of what housewives want in supermarket products and services.

Doucette is a combination chef, showman, humorist and goodwill ambassador. He stars in his own television show on cooking and has appeared on such national network programs as "The Mike Douglas Show". His popularity with American homemakers prompted the department of agriculture to send him on a goodwill trip to England last year where he worked with British caterers, chefs, and housewives in the preparation of recipes using U.S. food exports to that country.

A consultant chef for the Independent Grocers' Alliance, Doucette has been a part of the culinary world since he was 16 years old, although at that time his experience was limited to washing pots and pans after school in a West Newton, Mass., restaurant.

Today, the 54-year old chef is a food preparation expert. He first gained culinary notice in New England, where he eventually became president of Boston's Epicurean club. He is vice president (and former president) of the Chefs' of Cuisine Association of Chicago and he is chairman of Les Amis d' Escoffier of Chicago.

In recent years, Doucette has made radio and television guest appearances locally and nationally in addition to cooking demonstrations before thousands of housewives across the nation.

Doucette will bring along his own special brand of humor when he entertains at the armory. "He had the women in stitches", wrote one newspaper reporter after a recent Doucette show in Pennsylvania. "He made everything from a pizza to a vegetable centerpiece right on the stage and the women loved him for it."

Women attending the cooking show probably will learn such secrets as turning a red beet into a decorative flower and a cabbage into a piece of sculpture. And besides having a good time, persons attending the "Cooking Can Be Fun" show will have an opportunity to win hundreds of dollars in valuable prizes, including a New Dawn fashion mink stole.

Tickets for the "Cooking Can Be Fun" show may be obtained at IGA stores in this area, according to Shamblin. Ladies groups in Sikeston are also cooperating in the program by sending tickets and reservation cards to members of their groups.

Shamblin says that women wishing to attend the program, should get their tickets immediately. Housewives may attend either a noon luncheon or dinner program at 6 p.m. at the armory, according to their convenience. There is no cost or obligation.

Doctor Believes Clothes Reveal Personalities

NEW YORK (AP) — A man who wants to be boss at home should choose a wife who wears hats. He should beware of those determinedly independent lasses with hair fluttering unfettered to their shoulders.

That is the advice of Dr. William Jennings Bryan Jr., a California doctor, lawyer, and hypnotist who makes instant personality appraisals by taking into account the clothes people wear.

This talent has been of particular value to F. Lee Bailey, the famous defense lawyer who has never lost a case. Although Bailey does not need any help in choosing a wife —he has a lovely one who wears hats —he has called upon Dr. Bryan on several occasions to help him select prospective jurors.

Dr. Bryan was with Bailey in Cleveland, Ohio, for the Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard trial and in Freehold, N.J., recently to assist in picking the jury which eventually acquitted Dr. Carl Coppolino of charges of having murdered a neighbor.

The portly 40-year-old doctor, who directs the American Institute of Hypnotism in Los Angeles, believes that although clothes do not make the man, they reveal almost unfailingly what the man is like.

"Suspect a person of having very little self-confidence if his dress is not characteristic of his profession," says the doctor.

"If a man is a banker and doesn't dress like the average one — expensive and conservative — then I conclude he doesn't really think of himself as a banker, or at least not a good one. He probably secretly believes he ought to be something else. He has problems".

As for women, he says, "The exhibitionist, the girl who flaunts her sex on the outside is covering up for a lack of fire on the inside."

The really sexy woman, he claims, is tastefully dressed, very well groomed, a real Patrician. "She has confidence, self-knowledge, and with good reason."

That girl with free flowing hair and little use for hats is, in the doctor's opinion, young, independent and determined not to be dominated by men.

How does Dr. Bryan dress?

"I'm the Ivy League type dresser. I like university life. I am fascinated by minds, and how these can help people achieve their goals."

Jane Wyman, Philip Conner Pledge Vows in Kentucky

CADIZ, Ky. -- A large spray of yellow mums and gladioli flanked on either side by gold candelabra bearing yellow tapers and yellow satin bows, adorned the chancel of the Oak Grove Baptist church on Dec. 4, for the wedding of Miss Jane Wyman to Philip Conner.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Wyman of New Berlin, Ill., and the granddaughter of Mrs. J. T. Smith, route four, Sikeston, Mo. Miss Wyman is a 1964 graduate of Sikeston high school and is a junior at Murray State University in Murray, Ky.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Wilburn of East Prairie, Mo. He is a 1964 graduate of Trigg county high school and is also a junior at Murray State University.

The Rev. Earl Mitchell of Central City, Ky., officiated in the double ring ceremony. The Rev. Mr. Mitchell was formerly the minister of the Oak Grove church of which the groom is a member.

Miss Jane McDonald, organist, provided the pre-nuptial music. She rendered the selection, "O Perfect Love," following the closing prayer of the ceremony as well as the traditional wedding marches.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. The bride's dress was a basic street-length shirtwaist of white lace. Long sleeves with a narrow cuff, self-covered buttons, and a box-pleaded skirt enhanced its simplicity. The veil, fashioned after a chapel veil, was worn madonna fashion. The shoulder-length veil was made of tulle and was appliqued with matching lace from the dress. The dress, designed by Miss Wyman, was fashioned for her by her mother.

Miss Wyman carried a bouquet of yellow roses nestled in lily of the valley atop a matching lace covered Bible. The Bible was presented to Miss Wyman by the First Methodist church in Sikeston in 1964.

Miss Wyman chose Miss Patricia Watts as her only attendent. Miss Watts was attired in a long-sleeved, street-length ,skimmer of soft yellow chiffon over yellow satin, with satin accents at the neck and wrists. A yellow satin headband completed her attire. Miss Watts carried a single, long-stemmed yellow rosebud. She is a junior at Murray State University.

Conner chose his former roommate, D. Ellis Mueller, as his best man. Mueller is from Stanford, Conn., and is a junior at Murray State University. James Wyman, brother of the bride, and David Mitchell served as candlelighters and ushers.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Wyman chose a sheath dress of heather silk with a matching jacket. A matching hat, beige gloves, tapestry purse and shoes, and a shoulder corsage of soft yellow roses completed her attire.

Mrs. J. T. Smith, the bride's maternal grandmother, was attired in a plum shirtwaist dress with black accessories. A corsage of pink carnations completed her attire.

Mrs. Wilburn, the mother of the groom, wore a beige three-piece suit, with a brown velvet hat and matching lizard accessories. She wore a corsage of yellow feathered mums pinned at the shoulder.

Mrs. Floyd Sumner, grandmother of the groom, wore a black silk dress, with matching accessories. She wore a shoulder corsage of pink carnations.

A reception was held following the ceremony in the church education building. The table was overlaid in white. The tiered, all white wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom, was placed on a silver cake stand in the center of the table. On either side was placed a three-branched silver candelabra bearing yellow tapers and entwined with green fern. The punch bowl of yellow punch and ice ring of yellow roses was placed on one end of the table, and compotes containing nuts and mints were placed on the opposite end.

Mrs. Eugene Sumner, aunt of the groom, and Mrs. Buddy Smith, aunt of the bride, served tiny individual cakes topped with a yellow rosebud.

Miss Ava Eastin of Springfield, Ill., presided at the punch bowl. Miss Janie Sumner, cousin of the groom, presided at the guest book table overlaid in soft yellow linen and adorned with a silver candleholder bearing a single white taper. Talking about doctors, do you know how difficult it is to get a specialist nowadays? You're even to get his nurse on the phone. I called a specialist's office a few weeks ago, and I asked the nurse for an appointment. "It's my heart," I said, "I'd like to see the doctor soon as possible." There was a pause, then she said, "How about two weeks from Thursday?" I said, "Swell, I'll have the hearse drop me off." The nurse said, "Is it an emergency?" I truthfully answered "No." Whereupon she asked, "Where are you now?" "Under a truck," I answered.

EDDIE DOUCETTE is giving tips to housewives on how to make a baked fruited meat loaf on a television program. The chef will star in IGA's "Cooking Can Be Fun" program at the armory Jan. 18.

'Cooking Can Be Fun' Program Set Jan. 18

Ladies who have any doubt whether kitchen chores can be fun, should see cooking expert Eddie Doucette in his 'Cooking Can Be Fun' show coming to the armory Jan. 18.

That's the advice of Orville Shamblin, owner-operator of Shamblin's IGA Foodliner and coordinator of IGA's "Cooking Can Be Fun" program.

The show is part of a series of consumer education programs for housewives called, "Ladies Fair". The program, which will run throughout 1967 will include informative sessions such as cooking, fashion, cosmetic, meat and produce -- subjects which have an appeal to women. IGA food stores in this area are sponsoring the "Ladies Fair" program in an effort to determine how IGA food stores can best serve the shopping needs of the consumer. Each program will have a period devoted to open discussions of what housewives want in supermarket products and services.

Doucette is a combination chef, showman, humorist and goodwill ambassador. He stars in his own television show on cooking and has appeared on such national network programs as "The Mike Douglas Show". His popularity with American homemakers prompted the department of agriculture to send him on a goodwill trip to England last year where he worked with British caterers, chefs, and housewives in the preparation of recipes using U.S. food exports to that country.

A consultant chef for the Independent Grocers' Alliance, Doucette has been a part of the culinary world since he was 16 years old, although at that time his experience was limited to washing pots and pans after school in a West Newton, Mass., restaurant.

Today, the 54-year old chef is a food preparation expert. He first gained culinary notice in New England, where he eventually became president of Boston's Epicurean club. He is vice president (and former president) of the Chefs' of Cuisine Association of Chicago and he is chairman of Les Amis d' Escoffier of Chicago.

In recent years, Doucette has made radio and television guest appearances locally and nationally in addition to cooking demonstrations before thousands of housewives across the nation.

Doucette will bring along his own special brand of humor when he entertains at the armory. "He had the women in stitches", wrote one newspaper reporter after a recent Doucette show in Pennsylvania. "He made everything from a pizza to a vegetable centerpiece right on the stage and the women loved him for it."

Women attending the cooking show probably will learn such secrets as turning a red beet into a decorative flower and a cabbage into a piece of sculpture. And besides having a good time, persons attending the "Cooking Can Be Fun" show will have an opportunity to win hundreds of dollars in valuable prizes, including a New Dawn fashion mink stole.

Tickets for the "Cooking Can Be Fun" show may be obtained at IGA stores in this area, according to Shamblin. Ladies groups in Sikeston are also cooperating in the program by sending tickets and reservation cards to members of their groups.

Shamblin says that women wishing to attend the program, should get their tickets immediately. Housewives may attend either a noon luncheon or dinner program at 6 p.m. at the armory, according to their convenience. There is no cost or obligation.

Doctor Believes Clothes Reveal Personalities

NEW YORK (AP) — A man who wants to be boss at home should choose a wife who wears hats. He should beware of those determinedly independent lasses with hair fluttering unfettered to their shoulders.

That is the advice of Dr. William Jennings Bryan Jr., a California doctor, lawyer, and hypnotist who makes instant personality appraisals by taking into account the clothes people wear.

This talent has been of particular value to F. Lee Bailey, the famous defense lawyer who has never lost a case. Although Bailey does not need any help in choosing a wife —he has a lovely one who wears hats —he has called upon Dr. Bryan on several occasions to help him select prospective jurors.

Dr. Bryan was with Bailey in Cleveland, Ohio, for the Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard trial and in Freehold, N.J., recently to assist in picking the jury which eventually acquitted Dr. Carl Coppolino of charges of having murdered a neighbor.

The portly 40-year-old doctor, who directs the American Institute of Hypnotism in Los Angeles, believes that although clothes do not make the man, they reveal almost unfailingly what the man is like.

"Suspect a person of having very little self-confidence if his dress is not characteristic of his profession," says the doctor.

"If a man is a banker and doesn't dress like the average one — expensive and conservative — then I conclude he doesn't really think of himself as a banker, or at least not a good one. He probably secretly believes he ought to be something else. He has problems".

As for women, he says, "The exhibitionist, the girl who flaunts her sex on the outside is covering up for a lack of fire on the inside."

The really sexy woman, he claims, is tastefully dressed, very well groomed, a real Patrician. "She has confidence, self-knowledge, and with good reason."

That girl with free flowing hair and little use for hats is, in the doctor's opinion, young, independent and determined not to be dominated by men.

How does Dr. Bryan dress?

"I'm the Ivy League type dresser. I like university life. I am fascinated by minds, and how these can help people achieve their goals."

Jane Wyman, Philip Conner Pledge Vows in Kentucky

CADIZ, Ky. -- A large spray of yellow mums and gladioli flanked on either side by gold candelabra bearing yellow tapers and yellow satin bows, adorned the chancel of the Oak Grove Baptist church on Dec. 4, for the wedding of Miss Jane Wyman to Philip Conner.

Long sleeves with a narrow cuff, self-covered buttons, and a box-pleaded skirt enhanced its simplicity. The veil, fashioned after a chapel veil, was worn madonna fashion. The shoulder-length veil was made of tulle and was appliqued with matching lace from the dress. The dress, designed by Miss Wyman, was fashioned for her by her mother.

Miss Wyman carried a bouquet of yellow roses nestled in lily of the valley atop a matching lace covered Bible. The Bible was presented to Miss Wyman by the First Methodist church in Sikeston in 1964.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Wyman chose a sheath dress of heather silk with a matching jacket. A matching hat, beige gloves, tapestry purse and shoes, and a shoulder corsage of soft yellow roses completed her attire.

Mrs. J. T. Smith, the bride's maternal grandmother, was attired in a plum shirtwaist dress with black accessories. A corsage of pink carnations completed her attire.

Mrs. Wilburn, the mother of the groom, wore a beige three-piece suit, with a brown velvet hat and matching lizard accessories. She wore a corsage of yellow feathered mums pinned at the shoulder.

Mrs. Floyd Sumner, grandmother of the groom, wore a black silk dress, with matching accessories. She wore a shoulder corsage of pink carnations.

A reception was held following the ceremony in the church education building. The table was overlaid in white. The tiered, all white wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom, was placed on a silver cake stand in the center of the table. On either side was placed a three-branched silver candelabra bearing yellow tapers and entwined with green fern. The punch bowl of yellow punch and ice ring of yellow roses was placed on one end of the table, and compotes containing nuts and mints were placed on the opposite end. Mrs. Eugene Sumner, aunt of the groom, and Mrs. Buddy Smith, aunt of the bride, served tiny individual cakes topped with a yellow rosebud. Miss Ava Eastin of Springfield, Ill., presided at the punch bowl. Miss Janie Sumner, cousin of the groom, presided at the guest book table overlaid in soft yellow linen and adorned with a silver candleholder bearing a single white taper. Scott Smith, cousin of the bride, and Christopher Sumner, cousin of the groom, passed rice bags among the guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Conner will live at 307 1/2 South 15th Street in Murray.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. J. T. Smith and Harold Smith of Sikeston; Miss Rosalie Bollinger of Benton, Mo.; Mr. and Mrs. Buddy F. Smith and Scott of Tulsa, Okla.; Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Eastin and Miss Ava Eastin of Springfield, Ill.; Misses Pauline and Marguerite Wyman of Paris, Tenn.; the Rev. and Mrs. Earl Mitchell and David Mitchell of Central City, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Police, Miss Beth Cole, Thomas Tucker, Miss Patricia Watts, D. Ellis Mueller, and James Wyman, all of Murray.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Wilburn entertained at a dinner at the White Eagle, honoring their son, Philip Conner, his bride-elect, their attendants, and members of both families, December 3, on the eve of Miss Wyman and Conner's wedding.

The dining room was decorated with white wedding bells and white candles. An arrangement of white mums in a crystal container, with crystal candelabra holding white candles placed on either side, was the focal point of the long table. Covers were laid for 24.

Limbaugh Stars In 80-77 Sikeston Win

By Dan Spears

MORLEY -- The Sikeston Bulldogs surprised the Scott Central Braves last night with an upset victory, 80-77. The Braves were rated number 10 in this week's Standard cage poll. Playing in overtime the B Dogs were defeated 63-61.

Harrington and Farris started the game off for the B Dogs each popping a bucket apiece. The Bulldogs held a three point lead with one minute 53 seconds remaining in the first quarter. McCord, getting the tip to begin the second period, started the Sikeston five rolling as it jumped to a 26-19 half time lead.

Adding eight points to its score, Sikeston led with 3:30 left to play in the third quarter 34-23. The period ended with Sikeston maintaining its lead 40-33.

Ed Cheek started the third quarter off in fine form, hitting a 30-foot jumper from the corner. Coming back strong, the Central quintet came within five points of the visitors 45-40 with 5 minutes 43 seconds remaining in the game.

Taking advantage of the breaks, the Braves closed the gap to tie the game with 47 seconds left 57-57.

Cheek broke the tie scoring on two free tosses. Lee from Scott Central came right back and tied it again on his two free throws 59-59 with 12 seconds left.

The final period ended in a tie 59-59.

The Braves' Lee was the first to score in the three-minute overtime. Stealing the ball and driving for an easy layup, Sikeston's Dennis Snelling evened the score at 61 all, with 40 left in the overtime. Putting the finishing touches on the game, was Central's Tom Boley as he netted a 10 foot jumper for a 63-61 final score.

Pete Harrington and Ed Cheek led the Bulldog scoring with 10 points apiece. Gilliland paced the Braves with 17.

Sikeston's Fred Townes got the opening tip and hit on a 10-foot jump shot and an easy layin to put the Bulldogs out front 4-0 in the opening minutes of the varsity game. C. H. Lambert pumped in a set shot for two more for the Dogs as the score went to 6-1 in favor of Sikeston. Hitting 6 quick buckets the Braves raced to a 17-13 score with 3 minutes left in the first quarter. Sikeston held a 10-point lead at the quarter 26-16.

The Sikeston five scored pretty freely in the second quarter. With four minutes remaining in the half, Josh Boyd swished a 20-foot jump shot from the corner to raise the score to a 38-28 Bulldog lead.

Having a minute and a half left in the quarter the Braves cut the lead down to 42-38. The first half ended with Sikeston possessing a one point lead 45-44.

Scott Central took its first lead as it came out at the half 46-45 with 7 minutes still on the clock. Wiss hit a jumper only to have the Brave's Owens come down and hit a lay-up to keep his team in the lead 50-48.

With 4 minutes, 50 seconds left in the third quarter Terry Bell from Scott Central sank a 20-foot set shot. Teaming up Bulldogs Lance Walters and Wayne Limbaugh, put a quick four points through the nets, to put Sikeston back into the lead 54-52. Sikeston still held on to their two point lead at the end of the third quarter 61-59.

The Braves tied the game once more early in the final period 63-63. Scott Central took the lead with 3 minutes remaining 70-69. Townes dunked a free throw for Sikeston to tie the game 70-70 with 2 minutes left.

Swapping free throws and hitting a greater percentage the Bulldogs pulled out to a three point lead with a minute and 15 seconds to go. Owens from Central rebounded a missed free throw and laid it back in to put the Braves within one 74-73.

Having a chance to tie the game with 45 seconds left to play in the game, Byrd missed the first of a one and one shot. Holding a one point lead Townes rebounded Lambert's shot a put it back up for a score and the Dogs led 78-75 with 20 seconds to play.

Limbaugh, trying to stall the ball in the final seconds was fouled. He hit both of his free throws with 10 seconds left. Scott Central's Byrd brought the ball down court and hit a 15-foot jump from the corner to round out the scoring and giving Sikeston a victory.

Paving the way for the victors with Limbaugh with 20 points and Townes with 17. Owens netted 25 for Central.

Limbaugh Stars In 80-77 Sikeston Win

By Dan Spears

MORLEY -- The Sikeston Bulldogs surprised the Scott Central Braves last night with an upset victory, 80-77. The Braves were rated number 10 in this week's Standard cage poll. Playing in overtime the B Dogs were defeated 63-61.

Harrington and Farris started the game off for the B Dogs each popping a bucket apiece. The Bulldogs held a three point lead with one minute 53 seconds remaining in the first quarter. McCord, getting the tip to begin the second period, started the Sikeston five rolling as it jumped to a 26-19 half time lead.

Adding eight points to its score, Sikeston led with 3:30 left to play in the third quarter 34-23. The period ended with Sikeston maintaining its lead 40-33.

Ed Cheek started the third quarter off in fine form, hitting a 30-foot jumper from the corner. Coming back strong, the Central quintet came within five points of the visitors 45-40 with 5 minutes 43 seconds remaining in the game.

Taking advantage of the breaks, the Braves closed the gap to tie the game with 47 seconds left 57-57.

Cheek broke the tie scoring on two free tosses. Lee from Scott Central came right back and tied it again on his two free throws 59-59 with 12 seconds left.

The final period ended in a tie 59-59.

The Braves' Lee was the first to score in the three-minute overtime. Stealing the ball and driving for an easy layup, Sikeston's Dennis Snelling evened the score at 61 all, with 40 left in the overtime. Putting the finishing touches on the game, was Central's Tom Boley as he netted a 10 foot jumper for a 63-61 final score.

Pete Harrington and Ed Cheek led the Bulldog scoring with 10 points apiece. Gilliland paced the Braves with 17.

Sikeston's Fred Townes got the opening tip and hit on a 10-foot jump shot and an easy layin to put the Bulldogs out front 4-0 in the opening minutes of the varsity game. C. H. Lambert pumped in a set shot for two more for the Dogs as the score went to 6-1 in favor of Sikeston. Hitting 6 quick buckets the Braves raced to a 17-13 score with 3 minutes left in the first quarter. Sikeston held a 10-point lead at the quarter 26-16.

The Sikeston five scored pretty freely in the second quarter. With four minutes remaining in the half, Josh Boyd swished a 20-foot jump shot from the corner to raise the score to a 38-28 Bulldog lead.

Having a minute and a half left in the quarter the Braves cut the lead down to 42-38. The first half ended with Sikeston possessing a one point lead 45-44.

Scott Central took its first lead as it came out at the half 46-45 with 7 minutes still on the clock. Wiss hit a jumper only to have the Brave's Owens come down and hit a layup to keep his team in the lead 50-48.

With 4 minutes, 50 seconds left in the third quarter Terry Bell from Scott Central sank a 20-foot set shot. Teaming up Bulldogs Lance Walters and Wayne Limbaugh, put a quick four points through the nets, to put Sikeston back into the lead 54-52. Sikeston still held on to their two point lead at the end of the third quarter 61-59.

The Braves tied the game once more early in the final period 63-63. Scott Central took the lead with 3 minutes remaining 70-69. Townes dunked a free throw for Sikeston to tie the game 70-70 with 2 minutes left.

Swapping free throws and hitting a greater percentage the Bulldogs pulled out to a three point lead with a minute and 15 seconds to go. Owens from Central rebounded a missed free throw and laid it back in to put the Braves within one 74-73.

Having a chance to tie the game with 45 seconds left to play in the game, Byrd missed the first of a one and one shot. Holding a one point lead Townes rebounded Lambert's shot a put it back up for a score and the Dogs led 78-75 with 20 seconds to play.

Limbaugh, trying to stall the ball in the final seconds was fouled. He hit both of his free throws with 10 seconds left. Scott Central's Byrd brought the ball down court and hit a 15-foot jump from the corner to round out the scoring and giving Sikeston a victory.

Paving the way for the victors with Limbaugh with 20 points and Townes with 17. Owens netted 25 for Central.

The Bulldogs next game is on the road. They will play the Kennett Indians Jan. 9 in a SEMO Conference game.

Whitton Predicts Shift In Highway Emphasis

WASHINGTON (AP) - Rex M. Whitton, whose retirement as federal highway administrator has been announced by President Johnson, predicts a shift in emphasis in the nation's road-building program.

"I don't see an end to highway building," Whitton said in an interview. "People like to drive their automobiles. They like the freedom and independence of movement."

But future emphasis will shift from construction of major new routes - the interstate system to improvement of feeder and primary roads, he said.

Whitton's career as a highway engineer parallels closely the era of modern road building.

He began work on a Missouri highway survey team in 1920 when the federal-aid highway program was only four years old. For the last six years, he has directed the largest road building program ever undertaken by any nation - one that has been costing $4 billion a year.

Whitton is 68. Last Friday, when his retirement became effective, he rounded out 46 years and 8 months - to the day - in his career of highway work.

In announcing the resignation Sunday, Johnson told Whitton "the American highway system is unequalled in the world and your share in the credit for it is large." He wished Whitton well and said he hopes to call on him from time to time for advice.

The President did not name a successor for Whitton's $26,000-a-year post.

In the AP interview, Whitton said the recently announced cutback in the federal highway program and the impending switch of the Bureau of Public Roads to the new Department of Transportation had nothing to do with his decision to retire.

He said he told Secretary of Commerce John T. Connor - the bureau is part of the Commerce Department - last January that he wanted to retire during 1966.

His letter of resignation was dated Oct. 30, more than three weeks before the highway cutback was ordered.

"I want to quit while I'm still ahead of the game," Whitton said.

He plans to live in a newly purchased house in Independence, Mo., and look after three pieces of farm land he owns in Jackson County. He also hopes to do some highway consulting work.

Your Dental Health

26 - Dental Bootlegers - Health Hazard

PRECEDE: The following article is being presented by The Daily Standard in cooperation with the Scott County Dental Society.

Ill-fitting dentures can be dangerous.

They can irritate the soft tissues of your mouth, destroy the bone under your gums; they even contribute toward the development of oral cancer.

A recent 2-year study of a group of oral cancer patients bears this out. The scientists reported that they have found a "significant relationship" between mouth irritations and cancer. Among the causes cited by the researchers were sharp edges on teeth or bridges and ill-fitting dentures.

When fitted by a dentist, artificial dentures contribute to your good health and your appearance.

Beware, however, of the store-front sign, advertisement or of the newspaper ad of the dental laboratory which reads, "Dental plates -- buy direct and save. Quick service. Easy Terms."

Beware of the promises of the unlawful operator who guarantees a "perfect fit" and that there is no need to see a "middle man" -- the dentist.

Beware, because the men who make these promises are dental "bottleggers," operating outside the law, with an annual take from an unknowning and unwary public estimated in the millions.

The dentures constructed by a dentist are made by a professional man who has had six to eight years of college-level study and has passed a state licensing examination to prove his competence.

The licensed dentist has studied the anatomy of the mouth. He understands how to examine and analyze the soft tissues and the bone which must support the denture. He understands the structure of the muscles and the jaw joints and how to determine the various relationships between these joints and muscles which the denture should maintain.

Actually, the construction of the denture is only a small part of a delicate and skillful operation.

First comes diagnosis -- determining the condition of the mouth that is to support the denture. There is also the vital check for mouth disorders which need corrective action for cancer, diseases of the tongue and other conditions. Next is the making of the impression. Every small detail of the gums and ridges must be outlined and accounted for.

From the impression, the dentist makes a cast, selecting artificial teeth appropriate to your mouth and face in size, shape, color and arrangement. If you need a partial denture, the teeth must be in harmony with your natural ones. It is only at this point that a laboratory technician can begin his work -- following the meticulous prescription of the dentist in the construction of the denture.

When the dentures have been completed by the technician the dentists adjusts them carefully in your mouth. After this "try-in" additional corrections can be made if needed.

Finally, the dentist will ask you to come back a few times for minor adjustments as your mouth gets accustomed to the new teeth, to insure correct fit and physiological suitability to chewing and swallowing actions in your particular case.

In this way your denture becomes a help, and not a hazard, to your health.

ALCOHOLISM MAJOR HEALTH PROBLEM
By Louise Chase
Women's Medical News Service

More than 5,000,000 Americans are suffering from a "serious, insidious and progressive disease" -- alcoholism. The estimate and warning comes from the American Medical Association which urges that symptoms of the disease be recognized and treated early enough to avoid permanent damage.

According to the AMA, alcoholism is an emotional illness which can be treated successfully although its causes are not fully understood. Among the early symptoms of the disease are increasing consumption of alcohol; necessity for a drink, particularly at a certain time of day, using alcohol as a drug rather than as a beverage; drinking in the morning or on awakening; getting drunk alone.

When these signs appear, it's urgent that expert help be obtained at once. Neither scloding nor sermonizing will help. Since alcoholism is an illness, the doctor is one major source of help. Effective, too, is Alcoholics Anonymous, which has had an encouraging record of success in working with alcolics; family service agencies; and community mental health organizations.

DISEASE TREATABLE

While alcoholism is treatable it is not curable. The only successful treatment known so far is total abstinence. "Alcohol is a chemical, a drug," the AMA points out, "and as with any addiction, abstinence is the only possible successful solution."

Alcoholics should be helped to understand that many illnesses, not just theirs, "necessitate a limitation on some of the desirable aspects of living." Cardiacs must avoid some sports, diabetics must control their diets. Alcoholics must not drink alcohol.

THINK BEFORE YOU DRINK

How high is your alcohol quotient? To find out, answer the following questions with a yes or no:

1) Is alcohol a stimulant?
2) Will you get as drunk on beer as by drinking the same amount of alcohol in stronger drinks?
3) Will you get drunker by switching drinks than by taking the same amount of alcohol in one form such as bourbon?
3) Should you wait at least three hours after drinking two highballs to be sure you can drive safely?
5) Is alcohol taken as a medicine necessary in the treatment for any disease?
6) Is it a good policy to take a few "shots" of whiskey to warm one up just before being exposed to very low temperatures?

STIMULATING ANSWERS

The correct answers, says the AMA, are as follows:

1. No. The apparent stimulation is due to lessening of the inhibitions by the narcotic action of alcohol.
2. No. The large amount of water in beer is reponsible for slower absorption of alcohol.
3. No. The intoxicating action depends upon the amount of alcohol regardless of the type of drink, assuming that all the drinks contain about the same amount of water.
4. Yes. The two highballs contain a total of about one ounce of pure alcohol. It takes about three hours to oxidize one ounce of alcohol.
5. No. "Alcohol is not a specific or cure for any disease, unless one considers 'worry' a disease, and a drugged indifference a cure."
6. No. The feeling of warmth after drinking is caused by the dilation of the superficial capillaries. This condition is associated with rapid loss of bodily heat.

Razorback Boar Killed

CASSVILLE, Mo. AP -- A big razorback boar was tracked down and killed Sunday, and farmers of Southwestern Missouri's Ozarks are much relieved.

"That blamed hog has run me out of my barn for the last time," exclaimed Harold Ray when he heard the news.

Oldtimers said it was the first true razorback they ever had seen in Missouri. They figured it had wandered up out of Arkansas.

The wild boar was nearly six feet long and weighed about 500 pounds. The carcass dressed out at 400 pounds.

For several years the animal had ranged a 20-square-mile area. Its great size, strength and three-inch tusks enabled it to tear down fences and raid feed supplies. The broken fences allowed domestic hogs to disappear in the tmber.

The boar challenged all who crossed its path, residents said. Coon hunters had to make sure their hounds were safe from it.

Six men from Shell Knob formed a posse Sunday. Tramping through six inches of snow, they found where the boar had been foraging near Ray's place and tracked him down in White Oak Hollow west of Shell Knob.

Two shots from a 30-30 rifle ended the boar's depredations.

THE

Outlook for Business

AUSTIN T. CUSHMAN
Chairman of the Board
Sears, Roebuck and Co.
MERCHANDISING

First, let me note with regret that in light of my retirement next month this is the last time I shall have the pleasure of participating with this distinguished panel in their semi-annual review of the business outlook. Next year, I will be sitting out in front with all you wonderful people who have received my crystal ball gazing with such understanding. Reminiscing about my freshman appearance with this group four years ago, I recall that I commented on the prevalence of a pessimistic attitude about impending business developments. My own views were more optimistic. As it happened, I was actually overconservative.

Now with expressions of doubt and uncertainty about the business outlook again being voiced more frequently than usual, I have the feeling this is where I came in. Again, I am confident that the next six months will see business continuing to prosper.

The year 1966 for retailers as a whole will turn out as another very good year, with about as high a percentage gain in sales as in 1965. The fact that price increases accounted for a larger part of the gain and that the upward thrust had moderated in recent months takes some, but certainly not all, of the bloom off the 1966 picture.

The productive resources of this great economy were strained to capacity this year. The growing requirements of the Vietnam war for manpower and defense good were superimposed upon an unprecedented volume of demand by consumers and business. Consumer buying was stimulated by a strong growth in income. Business continued to expand and modernize its capacity at a very high rate. Except for the unfortunate squeeze on the home-building industry, the economy generally has met the challenge of providing both guns and butter.

Price inflation was inevitable under these conditions. Rising costs of labor, raw materials, and borrowed funds are now biting deeper into profits. Business has to run faster to maintain its level of profit. The squeeze may be even tighter in 1967 as pressures for wage increases mount.

The demand for labor should continue to be strong enough to keep the unemployment rate at about its present level. Wages are generally expected to rise somewhat faster in 1967 than in 1966. However, we will not be able to find as many new workers to add to payrolls; hence, on balance, we should expect a somewhat smaller rise in total consumer income.

Retail sales will continue to expand but at the lower rate which already has become evident in recent months. I anticipate a 5 to 6 per cent gain in total retail sales in the first half of 1967. General merchandise sales should increase at a similar pace on average, but nondurable sales are expected to outpace durables.

Apparel has been a star performer this year, and the response of teen-agers and young adults to the new fashion merchandise indicates continued bright prospects for apparel sales. However, I must note that the decline in home building has had some effect on the basic demand for major household appliances, such as ranges, refrigerators, and washers.

The prospect of more moderate growth in total retail sales hardly justifies the need for a tax increase to restrain consumer demand. The brunt of such a tax increase would probably fall most heavily on consumer durables, where the growth rate has already eased and is not likely to change appreciably in the months ahead.

In conclusion, let me say that this appraisal of somewhat more moderate retail sales gains during the next six months as compared with the first half of 1966 is favorable one, following as it does five consecutive years of substantial growth. The period ahead can serve to help business consolidate its gains, reduce pressure on prices, and place the nation's economy in an excellent position for more vigorous gains in the years ahead.

My oh my, but that smarts! My poor rib cage is still partially crushed from all the undergarments I wore to make me look lovely for good ole New Years Eve. Boy, what women have to go through to be alluring -- and then, if you have a husband like mine all he does after my elaborate dressing ritual is to turn and look at me longingly, sigh, and whisper in my ear, "And just how much did all this set me back?". It's not every one that has a true romantic like Charles. I tell you, that and one other remark these men are always making is enough to really rile a lady (and who's a lady?) This bit about how long it takes us to get ready to go someplace really sets my teeth on edge, they've got their nerve! I'd like to see them cram themselves into a too small girdle, a backless, sideless, strapless, and halfway topless bra, (and end up with the front facing that way), hose that have to be stretched so tight you constantly are bending over frontwards from the tension your garters are exerting. I'll sure be glad when the short skirts go out so if you have wrinkled knees, no one is the wiser, and that's another thing, I haven't been able to sit down all during the holidays cause the skirts are so short it's an impossibility, -- Grandma, I think I need your pantaloons. Then, stuff your feet into heels that hurt, and at least you're ready for the really big production -- the make up. That involves first, a moisturizer to make your skin look soft, shiny, and dewy; next, cream to cover all the blemishes and wrinkles; then, cream to cover the cream that covered the blemishes and wrinkles; next, a powder base so your powder will adhere and you won't look soft, shiny, and dewy; then rouge, eye-shadow (three shades for high-lighting different vital areas); then, powder to cling to the base coat; then, eyeliner to make your eyes look larger, and for some poor gals, it's then time for false lashes and those will really keep you busy; next, a soft brush with makeup to make you soft, shiny, and dewy again; and last, lipstick in another three shades so your lips will be soft and pouting and tres kissable, (and then they wonder what takes so long). I usually poop out about one fourth of the way through this procedure. I think that's why sometimes I look dewy, and other times I look dry, it just depends on where I got tired and left off. I don't think I could ever get the whole mess on, if I did I'd just crack the first time I smiled, but there are some girls, bless their pretty complexions, who do manage to do the whole routine. Well, on with the makeup and now for the other big undertaking, the hair. Believe me, if you've never had your hair ratted and back combed, you've missed out on not only quite an experience, but also quite a good deal of pain. Oh-oh-oh- but it do hurt!! Then, don the long gown, secure the earrings that pinch until your ears finally go numb, the bracelet that scratches, and at last you are ready to sally forth for the evening. Just remember to smile brightly (how else, your eyes are already glittering from the pain), try desperately for that deep breath, grit your teeth, and lady go and dazzle the world! Brother aren't we nuts!! Now husbands, do you see why it takes us more than fifteen minutes to accomplish this feat? I'd just like to see how long it would take some of them to get that girdle on, and heaven knows most of them could use it, and some, I won't mention names, could go one of those backless, strapless items also! Hmmm, guess I'd better quit knocking the men's waistlines or they'll just refuse to eat this calorie filled goody I'm going to give you the recipe for. This was eaten in New Madrid, at a picnic by my mother many years ago, and is still a top favorite of hers. I give you Miss Nancy and Mabel Mecklem's Chili Loaf.

CHILI LOAF

one-pound of beef
one pound of pork
1 can of tomatoes
2 chopped onions
1 cup chopped celery
1 tsp each of pepper, salt, red pepper, sugar, and chili pepper,
4 cups of water

Combine all this in a pan, and cook until done. Take meat out and grind it up. Strain the broth, and add the tomato mixture to your ground meat, and put the clear broth back into the pan and with 1 tsp. of salt, 2 TBS. of chili pepper, the juice off 1 can of chili beans (put the beans in with the meat mixture). Bring the liquid to a boil, and very slowly and while stirring, add white corn meal to liquid until you have formed a thick mush. Cook well. In a large casserole, line the sides and bottom with the mush mixture. Fill center with meat mixture, and cover top with mush. Serve cold, or bake at 350 degrees, for about 30 minutes or until bubbly.

$3,000 in Watches Taken by Burglars

FULTON, MO. (AP) - Burglars made only minimal hauls at three places in Fulton Sunday night but got watches and rings valued at $3,000 to $4,000 from a fourth - the West Jewelry Store.

The jewelry store was entered through a window. About 100 watches, 20 to 30 weddings rings and some cigarette lighters were taken.

An attempt was made to enter another jewelry store but it failed. Burglars also got $400 in cash at an oil company warehouse and entered a self-service laundry but got nothing there.

Earlier Sunday $13 was taken from a school bus garage.

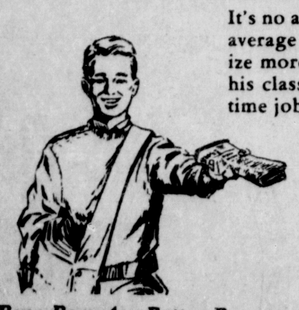
Most boys dream of growing up and becoming a success... newspaperboys are already doing something about it!

A newspaperboy is learning about the business world every day. He's an independent merchant who buys at wholesale—sells at retail—makes his own collections and builds up profits by salesmanship and good service.

Other boys lacking this experience will have much less to offer a future employer.

It's no accident that a newspaperboy is an above average student. His experience makes him realize more than other boys that he'll have to put his classroom lessons to work on his first full-time job.



Yes, a newspaper route starts a boy thinking . . . about his progress in school and what he'll have to learn to be a business success. He'll be able to offer his future employer a well-rounded background in free enterprise and the American Way of Life.

THE

AUSTIN T. CUSHMAN
Chairman of the Board
Sears, Roebuck and Co.

MERCHANDISING

First, let me note with regret that in light of my retirement next month this is the last time I shall have the pleasure of participating with this distinguished panel in their semi-annual review of the business outlook. Next year, I will be sitting out in front with all you wonderful people who have received my crystal ball gazing with such understanding. Reminiscing about my freshman appearance with this group four years ago, I recall that I commented on the prevalence of a pessimistic attitude about impending business developments. My own views were more optimistic. As it happened, I was actually overconservative.

Now with expressions of doubt and uncertainty about the business outlook again being voiced more frequently than usual, I have the feeling this is where I came in. Again, I am confident that the next six months will see business continuing to prosper.

The year 1966 for retailers as a whole will turn out as another very good year, with about as high a percentage gain in sales as in 1965. The fact that price increases accounted for a larger part of the gain and that the upward thrust had moderated in recent months takes some, but certainly not all, of the bloom off the 1966 picture.

The productive resources of this great economy were strained to capacity this year. The growing requirements of the Vietnam war for manpower and defense good were superimposed upon an unprecedented volume of demand by consumers and business. Consumer buying was stimulated by a strong growth in income. Business continued to expand and modernize its capacity at a very high rate. Except for the unfortunate squeeze on the home-building industry, the economy generally has met the challenge of providing both guns and butter.

Price inflation was inevitable under these conditions. Rising costs of labor, raw materials, and borrowed funds are now biting deeper into profits. Business has to run faster to maintain its level of profit. The squeeze may be even tighter in 1967 as pressures for wage increases mount.

The demand for labor should continue to be strong enough to keep the unemployment rate at about its present level. Wages are generally expected to rise somewhat faster in 1967 than in 1966. However, we will not be able to find as many new workers to add to payrolls; hence, on balance, we should expect a somewhat smaller rise in total consumer income.

Retail sales will continue to expand but at the lower rate which already has become evident in recent months. I anticipate a 5 to 6 per cent gain in total retail sales in the first half of 1967. General merchandise sales should increase at a similar pace on average, but nondurable sales are expected to outpace durables.

Apparel has been a star performer this year, and the response of teen-agers and young adults to the new fashion merchandise indicates continued bright prospects for apparel sales. However, I must note that the decline in home building has had some effect on the basic demand for major household appliances, such as ranges, refrigerators, and washers.

The prospect of more moderate growth in total retail sales hardly justifies the need for a tax increase to restrain consumer demand. The brunt of such a tax increase would probably fall most heavily on consumer durables, where the growth rate has already eased and is not likely to change appreciably in the months ahead.

In conclusion, let me say that this appraisal of somewhat more moderate retail sales gains during the next six months as compared with the first half of 1966 is favorable one, following as it does five consecutive years of substantial growth. The period ahead can serve to help business consolidate its gains, reduce pressure on prices, and place the nation's economy in an excellent position for more vigorous gains in the years ahead.

House May Discard 21-Day Limit Rule

WASHINGTON (AP) — A decision that could vitally affect the course of legislation in the 90th Congress will be made next Monday when House Democrats hold their presession caucus.

They will decide whether to try to retain the 21-day rule or discard it.

The rule puts a limit of 21 days on the time the Rules Committee may block House action on legislation approved by other committees. It was adopted originally at the insistence of Speaker Sam Rayburn to protect President John F. Kennedy's legislative program from strangulation by the Rules Committee then dominated by conservatives. It has been retained at the insistence of the Democratic leadership.

But last year's election results made the rule less appealing to its original sponsors. Among other things, the elections vacated the seats of Rules Chairman Howard W. Smith, a conservative Virginia Democrat, and James W. Trimble, an Arkansas moderate.

Democrats held 10 seats on the Rules Committee last year and Republicans 5. The ideological division was 8 to 7 in favor of the liberals, although there were times when the reverse was true, and the 21-day rule was used on several occasions.

The lineup in the new Congress will be 10 Democrats and 5 Republicans. Democrats plan to fill their two vacancies with liberals. Theoretically that would give the Democratic leadership a 9-6 voting edge on most legislation, or at worst 8 to 7. The new chairman, Rep. William M. Colmer, D-Miss., has voted in the past with the 5 Republicans and probably will continue to do so.

With that strong grip on the committee, the leadership sees no point in retaining the 21-day rule. It could be used to force House votes on legislation the leaders want bottled up by the Rules Committee.

Conservatives will be in numerical control of some committees this year and might kick over the traces and approve bills the administration doesn't want. In that event, an unfettered Rules Committee could serve as a graveyard.

Rep. Richard M. Bolling, D-Mo., one of the original champions of the 21-day rule and a leading spokesman for the liberals, sees no reason to retain the rule.

"We don't need it and we don't want it if we get a strong grip on the Rules Committee," Bolling said.

Speaker John W. McCormack and Democratic Leader Carl Albert reportedly agree with Bolling, although they have made no formal statements to that effect. Next Monday's caucus probably will bow to the wishes of McCormack and Albert.

Whether the rule is retained or junked is up to the House itself. It will make the final decision when the new rules are adopted at next Tuesday's opening session.

Conservatives who opposed the rule in the past now see some merit in it if it is changed. They would like to remove the speaker's arbitrary authority to call up or hold back legislation sidetracked by the Rules Committee for 21 days. The speaker now has sole power to decide when the rule shall be used.

Probe Expected To Lose Votes For Powell

WASHINGTON (AP) — An investigating subcommittee's criticism of Rep. Adam Clayton Powell can't help but produce more votes to prevent the Harlem Democrat from taking his seat in the new Congress next Tuesday, Rep. Lionel Van Deerlin said today.

Van Deerlin, a California Democrat, has announced that he will ask that Powell stand aside when the other members-elect are sworn in. He said he is sending every House member today an outline of a further proposal to keep Powell from taking his seat while a special committee looks into his qualifications.

The House Administration Committee published Tuesday its subcommittee's finding that Powell used official travel credit cards deceptively.

It said Powell used an assumed name for some of his own travel and that a staff employe, Corinne A. Huff, did likewise. Travel was provided at the expense of the Education and Labor Committee, which Powell heads, for persons unconnected with Congress, the report said.

However, neither the subcommittee nor the parent committee recommended action against Powell. The committee did order his wife dropped from his pay roll, where she held a $20,578-a-year post. This was done on the basis of testimony that she lives in Puerto Rico, whereas the law requires that a congressman's employe serve either in his Washington office or his home state.

Publication of the hearing record and report as a House document automatically sends it to the Justice Department, as well as other government agencies, Chairman Omar Burleson, D-Tex., said.

Not satisfied with this action, Rep. William L. Dickinson, R-Ala., sent a copy to acting Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark with a request for action.

Deliberate Bombing Disputed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon has officially denied that U.S. planes deliberately bombed civilian areas of Nam Dinh, North Vietnam's third largest city.

The statement was contained in a Defense Department letter to Rep. Ogden R. Reid, R-N.Y., that amounts to an official rebuttal of some portions of a New York Times dispatch about U.S. bombing of the city.

Dated Dec. 30 and made public Tuesday night, the letter was signed by Phil G. Goulding, deputy assistant secretary of defense for public affairs. It came in response to Reid's request for a restatement of U. S. policy on bombing and targeting in North Vietnam in light of recent Times' dispatches reporting widespread civilian deaths and damage.

Harrison E. Salisbury, a Times' assistant managing editor, said in one dispatch from Hanoi last week that U.S. planes have systematically attacked nonmilitary targets including a textile plant and dikes in Nam Dinh, killing 89 persons. He added: "No American communique has asserted that Nam Dinh contains some facility that the United States regards as a military objective."

Goulding said this statement "is without accuracy." He added: "The New York Times simply did not take the time to research the matter themselves or, indeed, to ask our assistance."

The Times, however, said in today's editions that before Salisbury's dispatch was published Dec. 27 "it was read to Defense Department officials."

"In a statement printed in the same issue of the New York Times," the newspaper said, "administration officials conceded for the first time that American bombing raids against North Vietnam were accidentally causing damage to civilian areas.

"The officials also said that there were military targets in Nam Dinh and that American aircraft had repeatedly bombed them."

President Lyndon Johnson's great-grandfather, George Washington Baines, was once president of Baylor University.

Viet War Producing Brand New GI Lingo

SAIGON (AP) — The Green Beanies came out of the boonies last week for Bob Hope's show and the word for the Hollywood round eyes was "something else again."

Like all the rest of America's 20th-century wars, the Vietnam conflict is producing its own GI slang.

Foot soldiers who were doughboys in World War I and dogfaces in World War II are grunts or ground pounders in Vietnam.

The wild blue yonder types of 1941-45 and the jet jockeys of Korea are zoomies or Steve Canyons here.

Casualties are seldom killed; they are zapped, waxed, get their plows cleaned or get schnitzled. They may be dinged but rarely are wounded.

Atomic age troops in Vietnam prefer affirmatron or negatron to yes or no.

The American buildup in Vietnam began with retread argot from previous wars. Boondocks described the bush or any obscure location. It later became boonies and now shows signs of reverting to World War II's tulies.

Some twisting of the language grows out of boredom with repetition. A few GIs prefer balloon to platoon and corpuscle to corporal. Drinking water is referred to as potable, as in "give me a glass of potable."

Other slang is functional or, in the case of the F105 Thunderchief, malfunctional. A series of crashes by the jet fighter-bomber earned it the title thud. The two-seat model is known as double thud.

The most widely used single phrase is still "sorry 'bout that." Heard here for almost two years, it is stencilled on caps and shirts, used as explanation or apology and is the title of a book of war humor.

The difficult tonal language of Vietnam has been raided by American soldiers for suitable expressions.

"Troi oi" (pronounced "choi oi") is loosely translated as "Oh, My God" and has become a universal exclamation. "Di di" (pronounced "dee dee") means go. It sometimes is used as "di di it up" or "let's di di the hell out of here," "Dien Cai Dau" (pronounced "dinky dow") means crazy.

U. S. troops and some Vietnamese rate people or objects by the numbers. "No. 1" is the very best; "No. 10" designates a "cheap Charlie" or some other disliked item. Nobody seems to use any of the numbers in between.

Some troops express sarcasm with "real fine" or "outstanding." "Something else again" is high praise, used, for example, in referring to a particularly well endowed Hollywood starlet. Roundeye is the GI term for a western girl.

MRS. TOM HEFNER, 800 Poplar is about to choose a recipe card from her file box.

Mrs. Tom Hefner, 800 Poplar, Crochets, Cooks, Collects

Editor's Note: This is the 19th in a series of articles about the homelife of Sikeston area families.

By Ruth Dillender

Mrs. Tom Hefner, 800 Poplar, says that her past times are crocheting, cooking and collecting old lamps and vases. She and her husband also refinish old furniture.

Mrs. Hefner's mother, Mrs. Ella Ramer, 81, makes her home with the couple. The couple has lived in Sikeston 17 years. They enjoy visiting elderly people.

Hefner is a representative for National Texgas Co.

He collects shaving mugs and clocks as a hobby.

Although the couple has no children, two boys lived with them seven years. They are George and Bill Watkins. George is an army lieutenant serving in Japan and Bill is a dentist in Bel Air, Tex.

The family attends the First General Baptist church. Mrs. Hefner is assistant Sunday School teacher of the four-year-old class.

Treasures in the Hefner home are clocks restored by Hefner, a library table over 100 years old, and a dressing table and china closet, both refinished by Hefner.

Recipes suggested by Mrs. Hefner are:

PERFECT PIE SHELL

1-1/2 cups sifted all purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup shortening
1/4 cup water

Mix well, Roll out with little flour.

KARO PECAN PIE

1 cup Karo syrup
3 eggs, slightly beaten
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup sugar
2 tablespoons melted butter or oleo
1 cup pecans, chopped or in halves

Mix all ingredients and pour into unbaked 9-inch pie shell. Bake at 400 degrees for 15 minutes. Then reduce heat to 350 degrees and bake 30 to 35 minutes long.

Mrs. Hefner says that this pie recipe is easy for teenagers and it turns out delicious and appetizing.

OLD FASHION DEVIL'S FOOD CAKE

2 cups sugar
1/2 cup shortening
2 eggs
1/2 cup sour milk
2 cups bread flour
3 tablespoons cocoa, sifted in the flour
1 teaspoon baking soda, dissolved in 1 cup warm water

Mix all ingredients well. Bake 30 or 40 minutes at 375 degrees. Let cool.

Mrs. Hefner says that this cake is moist.

COCONUT FLUFF FROSTING

This frosting is satin smooth, never sugars and does not have to be cooked, comments Mrs. Hefner.

2 egg whites
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup sugar
3/4 cup light corn syrup
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Beat egg whites with salt until mixture forms soft peaks. Add sugar, a tablespoon at a time. Continue beating as you gradually add syrup. Add vanilla and beat till frosting stands in peaks. Spread on cake and sprinkle with coconut, grated fresh or flaked.

APPLE FLUFF

Beat 2 egg whites unitl stiff. Slowly beat in 1 cup very cold apple sauce using as much as needed to make mixture firm enough to pile into dishes. Serve with sweetened whipped cream and sprinkle with nutmeg and cinnamon.

Mrs. Hefner comments that her mother especially likes this dessert.

CORN DOGS

1 cup flour
1/2 cup corn flour
1 cup sweet milk
1 egg
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
2 teaspoons sugar

Mix well. Dip wieners in batter. Fry in deep fat or oil.

SPAGHETTI SAUCE

1 lb. hamburger meat
1 medium onion, chopped
1 can stewed tomatoes
1 large can tomato paste
3 bay leaves
Dash of oregano
1 teaspoon garlic powder or 2 buttons of garlic
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon sugar

Simmer meat and onions. Add tomatoes and tomato paste. Add spices. Simmer at least three hours, stirring occasionally. Prepare small package of spaghetti in 2 quarts of water. Add 2 tablespoons of cooking oil. Serves four.

Mrs. Hefner says cooking oil in the spaghetti prevents its sticking together.

QUICK FRENCH DRESSING

1 cup cooking oil
1/2 cup vinegar
1-1/2 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
1/2 cup tomato catsup
1 teaspoon garlic powder or 2 cloves garlic

Measure all ingredients into jar. Shake well. Chill. Shake before serving. Makes 1-1/2 cups.

VOTING RIGHTS and LEGAL WRONGS

Q. At the beginning of the discussion, you mentioned that you wanted to discuss the proposed title:

The Voting Rights Act of 1965?

A. Yes. Congress has passed since 1957 three so - called Civil Rights Acts, the Acts of 1957, 1960 and 1964. Four other laws already were in existence.

There are presently seven different laws which, if enforced, would guarantee the right to vote!

First. Any citizen may sue any election official for damages who denies him the right to vote -- 42 U. S. C. 1983.

Second. Any citizen who alleges he is wrongfully denied the right to vote may sue in Federal court without a jury to prevent the denial of that right -- 42 U.S.C. 1971.

Third. Any election official, anywhere in the United States, who denied any qualified voter his right to register and vote under color of law is punishable by fine and imprisonment -- 18 U.S.C. 242.

Fourth. Any election official who conspires with another to deny any citizen the right to vote is subject to a fine of $5,000, or imprisonment for 10 years, or both -- 18 U.S.C. 241.

Fifth. The Attorney General may sue in the Federal courts for an injunction at any time any person is engaged or there are reasonable grounds to believe he is about to engage in any act designed to deprive a person of his right to vote -- 42 U.S.C. 1993.

Sixth. If a Federal judge finds a pattern of discrimination pursuant to the 1960 Civil Rights Act, he may appoint Federal voting referees to replace local officials.

Seventh. The 1964 Civil Rights Act provides that all voting case be expedited; that if less than 15 per cent of a race is registered, Federal referees be appointed; and that everyone with a sixth grade education is presumed literate -- 42 U.S. C. 1971.

Note specifically those provisions of the 1960 and 1964 Civil Rights Acts which authorize a Federal judge to appoint Federal voting referees if, after a judicial determination, a pattern of discrimination is found to exist.

The proponents of the 1965 Act have protested that a judicial determination of discrimination takes too long to decide and that some Negroes might not be allowed to register for seven or eight years.

The purpose instead to allow an administration determination of whether discrimination exists in a given State, bypassing completely the judicial process.

The substitution, in addition to being repugnant to the doctrine of separation of power, is a direct and unconstitutional attack on the doctrine of federalism.

(THE END)

LABELING -- "While the Congress is considering 'mislabeling,' wouldn't the dollar be a good place to start?"

queries Sen. Norris Cotton (R.-N.H.).

"Did you do any work -- like dictation or anything like that?" asked Chairman Wayne Hays, D-Ohio.

"No, I didn't," replied Mrs. Swann. "I had no business. I was just going."

"Could you tell us how these trips came about, what discussions you had with Mr. Powell?"

"There was no discussion," replied Mrs. Swann. "Mr. Powell gave me the tickets."

"Well, there had to be some arrangement as to your being away from the office."

"Well, he did give me a vacation time."

"Did you ask him for the travel ticket or did he voluntarily give you a ticket?"

"No. I did not ask him for the tickets," said Mrs. Swann. "They were given to me."

"Did he tell you why he was giving them to you?"

"No, there was no discussion as to why. I was to use them."

"There had to be some reason for this gift of a ticket to Miami," said Rep. William Dickson, the Montgomery, Ala., Republican who accused Dr. Martin Luther King's Selma marchers of conducting a sex orgy. "What was the reason for this? I couldn't just walk up and give one of my employees a ticket and not say anything."

"He gave me the ticket to go to Miami with time off included and that is all," persisted Mrs. Swann.

"There was no purpose to it?"

"No purpose," replied Powell's receptionist.

TRAVEL GHOSTS?

There was a mass of the detailed testimony regarding the flight of Powell's staff which revealed that he not they actually took the trips.

Airline records showed that Mrs. Dorothy Himes, secretary to Powell's administrative assistant (Chuch Stone) made six flights between Washington and New York and three flights between Washington and Miami. She told the Hays committee that she had made none of these flights.

She said she did not know her name had been used on the tickets for the flights until so advised by the Hays committee.

Miss Aurora Harris, now a secretary at the HEW Department, formerly in Powell's office, made two round - trip flights between Washington and Miami and three flights between Washington and New York in early 1965.

She testified that she had not been a passenger on any of these flights.

"You were not aware of the fact that your name was shown as traveling between these places?" Miss Harris was asked.

"That is right, sir."

"I am going to show you a transportation request for a shuttle flight between Washington and New York on Eastern Airlines, March 28, 1965, which is in the record as Dargans' exhibit no. 3, is that your signature?"

"No, it is not."

Mrs. Louise Dargans, Powell's top secretary, was revealed as the holder of a "Q" type air travel credit card, which entitled her to buy airline tickets for others. The committee record showed that on March 28, 1965, at a "social gathering" in Washington Powell told her to use her credit card to purchase four one-way shuttle tickets from Washington to New York in her name and the names of other staff members, namely, Don Anderson, Aurora Harris, and Odell Clark.

ADAM JR.'s FREE RIDE

These tickets were to be used by Mrs. Lillian Upshur, a clerk in Powell's congressional office, and three others at the social gathering who were not employed by congress and were not authorized to travel at government expense. The others were Adam Powell Jr., the congressman's son, Miss Pearl Swangin, and Mr. Jack Duncan. The latter two are old friends of Powell's who live in New York.

Mrs. Dargans went to the Washington airport with Mrs. Upshur and there met Powell Jr., Miss Swangin and Duncan; then loaned her credit card to Miss Upshur when the ticket agent told her shuttle tickets could only be purchased in flight.

Mrs. Dargans: "This was the one rare instance in which I have let another staff member or anyone else have my card. And I did this at the direct instruction of the chairman."

"Did you bring to the attention of congressman Powell that as far as you knew your credit card had been used to purchase tickets for three persons not employed by congress (referring to Powell Jr., Miss Swangin, and Mr. Duncan)?"

"I was given the order by the chairman to make those purchases," Mrs. Dargans replied.

"Did you question whether or not it was proper to use your travel card to purchase tickets for those persons?"

"No, sir, I did not. He asked me to purchase tickets in the names of those people with the understanding they would use them."

"You haven't been on an airplane at any time during the 89th congress?"

"No, sir."

"You don't fly any more?"

"That is correct," replied Powell's top secretary.

A recent survey shows that the average young bachelor is more interested in high frequency than in high fidelity.

DREW PEARSON SAYS: Powell's unique junketing generosity; he gave free travel to his son; receptionist got a free trip to Miami without request.

WASHINGTON -- Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, the Harlem Globe Trotter, was either amazingly generous in giving junkets to his staff, or else some of them covered up for his own junkets -- all at the taxpayers expense.

One of those who got a delightful junket -- or else was covering up -- was Emma T. Swann, who served as receptionist in the House Education and Labor Committee of which Powell is chairman. She was listed as taking thirty trips between New York, Miami, and Buffalo during 1965-66 which actually she did not take. But in addition, she testified that she took three trips with Powell. On this the House Subcommittee investigating Powell questioned her closely. Its members seemed skeptical that she actually took the trips.

MRS. TOM HEFNER, 800 Poplar is about to choose a recipe card from her file box.

Mrs. Tom Hefner, 800 Poplar, Crochets, Cooks, Collects

Editor's Note: This is the 19th in a series of articles about the homelife of Sikeston area families.

By Ruth Dillender

Mrs. Tom Hefner, 800 Poplar, says that her past times are crocheting, cooking and collecting old lamps and vases. She and her husband also refinish old furniture.

Mrs. Hefner's mother, Mrs. Ella Ramer, 81, makes her home with the couple. The couple has lived in Sikeston 17 years. They enjoy visiting elderly people.

Hefner is a representative for National Texgas Co.

He collects shaving mugs and clocks as a hobby.

Although the couple has no children, two boys lived with them seven years. They are George and Bill Watkins. George is an army lieutenant serving in Japan and Bill is a dentist in Bel Air, Tex.

The family attends the First General Baptist church. Mrs. Hefner is assistant Sunday School teacher of the four-year-old class.

Treasures in the Hefner home are clocks restored by Hefner, a library table over 100 years old, and a dressing table and china closet, both refinished by Hefner.

Recipes suggested by Mrs. Hefner are:

PERFECT PIE SHELL

1-1/2 cups sifted all purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup shortening
1/4 cup water

Mix well, Roll out with little flour.

KARO PECAN PIE

1 cup Karo syrup
3 eggs, slightly beaten
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup sugar
2 tablespoons melted butter or oleo
1 cup pecans, chopped or in halves

Mix all ingredients and pour into unbaked 9-inch pie shell. Bake at 400 degrees for 15 minutes. Then reduce heat to 350 degrees and bake 30 to 35 minutes long.

Mrs. Hefner says that this pie recipe is easy for teenagers and it turns out delicious and appetizing.

OLD FASHION DEVIL'S FOOD CAKE

2 cups sugar
1/2 cup shortening
2 eggs
1/2 cup sour milk
2 cups bread flour
3 tablespoons cocoa, sifted in the flour
1 teaspoon baking soda, dissolved in 1 cup warm water

Mix all ingredients well. Bake 30 or 40 minutes at 375 degrees. Let cool.

Mrs. Hefner says that this cake is moist.

COCONUT FLUFF FROSTING

This frosting is satin smooth, never sugars and does not have to be cooked, comments Mrs. Hefner.

2 egg whites
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup sugar
3/4 cup light corn syrup
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Beat egg whites with salt until mixture forms soft peaks. Add sugar, a tablespoon at a time. Continue beating as you gradually add syrup. Add vanilla and beat till frosting stands in peaks. Spread on cake and sprinkle with coconut, grated fresh or flaked.

APPLE FLUFF

Beat 2 egg whites unitl stiff. Slowly beat in 1 cup very cold apple sauce using as much as needed to make mixture firm enough to pile into dishes. Serve with sweetened whipped cream and sprinkle with nutmeg and cinnamon.

Mrs. Hefner comments that her mother especially likes this dessert.

CORN DOGS

1 cup flour
1/2 cup corn flour
1 cup sweet milk
1 egg
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
2 teaspoons sugar

Mix well. Dip wieners in batter. Fry in deep fat or oil.

SPAGHETTI SAUCE

1 lb. hamburger meat
1 medium onion, chopped
1 can stewed tomatoes
1 large can tomato paste
3 bay leaves
Dash of oregano
1 teaspoon garlic powder or 2 buttons of garlic
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon sugar

Simmer meat and onions. Add tomatoes and tomato paste. Add spices. Simmer at least three hours, stirring occasionally. Prepare small package of spaghetti in 2 quarts of water. Add 2 tablespoons of cooking oil. Serves four.

Mrs. Hefner says cooking oil in the spaghetti prevents its sticking together.

QUICK FRENCH DRESSING

1 cup cooking oil
1/2 cup vinegar
1-1/2 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
1/2 cup tomato catsup
1 teaspoon garlic powder or 2 cloves garlic

Measure all ingredients into jar. Shake well. Chill. Shake before serving. Makes 1-1/2 cups.

Root Digging Days Will Greet Spring

SPRINGFIELD -- Wintertime in the Ozarks is annually planning time for the Spring-welcoming celebration, "Root Digging Days," at Silver Dollar City, Mo.

Veteran root - digger Chick Allen, 61, a leathery complexioned former logger, speaks with drawling good humor of how the event is deeply rooted in Ozarks history. "After bein' shut in for months, back when there weren't no heated cars or money to spend for gettin' away from the home place," Chick relates, "we felt like the comin' of Spring deserved some outlandish whoopin' and hollerin'."

Since the celebration time coincided with the traditional gathering of medicinal roots and herbs, it was called "Root Digging Days."

Chick is always on hand with his freshly dug collection of buckbrush, golden seal, black hall, wahoo and life everlasting (recommended, respectively, for pyorrhea, stomach disorders, ladies' complaint, chills and fever, and catarrh. In all, he exhibits 20 native plants in whose medicinal properties he staunchly believes.

Highlights of the celebration include accuracy firing competitions with two Civil War model cannons, steam engine-powered rock sled rides for the children, units of non-professional mountain musicians scattered about the streets of Silver Dollar City, and frantic, twice - daily red flannel underwear "getting - out - of" contests.

This year, the event is scheduled two weekends, April 29-30, and May 6-7. Admission is free.

Committee Orders Powell's Wife Off Payroll

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House Administration Committee today ordered Rep. Adam Clayton Powell's wife removed from her $20,500 job on his payroll.

The committee also issued findings of widespread irregularities in official travel.

The findings, made by a subcommittee which held hearings on practices of the House Education and Labor Committee, of which Powell is chairman, were made part of an official House document which goes to the Justice Department as well as other government agencies.

Chairman Omar Burleson, D-Tex., of the administration committee said there was no specific vote to send the subcommittee findings to the Justice Department. But he said that "when it is made a House document, it is automatically under the rules to all government departments including Justice.

"Anyone can take it from there if there should be matter for a civil suit for recovery of funds or even possible criminal action."

The committee action in ordering the firing of a person on a member's staff was described as unprecedented by Rep. Wayne L. Hays, D-Ohio, chairman of the subcommittee that conducted the hearings and made recommendations to the administration committee.

Check List for the Job Hunter

By JAMES M. MURPHEY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

"Fifty per cent of the young men who begin their careers this fall will leave their first job within three to five years," says career counselor Joseph Venaglia, president of the College Marketing Institute.

"They are largely the college graduates who never got through to their interviewers. Why? Because the usual student applicant is completely unprepared to take charge of the interview situation," he adds.

Do your plans include three to five years of postgraduate searching for a suitable job? Of course not. What you need is a system, a way of taking the initiative in a job-hunting situation. Venaglia has just the one.

The system begins with understanding what the recruiter is really looking for. Remember that when he sends a man up to his boss he has to be reasonably sure the boss will approve.

The question the recruiter asks himself is, "Will this recruit be able to protect my image?" He will feel comfortable only if you reduce his uncertainty. The only way for you to do that is to provide him with the greatest amount of relevant information in the least amount of time. Simple? Yes, but bringing it off requires systematic thinking.

Your general approach is to put yourself in charge of the situation. Become a salesman selling yourself so that the recruiter can comfortably assume the position of buyer.

In most recruiting situations the recruiter is forced to be both buyer and seller, because the student being interviewed doesn't know anything about the company. When that happens, the student applicant has much less opportunity to sell himself. So, you have to know the interviewer's company.

Once you show the recruiter that you know his company, he is ready to pay attention to you. Here is where you must know yourself—and show it.

Only one out of a hundred applicants walks into an interview situation with a clear idea of who he is and what he wants. The man is such a rarity that the recruiter is usually amazed. The result is that the recruiter can't afford to let this one-in-a-hundred get away.

His thinking goes like this: "If this man is capable of doing this kind of analysis on himself, then he's obviously prepared to exhibit the same decision-making qualities within our company."

Now, how to do it. Knowing yourself takes systematic thought. A way to go about it is:

- List all the things that you have ever enjoyed doing. List one or a hundred; but don't consider those things you might enjoy.
- Make a tentative choice of the three you most enjoy doing. You are entitled to change your mind.
- Ask yourself why you enjoy doing these three things. List at least 10 reasons for each. Push yourself until you can't think of any more reasons. If you can't list at least five "good" reasons, you may have made a bad choice.
- Talk with people actively engaged with each of your major interests to find out more about them.
- Find the products and services associated with your three interests. List them.
- Analyze what type of involvement you would prefer to have with the products or services listed. Would you want to manufacture them? Advertise them? Finance them? List three activities for each product or service.
- Name 10 reasons for the choice you made of specific occupations related to major interests. Sources of information are easy to find (professional organizations, professors). Also, contact key men in companies. Although these executives are busy, nine out of 10 will see you if you use this method:

Contact the man's secretary and ask if you, as a student, could have 10 minutes of the man's time to ask three questions pertinent to your career choice. Then be sure to have three well-thought-out specific questions for him. (If you're impressive, you may end up spending the afternoon with the man. And may even land a job offer later—but don't angle for it.)

- Decide where you want to work. East or West? Big town, little town? List 10 reasons why.
- Pick a company. What companies relevant to your stated interests are located in the area that you have chosen? Gather all the possible information about them. Go beyond looking at records and stock prices. Learn the terminology of the field. Find out who are the key men in the company. Read their speeches and evaluate them. Evaluate the thinking they represent as well as what they said. Would you feel comfortable working with these men?

You are now prepared to see the recruiter, present your case and get the job. You know the company, the exact job, and why you want it.

British Peace Plan Rejected

TOKYO (AP) - North Vietnam today rejected the British proposal for peace talks with the United States and South Vietnam, declaring the British purpose was to force the Vietnamese people to "accept the insolent terms put by the U.S. imperialists."

Both the United States and South Vietnam gave a favorable response to British Foreign Secretary George Brown's proposal last week that they join North Vietnam in peace talks on British soil.

North Vietnam's official newspaper Nhan Dan reiterated Communist terms for peace today and rapped Britain for suggesting a conference.

British Peace Plan Rejected

TOKYO (AP) - North Vietnam today rejected the British proposal for peace talks with the United States and South Vietnam, declaring the British purpose was to force the Vietnamese people to "accept the insolent terms put by the U.S. imperialists."

Both the United States and South Vietnam gave a favorable response to British Foreign Secretary George Brown's proposal last week that they join North Vietnam in peace talks on British soil.

North Vietnam's official newspaper Nhan Dan reiterated Communist terms for peace today and rapped Britain for suggesting a conference.

ally to meet the needs in St. Louis and Kansas City, would cost the state about $700,000.

(5) Medical care for the blind at a cost of $724,000 from the blind pension fund.

(6) "The sixth new program seeks to prevent desertion of a family by an unemployed father of a family which would be eligible for aid to dependent children if he were not living in the household. To reduce this disastrous effect on solidarity of the family unit, I recommend that Missouri law be amended to conform to the federal act for the purpose of matching funds, at a cost to the state of $800,000 for 2,800 families."

(7) Improve payments to welfare patients in nursing homes, based on a classification system of professional care and costing the state an estimated $3,791,000.

(8) Assistance payments for those over 65 years old in mental institutions. With federal aid the state cost, now paid by the division of mental diseases, would be $5,185,560.

(9) Creation of a new department for community affairs to handle the present state and regional planning program. The budget request for the planning activities was $727,611 from general revenue with an extra $303,270 from federal funds.

The Governor said his entire budget was based on the idea of maintaining the current level of services and expanding them where the need is shown clearly.

Two traffic safety recommendations were included-periodic inspection of all motor vehicles and authorization for reflective license plates. He said other suggestions will be made later by his coordinating committee on traffic safety.

Hearnes also suggested intensive study of reports expected soon on revision of Missouri's banking and insurance laws where there are many conflicts.

Other recommendations:

A new civil defense law formalizing his transfer of the agency to the adjutant general's office and including emergency resources planning.

A minimum of $14 a day for National Guardsmen when they are called to active duty in flood or other emergencies.

Putting both Guardsmen and civilian employes of the Adjutant General under workmen's compensation.

The Governor, who spent 10 years in the House, said he realized the lawmakers will have a mountainous mass of bills to consider. He gave this advice:

"Some of this legislation will fit into the logical economic and social progression which our state should follow; other proposals will be urged vigorously and with great fanfare by those interested in only a narrow spectrum of the very broad and diverse objectives important to a majority of Missourians.

"Other legislation will be of obvious merit, but also yoked to contemporary fiscal impracticality."

He said he was confident the new legislature would write a historic record that would "compare well with the enduring achievements" of the past.

ally to meet the needs in St. Louis and Kansas City, would cost the state about $700,000.

(5) Medical care for the blind at a cost of $724,000 from the blind penston fund.

(6) "The sixth new program seeks to prevent desertion of a family by an unemployed father of a family which would be eligible for aid to dependent children if he were not living in the household. To reduce this disastrous effect on solidarity of the family unit, I recommend that Missouri law be amended to conform to the federal act for the purpose of matching funds, at a cost to the state of $800,000 for 2,800 families."

(7) Improve payments to welfare patients in nursing homes, based on a classification system of professional care and costing the state an estimated $3,791,000.

(8) Assistance payments for those over 65 years old in mental institutions. With federal aid the state cost, now paid by the division of mental diseases, would be $5,185,560.

(9) Creation of a new department for community affairs to handle the present state and regional planning program. The budget request for the planning activities was $727,611 from general revenue with an extra $303,270 from federal funds.

The Governor said his entire budget was based on the idea of maintaining the current level of services and expanding them where the need is shown clearly.

sion amendment similar to the new federal presidential disability amendment.

Two traffic safety recommenddiations were included-periodic inspection of all motor vehicles and authorization for reflective license plates. He said other suggestions will be made later by his coordinating committee on traffic safety.

Hearnes also suggested intensive study of reports expected soon on revision of Missouri's banking and insurance laws where there are many conflicts.

Other recommendations:

A new civil defense law formalizing his transfer of the agency to the adjutant general's office and including emergency resources planning.

A minimum of $14 a day for National Guardsmen when they are called to active duty in flood or other emergencies.

Putting both Guardsmen and civilian employes of the Adjutant General under workmen's compensation.

The Governor, who spent 10 years in the House, said he realized the lawmakers will have a mountainous mass of bills to consider. He gave this advice:

"Some of this legislation will fit into the logical economic and social progression which our state should follow; other proposals will be urged vigorously and with great fanfare by those interested in only a narrow spectrum of the very broad and diverse objectives important to a majority of Missourians.

"Other legislation will be of obvious merit, but also yoked to contemporary fiscal impracticality."

He said he was confident the new legislature would write a historic record that would "compare well with the enduring achievements" of the past.

FINDING THE WAY

Communicating the Word

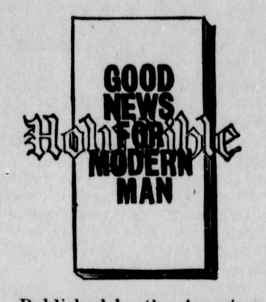
By RALPH W. LOEW, D.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

One of the affluent industries of our generation is packaging. Developing bright containers with attractive colors and easily opened devices becomes the lifework of many talented people. There are laws governing the claims, the weight and the contents of the package. The shape and form of the containers is limited only by the imagination and the practical storage dimensions.

Packaging is important in other areas of life. The form of worship, a vehicle for worship, is in the process of change in all varieties of religious groups. The need to communicate has affected all of the older or historic translations of Scripture. In many instances, the change is more radical. It is the discovery of the truth which had been confused with the packaging, and which causes new insights to be brought to the meaning of the statement of faith.

In the new Scripture translation the change of form is dramatic. Once upon a time, the Bible was protected by heavily decorated covers, sometimes closed with a latch, and kept in a place of reverence. With the upheaval of the Reformation new translations into the vernacular were published. In the 20th century we've had a rash of these new versions. Among the earlier forms was the American Revised version, quickly followed by the Goodspeed and Moffatt translations and then by the Revised Standard version and the new English Bible. In addition, the J. B. Phillips paraphrase is a fascinating statement. The Anchor Bible, now in, production, promises to be an interesting meeting ground for both Roman Catholic and Protestant.

One of the most interesting of the new packages for the Word is the volume, "Good News for Modern Man."



Published by the American Bible Society, it is packaged as a paperback. The new translation uses words now common in the English language. The pages are broken by frequent paragraph headings so that one is not overwhelmed by the printed page. There are simple line drawings which illustrate various passages.

One immediately detects the emphasis upon communication rather than poetic beauty. The petition in the Lord's prayer concerning forgiveness is translated, "Forgive us what we owe you as we forgive what others owe us." The Beatitudes are stated as a series of injunctions beginning "Happy are those . . ." "Happy are those who know they are spiritually poor: the kingdom of heaven belongs to them." "Happy are those who work for peace among men: God will call them sons."

One immediately detects the dignity and the reverence which are kept in this translation. It is meaningful, not flippant, honest when not poetic. Its importance is that it brings the content of Scripture in an attractive package geared to modern man. It is doubtful that such a translation can ever influence culture as did the King James Bible.

It does encourage men and women to read the Scriptures. regularly, carefully, understandingly. It enables truth to escape the package.

Lightest Mexico

By John Abney

Tikul, Mexico -- This village in the wilderness of central Yucatan has a double distinction. It is (1) completely unknown and (2) is the home of a real, live prince with a name you can scarcely pronounce.

The kingdom of Prince Gerardo Xiu, 40th generation descendant of no less than the old Mayan lord Hun Uitzil Chac Tutul Xiu (go on; I dare you to try it), has been reduced to a corn patch that looks pretty much like everybody else's.

And fortunately, history trimmed the prince's name down to a more or less reasonable condition.

Several years ago -- 987 A.D. to be exact - Mr. Hun Uitzil Chac Tutul Xiu was lying around in the shade of a ceiba tree one day studying his real estate.

So he called his Minister of Public Works and said, "Marvin, this ain't a bad spot we been living in all our lives. How about let's build a town here?"

"Great idea," answered Marvin, as if his opinion counted a fig.

"What sign to we hang on the railroad station?"

Mr. Xiu thought it over and said, "Oh, we can name it something easy like Uxmal."

"I'll round up the volunteers," sighed Marvin. "Where does the palace go?"

"Over yonder in the pasture where lightning hit Dzuz Dzing's mule last year," said the Mayan lord, "And have the troops put up a few pyramids and temples for the tourists."

Anyhow, that's more or less the way Uxmal was built. And people still come from all over the world to see the unusual collection of stone masonry.

The Xiu rulers stuck to the family's rock palace until the Spanish conquest and then started a skirmish for recognition from the King of Spain.

The King said well, as long as they remembered who was the top man a title or two wouldn't hurt anybody. So the Xius got an official patent of nobility although they ended up being evicted to a smaller but no less imposing palace.

Somehow or other, the post-conquest Maya boss wound up with the remodeled name of Francisco de Montejo Xiu which indicates there was some fraternizing back down the line.

Maybe the king wrote the Mayas to get easier names if they expected to stay in the local saddle.

But the Xiu empire got nibbled up. A little here and he now lives in a thatched hut with his family and hoes corn just like people but he is still the Maya prince.

On market days he shoulders his bag of corn and wears it to the village to peddle with the other farmers. Even the less literate persons here (like me) know the Peabody Museum at Harvard University has a stack of papers tracing Gerardo back for 40 generations with notes on all his relatives.

It proves that even if he wears sandals and white cotton peasant clothes he has blue, blue blood.

So how do you like that? After nearly a thousand years, the only claim to the ancient empire this prince has left is a noble manner of hoeing corn and a pedigree locked up in somebody else's safe.

Oldest House

St. Augustine, Fla., claims to have the oldest house in North America. An ancient structure of undetermined origin, it displays the colors of the United States, Great Britain, Spain and the Confederacy—flags of four of the different governments under which the city grew.

Sepoy Rebellion

A religious belief caused India's Sepoy Rebellion in 1857. The religion of the Moslems forbade the use of pork and the rebellion against the British in India resulted because the English commanders foolishly gave their Moslem troops bullets which had to be greased with lard.

Copacabana Crowded, Dirty But Residents Like It

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Down here, with the seasons reversed, tropical summer with all its torments to settling onto the famous beach called Copacabana.

More than 350,000 persons packed into the strip of land behind a crescent of sand will swelter and curse the heat, the noise, the dirt and the lack of public services.

But most of them wouldn't move. If they did, thousands more are waiting to move into what may be the most crowded suburb in Latin America.

Cariocas — as Rio residents are known — don't seem to mind that the beach grows dirtier as the summer moves along, or the constant din of traffic choked into Copacabana's narrow streets.

Nonresidents flock to shop in its boutiques and its 53 art galleries, to play in its 52 major bars and night clubs, or just to toast in the sun on the beach.

They also scrimp and save so that some day they may move there.

Copacabana is built on a narrow strip between sea and mountains. It is 2½ miles long and seldom more than five blocks wide. Residents and visitors jam its 2.4 square miles.

Those who live there pay as much a $1,500 a month for a beachside apartment. This doesn't guarantee them either water or electricity. Both have been in chronic short supply in Copacabana.

More modest housing is available behind the beach. Families of five or six crowd into tiny two-bedroom apartments just for the status of a Copacabana address.

More than a quarter of Copacabana's residents live in the squalid shantytown "Favelas" precariously perched on hills overlooking the beach. They have neither water nor sewage facilities, but the view is great.

The eight per cent of Copacabana residents who earn more than $500 monthly give the area its glitter.

Copacabana boasts Rio's highest traffic accident rate, a rapidly growing crime rate, and one of the city's highest noise levels.

It is short on schools, and residents complain that the city is cutting into already inadequate parks and squares to build a tourist information center and other public buildings.

Recent surveys focus attention on the suburb's attractions and shortcomings.

"The entire area should be transformed," said architect Marcos Konder Netto, a Copacabana resident. "Obsolete buildings should be replaced with parks, and garage buildings should be put up."

Dramatist Carlos Heiter Cony, another resident, says Copacabana is simply "a large and comfortable slum."

Benjamin Morais, a Protestant minister who is state secretary for education, feels the spirit is neglected in Copacabana.

"Books are used to decorate shelves," he says.

For whatever it may take away from the spirit, Copacabana more than makes up to it for the flesh. Its beach is almost always covered with bronzed beauties in bikinis.

Its sidewalk cafes are a magnet, and its night clubs are the city's liveliest. Samba and ye-ye-ye mix freely in swinging discotheques. Prostitutes swing in other ways along its mosaic sidewalks and the bars of half a dozen joints.

Star Seeks Bit Part in Batman Cast

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — A busy, popular actor rarely admits he begged for a bit part in a television series. Cliff Robertson, who played young John F. Kennedy in the movie "PT-109", boasts about it.

A few months ago Robertson treated his daughter Stephanie, 7, to a visit to the "Batman" set. On the way home she looked her father over thoughtfully and remarked: "I never knew you knew such important people."

"I went to see Bill Dozier, the 'Batman' producer the next day," said Robertson. "I said I had a problem. 'Yes, I know,' Dozier answered. 'You want a cameo role in the show.'

"I looked surprised, and then he said that almost all actors with young children had the same problem. Anyway he worked out a little something — it took about a day — so I could impress my child. I don't quite know when I will be seen — briefly — in an episode."

Robertson recently married actress Dina Merrill. They will appear together tonight — 10-11 EST — in ABC's adaptation of John D. MacDonald's short story, "The Trap of Solid Gold."

Robertson, in his early 40s, is primarily interested in his booming film career, and works in television only as an occasional performer who can pick his spots and material.

Robertson has been doing well for about 10 years, but he says that "the Kennedy thing was just great for me because it focused national attention and generated a lot of publicity.

"Whether you like it or not, publicity certainly helps a performer get the kind of roles he wants."

CBS, in its second annual current events quiz for television viewers, Tuesday night propounded about 30 questions on last year's news that ranged broadly from Vietnam to the Warren report to the moon's surface.

As usual the test was given in advance to a typical national sample with the usual discouraging result — 79 per cent flunked.

NBC will invite some kudos for culture Feb. 5 with a live program showing Picasso paintings in museums in Paris -- by satellite -- New York, Dallas and Fort Worth. There will also be an on-camera auction of a painting donated by the artist at a New York gallery with the proceeds going toward the rescue of Florentine art damaged by recent floods.

* * *

In times of great crisis, Americans have always joined together in an unyielding force to protect the freedom we love. From the bloodstained snows of Valley Forge to the steaming jungles of Viet Nam, Americans have stood together valiantly. . . effectively. And they would do so again if would events should demand that price. But those are the big battles. . . the clearly defined dangers. . . the "violent and sudden usurpations." What of the day-in-day-out struggle where subtle, silent enroachments wrap themselves like spiderwebs around the principles which guarantee us continued liberty? Do we Americans stand unyielding against them. . . or is our action replaced by apathy. . . our valor by lassitude? If so, these words from "The Father of our Constitution" could be sound advice, for the abridgment of freedom is just as final. . . just as deadly. . . when accomplished gradually and silently as when it occurs violently and suddenly.

FINDING THE WAY

Communicating the Word

By RALPH W. LOEW, D.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

One of the affluent industries of our generation is packaging. Developing bright containers with attractive colors and easily opened devices becomes the lifework of many talented people. There are laws governing the claims, the weight and the contents of the package. The shape and form of the containers is limited only by the imagination and the practical storage dimensions.

Packaging is important in other areas of life. The form of worship, a vehicle for worship, is in the process of change in all varieties of religious groups. The need to communicate has affected all of the older or historic translations of Scripture. In many instances, the change is more radical. It is the discovery of the truth which had been confused with the packaging, and which causes new insights to be brought to the meaning of the statement of faith.

In the new Scripture translation the change of form is dramatic. Once upon a time, the Bible was protected by heavily decorated covers, sometimes closed with a latch, and kept in a place of reverence. With the upheaval of the Reformation new translations into the vernacular were published. In the 20th century we've had a rash of these new versions. Among the earlier forms was the American Revised version, quickly followed by the Goodspeed and Moffatt translations and then by the Revised Standard version and the new English Bible. In addition, the J. B. Phillips paraphrase is a fascinating statement. The Anchor Bible, now in, production, promises to be an interesting meeting ground for both Roman Catholic and Protestant.

GOOD NEWS FOR MODERN MAN Holy Bible

Published by the American Bible Society, it is packaged as a paperback. The new translation uses words now common in the English language. The pages are broken by frequent paragraph headings so that one is not overwhelmed by the printed page. There are simple line drawings which illustrate various passages.

One immediately detects the emphasis upon communication rather than poetic beauty. The petition in the Lord's prayer concerning forgiveness is translated, "Forgive us what we owe you as we forgive what others owe us." The Beatitudes are stated as a series of injunctions beginning "Happy are those . . ." "Happy are those who know they are spiritually poor: the kingdom of heaven belongs to them." "Happy are those who work for peace among men: God will call them sons."

One immediately detects the dignity and the reverence which are kept in this translation. It is meaningful, not flippant, honest when not poetic. Its importance is that it brings the content of Scripture in an attractive package geared to modern man. It is doubtful that such a translation can ever influence culture as did the King James Bible.

It does encourage men and women to read the Scriptures, regularly, carefully, understandingly. It enables truth to escape the package.

Lightest Mexico

By John Abney

Tikul, Mexico -- This village in the wilderness of central Yucatan has a double distinction. It is (1) completely unknown and (2) is the home of a real, live prince with a name you can scarcely pronounce.

The kingdom of Prince Gerardo Xiu, 40th generation descendant of no less than the old Mayan lord Hun Uitzil Chac Tutul Xiu (go on; I dare you to try it), has been reduced to a corn patch that looks pretty much like everybody else's.

And fortunately, history trimmed the prince's name down to a more or less reasonable condition.

Several years ago -- 987 A.D. to be exact - Mr. Hun Uitzil Chac Tutul Xiu was lying around in the shade of a ceiba tree one day studying his real estate.

So he called his Minister of Public Works and said, "Marvin, this ain't a bad spot we been living in all our lives. How about let's build a town here?"

"Great idea," answered Marvin, as if his opinion counted a fig.

"What sign to we hang on the railroad station?"

Mr. Xiu thought it over and said, "Oh, we can name it something easy like Uxmal."

"I'll round up the volunteers," sighed Marvin. "Where does the palace go?"

"Over yonder in the pasture where lightning hit Dzuz Dzing's mule last year," said the Mayan lord, "And have the troops put up a few pyramids and temples for the tourists."

Anyhow, that's more or less the way Uxmal was built. And people still come from all over the world to see the unusual collection of stone masonry.

The Xiu rulers stuck to the family's rock palace until the Spanish conquest and then started a skirmish for recognition from the King of Spain.

The King said well, as long as they remembered who was the top man a title or two wouldn't hurt anybody. So the Xius got an official patent of nobility although they ended up being evicted to a smaller but no less imposing palace.

Somehow or other, the post-conquest Maya boss wound up with the remodeled name of Francisco de Montejo Xiu which indicates there was some fraternizing back down the line.

Maybe the king wrote the Mayas to get easier names if they expected to stay in the local saddle.

But the Xiu empire got nibbled up. A little here and he now lives in a thatched hut with his family and hoes corn just like people but he is still the Maya prince.

On market days he shoulders his bag of corn and wears it to the village to peddle with the other farmers. Even the less literate persons here (like me) know the Peabody Museum at Harvard University has a stack of papers tracing Gerardo back for 40 generations with notes on all his relatives.

It proves that even if he wears sandals and white cotton peasant clothes he has blue, blue blood.

So how do you like that? After nearly a thousand years, the only claim to the ancient empire this prince has left is a noble manner of hoeing corn and a pedigree locked up in somebody else's safe.

Oldest House

St. Augustine, Fla., claims to have the oldest house in North America. An ancient structure of undetermined origin, it displays the colors of the United States, Great Britain, Spain and the Confederacy—flags of four of the different governments under which the city grew.

Sepoy Rebellion

A religious belief caused India's Sepoy Rebellion in 1857. The religion of the Moslems forbade the use of pork and the rebellion against the British in India resulted because the English commanders foolishly gave their Moslem troops bullets which had to be greased with lard.

Copacabana Crowded, Dirty But Residents Like It

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Down here, with the seasons reversed, tropical summer with all its torments to settling onto the famous beach called Copacabana.

More than 350,000 persons packed into the strip of land behind a crescent of sand will swelter and curse the heat, the noise, the dirt and the lack of public services.

But most of them wouldn't move. If they did, thousands more are waiting to move into what may be the most crowded suburb in Latin America.

Cariocas — as Rio residents are known — don't seem to mind that the beach grows dirtier as the summer moves along, or the constant din of traffic choked into Copacabana's narrow streets.

Nonresidents flock to shop in its boutiques and its 53 art galleries, to play in its 52 major bars and night clubs, or just to toast in the sun on the beach.

They also scrimp and save so that some day they may move there.

Copacabana is built on a narrow strip between sea and mountains. It is 2½ miles long and seldom more than five blocks wide. Residents and visitors jam its 2.4 square miles.

Those who live there pay as much a $1,500 a month for a beachside apartment. This doesn't guarantee them either water or electricity. Both have been in chronic short supply in Copacabana.

More modest housing is available behind the beach. Families of five or six crowd into tiny two-bedroom apartments just for the status of a Copacabana address.

More than a quarter of Copacabana's residents live in the squalid shantytown "Favelas" precariously perched on hills overlooking the beach. They have neither water nor sewage facilities, but the view is great.

The eight per cent of Copacabana residents who earn more than $500 monthly give the area its glitter.

Copacabana boasts Rio's highest traffic accident rate, a rapidly growing crime rate, and one of the city's highest noise levels.

It is short on schools, and residents complain that the city is cutting into already inadequate parks and squares to build a tourist information center and other public buildings.

Recent surveys focus attention on the suburb's attractions and shortcomings.

"The entire area should be transformed," said architect Marcos Konder Netto, a Copacabana resident. "Obsolete buildings should be replaced with parks, and garage buildings should be put up."

Dramatist Carlos Heiter Cony, another resident, says Copacabana is simply "a large and comfortable slum."

Benjamin Morais, a Protestant minister who is state secretary for education, feels the spirit is neglected in Copacabana.

"Books are used to decorate shelves," he says.

For whatever it may take away from the spirit, Copacabana more than makes up to it for the flesh. Its beach is almost always covered with bronzed beauties in bikinis.

Its sidewalk cafes are a magnet, and its night clubs are the city's liveliest. Samba and ye-ye-ye mix freely in swinging discotheques. Prostitutes swing in other ways along its mosaic sidewalks and the bars of half a dozen joints.

Star Seeks Bit Part in Batman Cast

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — A busy, popular actor rarely admits he begged for a bit part in a television series. Cliff Robertson, who played young John F. Kennedy in the movie "PT-109", boasts about it.

A few months ago Robertson treated his daughter Stephanie, 7, to a visit to the "Batman" set. On the way home she looked her father over thoughtfully and remarked: "I never knew you knew such important people."

"I went to see Bill Dozier, the 'Batman' producer the next day," said Robertson. "I said I had a problem. 'Yes, I know,' Dozier answered. 'You want a cameo role in the show.'

"I looked surprised, and then he said that almost all actors with young children had the same problem. Anyway he worked out a little something — it took about a day — so I could impress my child. I don't quite know when I will be seen — briefly — in an episode."

Robertson recently married actress Dina Merrill. They will appear together tonight — 10-11 EST — in ABC's adaptation of John D. MacDonald's short story, "The Trap of Solid Gold."

Robertson, in his early 40s, is primarily interested in his booming film career, and works in television only as an occasional performer who can pick his spots and material.

Robertson has been doing well for about 10 years, but he says that "the Kennedy thing was just great for me because it focused national attention and generated a lot of publicity.

"Whether you like it or not, publicity certainly helps a performer get the kind of roles he wants."

CBS, in its second annual current events quiz for television viewers, Tuesday night propounded about 30 questions on last year's news that ranged broadly from Vietnam to the Warren report to the moon's surface.

As usual the test was given in advance to a typical national sample with the usual discouraging result — 79 per cent flunked.

NBC will invite some kudos for culture Feb. 5 with a live program showing Picasso paintings in museums in Paris — by satellite — New York, Dallas and Fort Worth. There will also be an on-camera auction of a painting donated by the artist at a New York gallery with the proceeds going toward the rescue of Florentine art damaged by recent floods.

* * *

In times of great crisis, Americans have always joined together in an unyielding force to protect the freedom we love. From the bloodstained snows of Valley Forge to the steaming jungles of Viet Nam, Americans have stood together valiantly. . . effectively. And they would do so again if would events should demand that price. But those are the big battles. . . the clearly defined dangers. . . the "violent and sudden usurpations." What of the day-in-day-out struggle where subtle, silent enroachments wrap themselves like spiderwebs around the principles which guarantee us continued liberty? Do we Americans stand unyielding against them. . . or is our action replaced by apathy. . . our valor by lassitude? If so, these words from "The Father of our Constitution" could be sound advice, for the abridgment of freedom is just as final. . . just as deadly. . . when accomplished gradually and silently as when it occurs violently and suddenly.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE

By Jack Strauss LL.B

THE CASE OF THE LONELY CONSPIRATOR

Carmine and his pal Hysterio were arrested by the police and charged with criminal conspiracy. While Carmine remained calm and pleaded innocent, Hysterio panicked. He pleaded guilty and was sent away to jail. Thereafter, Carmine stood trial and was acquitted of the charge by a jury, which left Hysterio hysterical.

"If Carmine was found innocent," he finally concluded, "who was I conspiring with?"

Hysterio nervously petitioned the court for his immediate release.

"If Carmine wasn't guilty of conspiracy," he told the judge, "then I wasn't guilty either. Conspiracy is like dancing. It takes two to tango and two to conspire."

"I'm not interested in dancing," responded the prosecuting attorney. "When a man pleads guilty, as Hysterio did, he's admitted that he has committed a crime. While a jury can make a mistake, he knew the truth. Therefore, Hysterio has to stay in jail."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you set Hysterio free?

This is how the judge ruled: Hysterio went free. The judge ruled that one person cannot be guilty of conspiracy. Since Carmine was adjudged innocent, then Hysterio had to be innocent also. (Based upon a 1962 Arizona Supreme Court Decision)

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pettiford are the parents of a daughter born today.

An interesting experiment is being tried out in the Sikeston grade school. Twenty-five children have been chosen at random and each morning at 10 o'clock are being fed milk and graham crackers. The experiment will be carried on for possibly a month to note what changes, if any, the children make in weight. And in the meantime, the children like it.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: My boy friend is a graduate student at a well-known university here on the West Coast. He is very bright and has won many honors. I'm telling you this not to brag but to let you know that he's really not a moron - which is what you will probably think after I tell you my problem.

My little poodle, Nichole, is very dear to me. My boy friend has an airedale. The last three times my boy friend has come to see me he has yelled from the porch, "Put your dog in the basement. I brought Scotty along." I have done as he asked. It so happens that I don't like to put Nicole in the basement and I don't see why he should bring his mutt over and make demands on me.

Yesterday he pulled this stunt again and I told him to take Scotty home and come back alone. Would you believe that he and that dumb hound sat outside in the car for one solid hour. Finally he drove off in a huff and called me from his place to say I was a spoiled brat.

I say he is the spoiled brat and that he owes me an apology. What do you say? - STILL SIZZling.

Dear Sizz: No one should bring a dog when he goes visiting unless he has checked in advance and gotten an O.K.

A young man who is so attached to his bow wow that he can't leave him home when he goes to see his girl is too childish to go with girls.

Dear Ann Landers: Mom passed away several months ago and Dad and I miss her very much. Dad tries to cheer up both himself and me by taking me places Friday and Saturday evenings.

Last Friday we went to a cocktail lounge where there was dancing. Several fellows I knew from school (I'm a junior) were there stagging it. Not one fellow asked me to dance. This made me very depressed.

Do you think they were afraid of my father? Please answer as I am really in the dumps over this - A.P.

Dear A.P.: I'm sure your hunch is correct and I hope your dad will think of another way to cheer up both himself and you. Taking a teen-age daughter to a cocktail lounge is not my idea of a solution to any problem.

Dear Ann Landers: I fell in love with a married man. I didn't realize until later that I was not his first affair. His wife realized it, however, and decided she had had enough of his playing around. She divorced him.

Now his sons want nothing to do with him. He is not permitted to see his grandchildren. His business associates no longer include him in their social plans. At dinner tonight he looked at me through eyes of hate - as if it was all my fault.

Let this letter be a warning to all single girls who are cozying up to married men with hopes for the future. I wish to heaven I had never seen this character and I'm sure he wishes he had never seen me. - ASHES IN MY MOUTH

Dear Ashes: Your story is such a common one that I am printing it only because some people have to see or hear something four dozen times before they get the idea.

When necking becomes petting, watch out! To learn how the smart girl keeps both her dignity and her boyfriend, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Necking and Petting - And How Far to Go," enclosing with your request 25¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

I am getting stronger for Gov. Hearnes all the time. He demolished the Establishment. He is like the late Senator James A. Reed, Kansas City, who fought President Wilson on the League of Nations; or the late Senator Bennett Clark, Bowling Green, who fought President Roosevelt and opposed World War II. They fought for what they and their supporters thought was best for our country. Now Gov. Hearnes is doing the same thing.

I would like to see Gov. Hearnes go to Washington in '68 as United States Senator and replace Senator Long, who has done nothing but "yes" President Johnson whom we are all fed up with. Or to have Gov. Wallace, Alabama, and Gov. Hearnes on the Democratic ticket for President and Vice President.

Jack O'Bryan
Huntsville, Mo.

Support for Gov. Hearnes

I cannot help expressing my displeasure and disappointment over the letters critical of Gov. Hearnes's comments on President Johnson. Although not a Democrat, I must applaud and support Mr. Hearnes. He is one of the few governors who has consistently voiced his opposition to President Johnson's war policies. He takes the risk of saying what he believes rather than what is politically expedient.

There are many people who believe as he does, as stated in the Post-Dispatch that same day: "Nearly half of a group of key Democratic leaders either believe their party would be better off with a candidate other than President Lyndon B. Johnson in 1968 or are presently unwilling to indorse his renomination."

I will work for and support a man such as Gov. Hearnes, and will oppose men such as Senator Symington who continually urge greater escalation of the Vietnam conflict.

Gary B. Williams

SAN DIEGO, CALIF. (FHTNC) Dec. 9 - Marine Private Gary B. Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil D. Williams of 722 E. Kathleen St., Sikeston, Mo., was graduated from eight weeks of recruit training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot here.

He will now undergo about three weeks of individual combat training and then, after leave at home, will report to his first Marine Corps assignment.

The intensified Marine recruit training emphasizes rigid physical conditioning and survival techniques, both at sea and ashore, to develop self-confidence and endurance. Marksmanship with the M-14 rifle and 45-calibre pistol are equally stressed, and close order drill instills the traditions of Marine Corps teamwork.

A thorough study of basic military subjects; hygiene, first aid and sanitation; and the customs, courtesies, history and mission of the Marine Corps serve to polish the new Marine's recruit education and prepare him to join Marine combat forces.

Missouri Press Report

Sen. Edward Long

Missouri is still the nation's fourth leading hog producer, according to the latest report to reach my desk.

During 1966, Missouri hog farmers increased their production by 10 percent -- 2 percentage points more than for the nation as a whole.

Our hog farmers produced 6,512,000 hogs during 1966 -- 3,188,000 of them were produced during the June-November, 1966, period.

During 1966, the nation produced 85,441,000 hogs -- up 8 percent over 1965.

There were 3,992,000 hogs on Missouri farms at the end of 1966 -- 10 percent more than at the end of 1965.

Missouri producers predict they will be farrowing 461,000 sows between now and May, 1967.

More than 300,000 student nurses attending nursing schools in Missouri will receive loans in 1967.

A total of 14 schools of nursing in Missouri will have available $268,141 in student loan funds under the U.S. Nursing Student Loan Program.

The new allocation of funds will increase the number of studen nurses receiving loans by around 33 percent during 1967.

Here are some items from the 1966 year-end report on the nation's economy:

--Total production of goods and services in 1966 is estimated to be at an all time high: over $650 billion. Back in 1962, the figure was $529 billion.

--Net farm income in 1966 was over $16 billion -- up $1.8 billion over 1965.

--Business expenditures for new plants and equipment in 1966 are expected to be 16 percent higher than in 1965. Predictions are that while these business expenditures will increase in 1967, the increase will be slower.

--The unemployment rate in 1966 was the lowest since 1953. The year-end rate for 1966 was around 3.8 percent, compared to 5.2 percent back in 1964.

Yesterday he pulled this stunt again and I told him to take Scotty home and come back alone. Would you believe that he and that dumb hound sat outside in the car for one solid hour. Finally he drove off in a huff and called me from his place to say I was a spoiled brat.

I say he is the spoiled brat and that he owes me an apology. What do you say? - STILL SIZZling.

Dear Sizz: No one should bring a dog when he goes visiting unless he has checked in advance and gotten an O.K.

A young man who is so attached to his bow wow that he can't leave him home when he goes to see his girl is too childish to go with girls.

Dear Ann Landers: Mom passed away several months ago and Dad and I miss her very much. Dad tries to cheer up both himself and me by taking me places Friday and Saturday evenings.

Last Friday we went to a cocktail lounge where there was dancing. Several fellows I knew from school (I'm a junior) were there stagging it. Not one fellow asked me to dance. This made me very depressed.

Do you think they were afraid of my father? Please answer as I am really in the dumps over this - A.P.

Dear A.P.: I'm sure your hunch is correct and I hope your dad will think of another way to cheer up both himself and you. Taking a teen-age daughter to a cocktail lounge is not my idea of a solution to any problem.

Dear Ann Landers: I fell in love with a married man. I didn't realize until later that I was not his first affair. His wife realized it, however, and decided she had had enough of his playing around. She divorced him.

Now his sons want nothing to do with him. He is not permitted to see his grandchildren. His business associates no longer include him in their social plans. At dinner tonight he looked at me through eyes of hate - as if it was all my fault.

Let this letter be a warning to all single girls who are cozying up to married men with hopes for the future. I wish to heaven I had never seen this character and I'm sure he wishes he had never seen me. - ASHES IN MY MOUTH

Dear Ashes: Your story is such a common one that I am printing it only because some people have to see or hear something four dozen times before they get the idea.

When necking becomes petting, watch out! To learn how the smart girl keeps both her dignity and her boyfriend, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Necking and Petting - And How Far to Go," enclosing with your request 25¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

I am getting stronger for Gov. Hearnes all the time. He demolished the Establishment. He is like the late Senator James A. Reed, Kansas City, who fought President Wilson on the League of Nations; or the late Senator Bennett Clark, Bowling Green, who fought President Roosevelt and opposed World War II. They fought for what they and their supporters thought was best for our country. Now Gov. Hearnes is doing the same thing.

I would like to see Gov. Hearnes go to Washington in '68 as United States Senator and replace Senator Long, who has done nothing but "yes" President Johnson whom we are all fed up with. Or to have Gov. Wallace, Alabama, and Gov. Hearnes on the Democratic ticket for President and Vice President.

Jack O'Bryan
Huntsville, Mo.

Support for Gov. Hearnes

I cannot help expressing my displeasure and disappointment over the letters critical of Gov. Hearnes's comments on President Johnson. Although not a Democrat, I must applaud and support Mr. Hearnes. He is one of the few governors who has consistently voiced his opposition to President Johnson's war policies. He takes the risk of saying what he believes rather than what is politically expedient.

There are many people who believe as he does, as stated in the Post-Dispatch that same day: "Nearly half of a group of key Democratic leaders either believe their party would be better off with a candidate other than President Lyndon B. Johnson in 1968 or are presently unwilling to indorse his renomination."

I will work for and support a man such as Gov. Hearnes, and will oppose men such as Senator Symington who continually urge greater escalation of the Vietnam conflict.

Gary B. Williams

SAN DIEGO, CALIF. (FHTNC) Dec. 9 - Marine Private Gary B. Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil D. Williams of 722 E. Kathleen St., Sikeston, Mo., was graduated from eight weeks of recruit training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot here.

He will now undergo about three weeks of individual combat training and then, after leave at home, will report to his first Marine Corps assignment.

The intensified Marine recruit training emphasizes rigid physical conditioning and survival techniques, both at sea and ashore, to develop self-confidence and endurance. Marksmanship with the M-14 rifle and 45-calibre pistol are equally stressed, and close order drill instills the traditions of Marine Corps teamwork.

A thorough study of basic military subjects; hygiene, first aid and sanitation; and the customs, courtesies, history and mission of the Marine Corps serve to polish the new Marine's recruit education and prepare him to join Marine combat forces.

Missouri Press Report

Sen. Edward Long

Missouri is still the nation's fourth leading hog producer, according to the latest report to reach my desk.

During 1966, Missouri hog farmers increased their production by 10 percent -- 2 percentage points more than for the nation as a whole.

Our hog farmers produced 6,512,000 hogs during 1966 -- 3,188,000 of them were produced during the June-November, 1966, period.

During 1966, the nation produced 85,441,000 hogs -- up 8 percent over 1965.

There were 3,992,000 hogs on Missouri farms at the end of 1966 -- 10 percent more than at the end of 1965.

Missouri producers predict they will be farrowing 461,000 sows between now and May, 1967.

More than 300,000 student nurses attending nursing schools in Missouri will receive loans in 1967.

A total of 14 schools of nursing in Missouri will have available $268,141 in student loan funds under the U.S. Nursing Student Loan Program.

The new allocation of funds will increase the number of studen nurses receiving loans by around 33 percent during 1967.

Here are some items from the 1966 year-end report on the nation's economy:

--Total production of goods and services in 1966 is estimated to be at an all time high; over $650 billion. Back in 1962, the figure was $529 billion.

--Net farm income in 1966 was over $16 billion -- up $1.8 billion over 1965.

--Business expenditures for new plants and equipment in 1966 are expected to be 16 percent higher than in 1965. Predictions are that while these business expenditures will increase in 1967, the increase will be slower.

--The unemployment rate in 1966 was the lowest since 1953. The year-end rate for 1966 was around 3.8 percent, compared to 5.2 percent back in 1964.

We took my sister and brother-in-law Herb to a night club to celebrate their anniversary. Sis, however, was miserable because Herb was paying too much attention to the curvaceous cigarette girl.

I was just going to tell her she was imagining things until Herb put his foot in it. When the girl walked past our table, he casually asked for "a pair of cigarettes."
